8,029-FOOT MT. SILVERTIP STUBBORNLY SHROUDS ILL-FATED AIRLINER

Missing TCA North Star airliner is believed to have crashed on 8,029-foot Mount Silvertip, south and east of Hope, B.C. Rugged country today was swathed in cloud, preventing search planes from spotting wreckage. Map shows location of search area 110 miles northeast of Victoria.

THE ART OF REAL HAPPINESS

Am I Being My Real Self?

(As a special Christmas feature the Times is publishing a serialization of the new book, "The Art of Real Happiness"—Co-authored to Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, whose book "The Power of Positive Thinking" was warmly received by Times readers. There will be 12 installments.)

CHAPTER 2

By Norman Vincent Peale, DD, and Smiley Blanton, MD

"Am I doing what I really ought to be doing? Am I being my real self?" These are the queries of many of us who wonder if we are making the best of our opportunities, or are unhappy about our living conditions, or just generally confused about the complexities of modern life. We all have unfulfilled dreams and yearnings. Each of us feel at times that life has passed us by, and we don't know how to catch up with it.

Taking a realistic survey of one's God-given talents is more difficult than it appears. People think that they know themselves, but they really do not. They are usually ignorant of the complexity of their intellectual and emotional lives. This was true of a 25-year-old girl whom we will call Janet. She was a most pathetic figure when she seated herself inside our counselling room at the clinic.

"I came to your clinic," she told us, "because I am afraid I will kill myself unless someone helps me." Then, between sobs, Janet told us a story we hear often in one form or another. She had come to New York to make a career for herself as a concert pianist. In a Greenwich Village apartment, she had found a teacher who had worked with her for nearly four years. "She kept encouraging me," Janet said. "Even when I wondered about my ability, she told me that I could become a great pianist if only I would work harder. But every time I asked her if I was ready for an audition, she kept putting me off. Several weeks ago I met a man who is a piano accompanist. I told him of my ambition and asked if I could play for him. Janet paused again, to control her voice. "I played for him. I thought I did very well. He was nice about it, but he said I was wasting my time, because I just didn't have the ability to be a concert pianist. "I was furious with him, of course," she continued. "So I went to see another music teacher. She agreed with the accompanist. Then I had it out with my own teacher, who blew up at me, called me names and said she would have nothing more to do with me. "Now I don't know what to do or where to turn. I can't go home and face my parents and friends. I've told my

EASTERN TORIES BUCK PRO-BRITISH ATTITUDE

By VICTOR J. MACKIE, Times Ottawa Correspondent
OTTAWA—Emanating from Quebec and Ontario a strong provincial rights sentiment is apparent in the discussions under way in Progressive Conservative convention's resolutions and policy committee, and it may be incorporated in the revision of the party's platform to be approved by the national convention later this week.

A reaction against any strong pro-British attitude is also noted among Quebec delegates who want to avoid having the Progressive Conservative Party labelled as the "Union Jack" party in Canadian politics.

Strike Cripples Budapest; Soviet Tanks Ring City

FROM REUTERS AND UP

Hundreds of Russian tanks locked Budapest in a ring of steel today, as all Hungary lay paralyzed in the grip of one of the most complete strikes in history.

Meanwhile, violent fighting is in progress in the hills surrounding Pecs in southern Hungary. This area contains the country's uranium mines. Several hundred workers armed with rifles and light machine-guns were reported fighting Communist government police, who are backed by light Soviet forces.

In Vienna reports were circulating that Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar has either committed suicide or been liquidated by the Russians. The report came from a Western diplomat who arrived in Vienna today from the Hungarian capital. Refugees reaching Austria said the Soviet tanks stopped all movement in or out of the capital when the strike started officially at midnight. There were no reports of the tanks being in action, although in many regions there were localized clashes between defiant workers and Hungarian police.

The Russian tanks and armored cars sealed off the huge iron and steel complex on Budapest's Csepel Island. Tough pickets outside the plants had threatened bluntly they would fight any attempt by the Russians or police to penetrate the factories.

The government-controlled Budapest radio indicated clearly that the strike was the worst to date in Hungary. That meant in effect that it was about the most complete walkout of all time.

The radio admitted: 1. The electric current was cut off in Budapest for the first time since the bitter struggle for freedom started. 2. Rail transport was at a standstill. 3. The postal service was paralyzed. 4. All over, factories were idle "because the workers are afraid of counter-revolutionary elements on strike."

Partly because of the strike all Budapest's communications with the outside world were cut. The government severed communications on Sunday as soon as the central Budapest workers' council called the 48-hour strike.

Magnificent Sails Dec. 28

HALIFAX (CP)—The aircraft carrier Magnificent is to leave here Dec. 28 with more troops for Canada's contribution to the United Nations police force in the Middle East, plus some air force personnel.

Canadian Aid Reaches Brave Freedom Fighters

Help from Canada has reached Vienna, where the 40 students to benefit by The Times "Hungary's Fighting Students" fund have shown themselves to be pathetically grateful.

Word came from Miss Rita Baechler, Quaker worker in Vienna in a letter to Dr. Lotta Hiltzmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee in Canada. The

Little Hope For 62 on TCA North Star

From The Canadian Press

VANCOUVER—Search for a missing TCA North Star airliner slowed to a virtual standstill today.

Search officials, though officially hopeful, were growing more pessimistic by the hour. The eastbound airliner with 62 persons aboard vanished Sunday night.

It was returning to Vancouver with one engine dead.

Its position then was reported as over mountainous terrain near Hope, 110 miles northeast of Victoria, by Captain Allan Clark, 35, of Montreal.

Search planes, comprising 17 RCAF and the rest civilian, will concentrate on investigating the sides and peak of 8,029-foot-high Silvertip Mountain, 20 miles southwest of Hope.

Low clouds and falling snow hampered the search early this morning. Clouds were expected to lift later today.

"If this happens, we have 45 aircraft standing by for immediate take-off," said Sqdn. Ldr. G. L. Sheahan, in charge of the RCAF search and rescue.

"We are tracking down every clue and all information that is coming in," said the searchmaster.

So far, the information indicates strongly the plane is down in the Silvertip Mountain area.

He said at least nine persons had reported seeing "flashes of light" and hearing the drone of motors in the area shortly after 7 p.m. (PST) Sunday.

A ground party will make a check among isolated settlers in the area.

Last radio contact with the stricken liner was at 7.09 p.m.

'Could Be Wreckage'

Monday, when 18 planes scoured the area under difficult weather conditions, one RCAF spotter reported seeing something on the side of Silvertip "which could have been wreckage."

"Until we have searched every inch of that mountain it will definitely remain our prime consideration," said the searchmaster.

The whole area covers 1,200 square miles, including the Upper Fraser Valley and the snow-covered peaks surrounding it.

Sqdn. Ldr. Sheahan and other search officials still held hope there could be survivors among the 59 passengers and the three-man crew on the missing plane.

One official said: If the big North Star crash-landed, its heavy construction could easily have withstood the shock of an emergency landing.

"In that case, there is a very strong possibility that there are survivors," said the official.

"That is the reason also for the urgency in this search, of course."

But if the airliner exploded as may be indicated by reports of flare-ups and huge flashes, "there is little likelihood of life," he added.

Sqdn. Ldr. Sheahan instructed his crews to search both Silvertip Mountain and the nearby Mount Shehm "from top to bottom, if necessary from tree to tree."

"You will search and search, all day if necessary," he said. However, he said clouds were lower over the mountains today than on Monday and "in this weather it looks difficult" to sight anything on the mountain.

A TCA spokesman, asked whether there was any

Sooke 'Diviner' Offers To Find Lost Plane

A Sooke resident, K. L. Shepherd, with an "uncanny" ability as a water diviner, and at finding lost people, has asked Mayor Percy Scourrah to arrange for him to assist in finding the downed TCA airliner.

Mayor Scourrah said he received a call from Mr. Shepherd, asserting his abilities and asking the mayor to find him transportation to the search area.

Mayor Scourrah promised to pass the request along to local TCA officials.

Mr. Shepherd was reluctant to describe his ability other than to say, "It is the same idea as water divining." He said he would only give evidence of his ability if transportation arrangements could be made.

Sooke residents questioned said, "He is amazing at finding lost wells and people. It's uncanny." They added, Sooke detachment RCMP was "convinced of this man's ability."

Hungary Walks Out at UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The Hungarian delegation today walked out of the General Assembly in protest against what it called UN interference in Hungary's internal affairs.

The surprise move came as the 79-country assembly debated a U.S.-sponsored move to condemn the Soviet Union for refusing to withdraw its armed forces from Hungary.

VIENNA (AP)—The Hungarian government announced over Budapest radio today that property of all persons who have left Hungary since the start of the anti-Soviet rebellion Oct. 23 will be seized by the state.

U.K. Officer Kidnapped In Port Said

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP)—A young British lieutenant who arrested seven Egyptian commandos in a raid on an apartment Monday night was kidnapped from a Port Said street today by a strongarm band.

Lt. Gen. Sir Hugh Stockwell, commander of the British-French task force, immediately told the local Egyptian governor, Mohammed Riad, to get the officer back.

Stockwell also informed Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada, commander of the United Nations force, about the kidnapping.

Stockwell said the car used in the abduction had been found with bloodstains.

The kidnapped officer was identified as Lieut. Anthony Gerald Moorhouse, 21, of the West Yorkshire Regiment.

The kidnapping came as Egyptian informants charged that the extremist Moslem Brotherhood, outlawed by the Egyptian government two years ago, was planning to embarrass President Nasser by harassing the British-French withdrawal from this Suez Canal port.

Egyptian sources said Nasser intends to rush 2,000 Egyptian police here as soon as the British and French pull out in order to deal with the Brotherhood.

OL' VIC SAYS

ed in the Chateau Laurier Hotel. At the convention headquarters at Lansdowne Park, the resolutions and policy committee went into the second day of private meetings. The organization and publicity committee was also scheduled to meet today.

RELEASED THURSDAY

The draft platform, designed to woo Conservative votes in next year's expected general election, will be made public Thursday, just before the main convention begins debate on it. The strongest two campaigns under way in the policy-making 163-member committee were understood to be to drop "Progressive" from the party's official title, and write in a vote-catching social security plank calling for higher old age pensions.

Registration of official delegates, numbering 1,472 with votes and 795 alternates, will begin at Lansdowne Park late today. Indications were that close to the maximum attendance would be achieved, although early registration was likely to be slim. It will continue all day tomorrow, before and after the official opening at 2:30 p.m.

It became increasingly evident that the 342 voting delegates representing Quebec province were unlikely to support any one of the three leadership candidates en masse. Fleming appeared to have the strongest support among Quebec delegates, but others were active for Fulton and Diefenbaker.

Leon Balcer of Three Rivers, Que., president of the Conservative Association and French-speaking chairman of the convention, was understood to have not openly committed himself on the leadership issue. He announced last month that he would run for leader, but later withdrew.

Quebec followers of Premier Maurice Duplessis were believed to be ready to swing solidly behind University of Toronto President Sidney Smith, who reportedly had Duplessis' personal blessing, but Smith has declined to run.

DROUIN MAY RUN

Mark Drouin, a Quebec City lawyer and one-time vice-president of the National Conservative Association, said he considered running for leader in the absence of another candidate from Quebec.

Regired leader George Drew, scheduled to address the convention Wednesday has not indicated his preference in a successor, it was understood. He was not expected to make a choice between Fulton and Fleming if he decided to indicate his favorite in his convention farewell address.

hope that some of the 59 passengers and three crew would be found alive, replied dejectedly that the poor flying conditions did not help their chances.

There is still hope, he said, but storms in the mountains make the search operation a "pretty difficult thing." Authorities emphasized that the first day or so is crucial, since survivors, if there are any, might die of starvation, exposure or lack of medical care if not reached in time.

There was also the chance that a new fall of snow would cover the wreckage and make detection from the air impossible, possibly for weeks or months.

If worst fears are realized, it will be the worst crash in Canadian aviation history.

Fliers of the 18 aircraft which took part in Monday's search reported winds in the mountains that "just about put us on our back," and at times reaching a velocity of 90 miles an hour.

The extreme turbulence over the mountains was buffeting even the biggest planes.

Searchers and airlines' officials alike were mystified by the plane's disappearance without so much as a hint that it was in serious trouble.

A TCA official said that even if two engines had failed, the airliner should have been able to make it back to Vancouver. Failure of three engines was a "mathematical impossibility."

Capt. Art Rankin, western superintendent of TCA flying operations, said the plane was not on fire when it was last heard from.

JUST SMUGGLED OUT OF CHINA

Only Son Missing On TCA Airliner

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vivian Clarke dreamed Sunday night that she and her pilot husband were together on an enchanted flight through star-filled skies, with shimmering snow beneath them on the mountains.

Then she learned that her husband Allan, formerly of Montreal, was missing along with 61 other persons aboard a Trans-Canada Airlines plane.

Mrs. Clarke said Monday she and her husband celebrated their wedding anniversary just before he left on the eastbound flight. The celebration had been delayed a week because he was fogbound in Winnipeg. He gave her a drop necklace in Indian mosaic.

She described how she reacted to the news that her husband was missing:

"I was dreaming that we were both up flying. I used to be stewardess on his flight, you see. And it was a beautiful night. Smooth. Stars. Snow on the mountain... so I thought it was all part of the dream."

She broke off. "I told the two boys at breakfast. I told them Daddy might not be back in time to get the Christmas cards away."

COBALT, Ont. (CP)—A Chinese restaurateur today tearfully awaited news of his son, smuggled out of Communist China last week and now listed among 62 persons aboard the lost Trans-Canada Air Lines plane.

George Woon said he paid a "substantial" amount to a black market organization in the Canton area of China to have his son, Elia Woon Yuen Way, 18, smuggled into Hong Kong. The youth flew from Hong Kong to Vancouver during the weekend and there boarded the North Star airliner, now missing in the British Columbia interior.

"He is my only boy," sobbed Mr. Woon. "I have three daughters."

Dynamic Policy NATO's Goal

'Wise Men' Rewrite Report
After Anglo-French Suez Actions

By ALAN HARVEY, Canadian Press Staff Writer
PARIS (CP)—Atlantic Pact ministers today launched an urgent effort to restore Western unity and shape a dynamic joint political policy.

The ministers opened their four-day council meeting against the sombre background of tougher Russian tactics and discord over Suez policy.

In formal session at the Palais de Chaillot and in private talks, the Atlantic partners will attempt wide-ranging reappraisal of the seven-year alliance.

Two main overlapping objectives are:

1. Restore normal friendly relations between the United States and Britain and France.

What one NATO official called the "great reconciliation" already has started with separate meetings of State Secretary Dulles of the U.S., and foreign ministers Selwyn Lloyd of Britain and Christian Pineau of France.

2. Draw up a political directive designed to prevent episodes on the Suez model.

Dulles today delivered a 50-minute address at the council's opening session, calling upon the Atlantic Pact powers to recognize the importance of working through the United Nations and condemning the "use of force as an instrument of national policy."

In the main Dulles avoided any direct recriminations against Britain and France. He paid warm tribute to the two countries for complying promptly and unreservedly with the UN demand for the withdrawal of their troops.

Pearson is reported to have rewritten political provisions of the "wise men" report after the Anglo-French action in Egypt, inserting more forceful phrases.

On the way to today's meeting Pearson called on Dulles at the American Embassy.

Martino, the chairman, said the recent rift between the three western powers showed that no action should be undertaken by a NATO country that might endanger Atlantic solidarity.

"Events have demonstrated that our security is incomplete if our co-operation leaves out of account spheres of action extending beyond the area of our alliance."

Referring to Soviet penetration of the Middle East, he added:

"It seems hardly necessary to draw your attention to the importance of this Soviet move which aims at the control of the Suez Canal and of the oil fields with the intention to undermine not only western defence but also, by depriving us of essential supplies, to weaken western economies."

A major topic of discussion will be a proposed secret policy directive, drafted by the ministers' permanent council in Paris, which if accepted would put increased dependence on the modern weapons of warfare with a consequent reduction in manpower.

Lord Ismay, NATO secretary-general, gave reporters this explanation of the thinking behind such a policy:

"It is doubtful whether any Allied nation can contribute more money towards defence

Short-Term Parking Plan Drawn Up

A businessmen's committee concerned with downtown short-term parking will bring proposals to city council for action, Ald. Arthur Dowell said Monday.

He told a meeting of Victoria public works committee, of which he is chairman, the committee has been formed. But he could not elaborate on its intentions.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgell said the city works committee should take the lead, should explore formation of a parking authority such as Vancouver's Downtown Parking Commission and arrange a meeting with the businessmen's group.

The public works committee also gave study to the problem of all-day parkers in downtown fringe areas, who plug residential home fronts. A traffic sub-committee will be asked to consider recommending a two-hour limit throughout the affected area.

The committee revived discussion of one civic improvement which has been periodically aired and forgotten—possible construction of a bridge across Rock Bay which would take commercial traffic off Government and Douglas and relieve the Fountain Circle.

Ald. Dowell said it might cost "a couple of million dollars". The committee asked city engineer James C. Garnett to explore possibilities.

The committee was asked by Victoria Chamber of Commerce to repair the seaplane float in inner harbor.

It was pointed out most planes using the float have business with government departments. It was recommended the provincial government make the repairs to the float.

$1.3 Billion Aid Extended Britain

Monetary Fund Credits Will Assist
U.K. Ride Out Financial Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—Britain has been extended credits of $1,300,000,000 by the International Monetary Fund to help her ride out a financial storm brought on primarily by the Middle East crisis.

The action was announced Monday night by the 60-country fund created in 1947 to help governments caught in such situations to maintain stable currencies.

Of the credit advanced, $561,740,000 is designed to add to Britain's monetary reserves, which have sunk below the $2,000,000,000 figure regarded by the London government as a minimum for safe financial dealings.

The additional $738,530,000 was made available upon request of the British government at any time within the next 12 months.

Anglican Vicar Unfrocked

CHESTER, Eng. (Reuters)—A Church of England court today unfrocked a vicar who was found alive in Switzerland and living with a woman after allegedly faking death by drowning.

There were two complaints against the clergyman, Rev. Philip Wilson Ross, 52. The first was that in the summer of 1955 he "wilfully abandoned the pastoral care" of his parish at Woodford, Chester, in such a way as to deceive people into believing he was dead.

Second was that from August, 1955, to November 17, 1956, he had "habitually committed adultery."

The vicar did not appear in court but filed an admission of the charges and consented to sentence.

His wife, family, and parishioners mourned him last year when he vanished after ostensibly going swimming. His clothes were found on the beach.

Your surest approach to freedom from tooth decay is twice-yearly visits to your dentist... proper diet...and regular daily brushings with an advanced dentifrice like new BRISK fluoride toothpaste

Scientists have known for years that tooth decay was virtually nonexistent in some areas of Canada and the United States. The reason was a natural supply of fluoride in the drinking water. Prompted by this finding, Colgate-Palmolive created Brisk Fluoride Toothpaste. While the dental profession feels that further positive clinical confirmation is needed to establish fluoride's dramatic results when used in a dentifrice, laboratory tests indicate that it offers definite benefits. Brisk Fluoride Toothpaste exclusively combines sodium fluoride with the previously-proven decay-fighter (Sodium N-Lauryl Sarcosinate). Together these features add up to the greatest potential advancement ever offered by a dentifrice... yours only through Brisk Fluoride Toothpaste.

Only Colgate's BRISK has Fluoride/85

Brings out natural whiteness of teeth

Brisk tingling flavour... Keeps breath fresh all day... Brings out natural whiteness of teeth.

Fluoride/85 not only gives you sodium fluoride, but also provides a tested decay acid fighter Sodium N-Lauryl Sarcosinate that starts working instantly... keeps working all day against the formation of harmful decay-causing acids.

Regular brushing after eating, if possible, with Colgate's exclusive New BRISK formula helps protect teeth in adults and children over 6, instantly stops bad breath, brings out all the natural whiteness of your teeth.

Hall Votes and the Future

RESIDENTS OF VICTORIA, Saanich and Oak Bay will vote this week on issues which will decide for some time to come the possibility of closer integration of services under the control of their respective councils.

In the city and Saanich the question is phrased in clear terms. Voters are asked if they wish to continue investigation of the possibilities of a joint city hall and pooling of selected services. In Oak Bay property owners are requested to support a $275,000 money by-law for a new municipal hall.

If the Oak Bay by-law passes with the required majority, it will discourage hopes of early amalgamation. That, in itself, will not prevent unification of certain services. Such unification becomes inevitable in specific fields as municipal evolution continues.

Failure to appreciate this fact and to act accordingly will ultimately relieve the council of control over some lines of activity as force of circumstances leads to the creation of metropolitan boards. Once established these agencies frequently act independently of councils.

In the city and Saanich the public has the chance to instruct its representatives to follow the wise course of giving further study to a joint hall proposal and pooling of selected services.

That seems the rational procedure to follow. The natural growth of this community has little regard to the artificial boundaries of municipalities. More and more the inter-dependence of one entity on another is becoming apparent. To gain the greatest advantages from such developments the old parochial prides of an earlier day must disappear and complementary administrations must look ahead to concerted action on community problems.

The trend of tax rates in recent years should, in itself, indicate the advisability of closer integration. The old bugbear of high city taxes is losing its impressiveness as the rates of the other municipalities draw closer into line with those of Victoria. As improvements proceed in the municipalities the differences will be even further reduced.

The arguments in favor of amalgamation have been repeated continuously over the years in these columns. They should be understood by readers.

It is important, however, to emphasize the point that votes on municipal halls this week will greatly assist or greatly hinder constructive efforts toward unity for the community.

That is the issue which citizens are asked to keep in mind as they mark their ballots on Thursday in the city and Saturday in the municipalities.

There Is No Comparison

WHATEVER MAY BE THE verdict of history on the Anglo-French military intervention in Egypt, the fact cannot be disputed that the two allies have complied with United Nations resolutions in regard both to a cease-fire and the withdrawal of troops. The Egyptian incident therefore ceases to be an alleged "parallel" to which Russia can point when defending its actions in Hungary. For the Soviet Union, along with its puppet regime in Hungary, has refused even to permit United Nations observers to study the Hungarian situation at first hand.

The communist conduct throughout the Hungarian trouble has been in flagrant disregard of the rights of nations under the UN Charter, as well as of any moral obligation to observe the majority opinion of the world body. The situation has reached a point where the United Nations is considering retaliation against Hungary by refusing that country's spokesman the right to speak in the Assembly.

Under discussion, too, is a resolution calling for denunciation of Russia for "depriving Hungary of its liberty and independence," and a demand that the Soviet withdraw its military forces immediately.

Whatever means Moscow may take to reject this challenge—whether by ignoring it or refusing it—the true nature of the Soviet course will be exposed. It is so far removed from the Anglo-French action that no comparison remains.

Operation Noah

WHILE SCORES OF CITY RESIDENTS continued today to count flood costs in dollars and heartbreak, one feature of the emergency stood out on the credit side.

When the flooding occurred, there were willing hands to help those in need. The way in which various groups and individuals volunteered their services and, disregarding personal considerations, went to the assistance of others will be remembered not only by the people who were helped but by the entire city.

This is the type of response which gives a town grounds for pride in the spirit of its people.

Identical conditions to those on Sunday may never be repeated in a lifetime. Yet it speaks well for the citizens of this community that in an emergency they knew what to do and did it without thought for reward.

Lacking such action the results could have been far more serious—might even have justified some of the almost hysterical reports broadcast from the city.

Reconciliation Must Be Gradual

MORE THAN ORDINARY SIGNIFICANCE is attached to President Eisenhower's recent appointment of a new commissioner of education.

The appointee is Dr. Lawrence Griddle Dethrick, a man born and educated in the South. He is, as well, an educator of competence, held in high esteem by his fellow school administrators and a person closely in touch with sentiment in Tennessee, where he has spent his professional life.

While Dr. Dethrick was superintendent of Chattanooga's schools, the city's school board voted for desegregation and then, under pressure of pro-segregationists, reversed itself. Such experience gives the new official first-hand knowledge of present limits in the move to lift the color bar entirely from schools in accordance with the U.S. Supreme Court's rulings.

He is in a position to act with wisdom in the gradual reconciliation of the southern states to the ruling of the court. And the reconciliation cannot be other than gradual because of the traditional and emotional elements involved in the question.

Under him the extremists of both sides should be held in check and the integration concept should evolve rationally.

Books for Central Saanich

CENTRAL SAANICH IS AGAIN concerned over the cost of library service it receives from the bookmobile.

Opinions have been expressed at public meetings that charges are too high and that adequate service could be supplied at much less than the $6,000 a year now required.

The thoughtful people of Central Saanich no doubt have analysed such arguments. They might draw interesting information from the most recent report of the Canadian Library Association which made a study of library possibilities on the basis of population.

That authoritative body found that complete, independent municipal library service was not feasible for centres of less than 25,000 population and that the cost for such would run to approximately $37,500 a year. Central Saanich has a population of roughly 2,400. Conceivably it could create for itself a modified circulating library with limited book supplies for something less than $6,000 a year. How much that would allow for a librarian's salary and for purchase of books is a matter which Central Saanich has probably investigated.

At all events, such a scheme would not enable the municipality to draw on the 115,000 volumes, including expensive technical books, which the present arrangement with the Victoria Public Library provides.

Central Saanich should have no illusions about the results of a policy of "going it alone" in the library field. Nor should residents ignore the fact that they can only have what they pay for. On that basis they seem to be enjoying a favorable arrangement with the public library at bargain rates.

Teeth at Last!

THE OTTAWA SCENE

By VICTOR MACKIE

The Tribune's Kiss of Death

PRIME Minister St. Laurent's condemnation of the major powers, in particular Britain and France, during the recent special session of parliament, has brought him high praise from embarrassing sources. Such was the unwanted tribute paid editorially by the Chicago Tribune when it described Mr. St. Laurent's remarks as representing "an encouraging growth of the isolationist spirit." The Tribune, never regarded with much favor among Canadian Liberals, both large "L" and small "l", purred that the prime minister had added to his stature "as a Canadian nationalist, which is to say patriot." Thoughtful members of the Liberal party were worried after Mr. St. Laurent made that speech, with reason.

Controversy

Agriculture Minister Gardiner can almost always be depended upon to stir up some controversy when he speaks these days. His opening remarks to the federal-provincial agricultural conference aroused criticism among many delegates when he suggested that Canada had at least as high a standard of living among her farm population as could be found anywhere among farmers.

Most delegates muttered that the American farmer enjoyed a higher living standard. Later when they had their chance to speak, provincial ministers and representatives of farm organizations suggested that Mr. Gardiner's contention was open to attack. They argued that the Canadian farmer was not obtaining his fair share of the national income.

First

A "first" was established during the agricultural conference at Ottawa. A joint delegation from the Interprovincial Farm Union Council and the Canadian Congress of Labor met with representatives of the cabinet to present a joint submission. It was the first time representatives of organized labor had joined with a farmers' organization to interview the Cabinet. They said they were like "old pals" together.

Submission

The joint farm-labor delegation dealt with the problems of agriculture and the farm implement industry. The representatives of organized labor pointed out in a subsequent press conference, that they were well aware that the farm implement industry would be in difficulties so long as the Canadian farmer was in financial difficulties. J. L. Phelps.

chairman of the Canadian Farmer-Labor economic council, emphasized for newspapermen the fact that organized labor and the farmers were becoming increasingly aware of the need to work together to solve their problems.

Dispute

During the press conference a representative of an Ontario newspaper suggested it was difficult to reconcile the viewpoints of farmers with the viewpoints of organized labor. Representatives of the Interprovincial Farm Council and the Canadian Labor Congress blandly assured the reporter that the farmer and organized labor's representatives were indeed reconciled and working together.

Such friendliness between organized labor and representatives of western farmers might mean that western farmers would soon find that farm workers were being organized, this correspondent suggested. Mr. Phelps insisted that he personally would have no objection to employing farm workers on his farm who were organized provided the western farmer obtained his fair share of the national income.

Refugees

The speed with which Hungarian refugees are being cleared and sent on their way to Canada, while warranted from a humanitarian point of view, brings up the question of security. Under normal procedure refugees are checked closely to determine if they would have Communist sympathies that might make them bad security risks once they settled in Canada.

With the flow of Hungarian refugees being moved speedily into this country it is possible that the Communist party might seek to plant agents. This is a possibility that is not being overlooked by the government agencies responsible for guarding against subversive operations within Canada.

Antagonism

Walter Tucker, member of parliament for Saskatchewan's Rosthern constituency attended the NATO parliamentary conference in Paris last month. He reported on his return that there was a strong anti-American sentiment present among European delegates to the NATO meeting.

The Europeans were of the opinion that the Suez and Israeli difficulties had worsened because of American fumbling and bumbling in its Middle East policies. When the situation flared into a shooting war the Europeans blamed the United States and were blunt in their condemnation of the role being played by the Americans. Mr. Tucker was worried about the effect such anti-American sentiment might have on the strength of NATO.

As Our Readers See It

Thanks for the Push

May I take this opportunity through your paper to say many thanks to a group of Naval Cadets who came to our aid during the storm on Tuesday night. We were stalled on the hill just outside of the dockyard. About six of them came to our assistance, got us on the move then went to the aid of others. If they should read this, I say again thanks fellows for the good deed!

We Weren't There Because...

I can tell you why I and perhaps some other people stayed away from the discussion on "Whether Education Is Expensive."

We are the people who, for some reason or another, are not fortunate enough to have children at present, and perhaps may never have them. We receive no income tax deductions, no family allowance cheques, but we are expected to not only help pay for other people's children to be educated in nice new schools but smile happily while we do it!

If we dare open our mouths about education, schools or anything to do with children there is the inevitable kind person who will ask what we know about the subject as we have no children.

And many of us are certainly not in the fortunate position of the gentleman who stated that his tax bill is the cheapest bill that comes into his house! How many Cadillacs does he own?

Everyone in Canada is not on the gravy-train and "a few extra dollars" added to our taxes every year do mean a lot to us.

So you see it wasn't just "apathy" that kept some of us away from that discussion. We just didn't feel like wasting our time.

"WIDOW."

How Stupid...

In your letter column a question was asked—"How stupid can we get?" Stupidity seems to be progressive at least in this community.

Here are a few examples. First—"the totem in the bush" as one writer aptly described it, is a glaring example. After all the careful and expert handling, it was placed in the hands of bunglers to select a site, but it is not too late to move it to its proper setting, in Thunderbird Park where anybody and everybody may see without walking a mile.

Next is the dizzy tilt at the Fountain where all the traffic from main highways is funneled into one bottleneck.

Third is the proposed race track at Beaver Lake where all the drainage from stables and thousands of people would drain into the Lake where bathing and picnicking is becoming increasingly popular, and the Health authorities sit on the side lines, sound asleep.

And last but not least is our water supply and the watershed. Some years ago, shortly after the concrete flow line was completed from Sooke Lake to the reservoir, copper sulphate (Bluestone) was used in an attempt to destroy algae and vegetation in the lake. Over the years tons of this poison was used without appreciable result—only to kill fish, snakes, frogs and other water life.

The dead and dying drifted down to the intake at the dam, where—believe it or not—samples were taken for bacterial examination!

Copper sulphate is an acid salt and most corrosive to iron pipe and to concrete. It also has a tendency to harden water. It has not been used for some years but it goes to show how stupid we can get.

And now they propose to destroy the forest cover. The mayor said a short time ago that the watershed needed cleaning up. If there is anything that needs cleaning up, it is the water board and its advisors. The watershed is not the only place with rotten timber.

For some years the dripping jaws of timber pirates have been eager to devour that timber.

Here is what the National Geographic, in a splendid article in the September issue, has to say about watersheds: "You must keep the watersheds in cover, whatever is best suited to individual soil, climate and degree of slope is the best cover as a rule. For most steep watersheds, in this country, the prime cover is forest. How does a forest protect a watershed? Dropped leaves, needles, dead limbs and plants, even the fallen bodies of trees help form top soil. This precious material, the trees bind with their roots so that neither wind nor water can dislodge it."

Now, how stupid can we get?

J. B. ADAMS.

758 Gorge Road, West.

Garbage

I am a puzzled taxpayer and would like to voice a little protest to the confused middle of our garbage disposal controversy.

1. We have the brickyard disposal project, which was given a sound thrashing by the people of that district.

2. There was the $50,000 for a new disposal wharf, so we could still have the bottles, tin cans, grapefruit and orange skins floating in on shore and decorating our coast line.

3. The Garbage Pulverizer plan that would cost the city nothing and provide free fertilizer for local parks, also saving the city a large amount of money per year.

4. A very costly plan to bury garbage at Thetis Lake Park, in a swamp, the equipment costing $78,000 with a yearly outlay of another $18,000 for upkeep, poor taxpayer.

Of the four above systems I would think No. 3 seems to be the sanest most healthy and the most saving to the taxpayers' pocket. I don't know if this plan was devised by the Health Department, the Engineer's Department or the Council, but I would think before the last mentioned No. 4 project is considered, our council should enlighten us more on the No. 3 project.

Another thing that is objectionable to No. 4 project is that I and any other citizen whether taxpayer or not, wouldn't relish picnicking on a swamp that has been filled with garbage, as the gasses of the decomposing trash would penetrate the soil cover, and there are many places along our water fronts where the ground has been undisturbed for centuries and would be more preferable to everyone.

Where are the voices of our McMillans and the other vocal members of our progressive Council? Are they leaving this subject to a one man dictation project?

I would like to see other taxpayers voice their opinions on this subject through the medium of your valuable paper column.

J. R. SCOTT.

437 Arnold Avenue.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

Where War Might Start

A SERIOUS study of Soviet Premier Bulganin's November 20th letter to President Eisenhower, and of a possible American response to it, is now going on at the highest levels of government.

The study could conceivably lead to an absolutely basic change in American policy and indeed in the whole world situation. When the Bulganin letter was received, the first instinct in the White House and the State Department was to dismiss it out of hand as propaganda designed to divert attention from the Hungarian bloodbath then still in progress.

The letter was certainly full of the usual propaganda. But the letter also contained what seemed to be a serious proposal for a mutual 500-mile withdrawal of all armed forces from a demilitarized zone in central Europe.

This zone, Bulganin proposed, was to be subject to both ground and air inspection by both sides, in accordance with the President's "open skies" proposal.

A 500-mile withdrawal would mean pulling American forces right out of Germany, and there is no place for them elsewhere in Western Europe. But it would also mean pulling the Red Army right out of East Germany, and indeed out of most of Poland. There is not a single expert on the German situation who doubts for a moment that the East German Communist government would almost instantly cease to exist if the Red Army were withdrawn.

Significant Proposal

It was the President himself, after a hurried briefing, who caught the significance of the Bulganin proposal, and ordered that it should not be waved aside as propaganda, and that a high level study of it should be made.

The significance of this Presidential decision is underlined by the fact that there is a growing body of responsible opinion that a third world war is inevitable unless there is some basic change in the German situation.

When the Hungarian rebellion was at its height, East Germany very nearly went the way of Hungary—far more nearly than is generally recognized here.

An East German rebellion was probably only averted because the West German government (with the full knowledge and approval of the American government) used all its power and influence to avert it.

The danger was greatest when thousands of Germans in West Berlin demonstrated against the Soviet bloodbath in Hungary, and then made for the Brandenburg Gate to cross into Communist East Berlin.

On orders from the Adenauer government, the West Berlin police used very tough measures indeed to prevent the crossing. The whole West German secret service apparatus was also used to hold down the seething ferment in East Germany.

Thus the explosion was averted—but quite possibly only for the time being, according to competent judges. Winter is not a good time for rebellions, but a Hungary-style uprising in East Germany in the spring is not to be ruled out.

And if one considers the possible consequences, it is easy to see why the West German and American governments (shades of "liberation") are almost as anxious as the Kremlin to avoid an explosion.

Close Contact

Germany is the only place in the world where the armed forces of the two main antagonists are in close contact. There is no international border between the two Germanies, as between Hungary and Austria. There is only an artificial line, even now regularly crossed by Germans in both directions.

In such circumstances, there would be no way on earth to isolate the explosion, as in Hungary. West Germans—and probably units of the heavily armed West German police—would flood across the line to help their compatriots. The two Germanies would meld together, and somehow, somewhere—most probably in Berlin—the fatal first shots of the Third World War would be exchanged between the American and Soviet forces.

There are responsible officials who believe—or perhaps hope is a better word—that this nightmare prospect is now as vivid to the Kremlin as to the American government, and that the Kremlin may really be searching for a way out. There are other equally responsible officials who contend that the Soviets will never, under any circumstances, withdraw the Red Army from East Germany, just because they know that the Communist Pankov government could not survive without it. But in view of the terrible dangers inherent in an East German explosion, the President is surely right in asking for a good hard look at the Kremlin's real intentions.

Doubtful Waistband Triumph

ABOUT this time two years ago I bought myself a rather special pair of slacks. I thought they'd give me a casually elegant look during the Christmas-New Year "dropping in" period. My sports jacket was a little frayed at the cuffs, but I had an almost new golden-yellow gabardine sports shirt that I could don with an easy insouciance instead of a coat.

The cut of the slacks was important because I had planned to wear them without suspenders. I'm past the stage where I take an inordinate pride in braces with big "Police" buckles on them.

My hope was that I'd have that debonair ex-athlete look, but not too ex. It was a good hope. But by the day Christmas dinner had come and gone I looked more like the football than the football player. The elegant slacks developed a V-neck. The waistband just wouldn't meet.

Last year I overcame the difficulty by sticking to draped trousers and a double-breasted jacket. The drapes usually hang from suspenders. When I use a belt, they're caught fetchingly at the waist, as the women's page phrases it, with a ruffle at the top. After Christmas dinner they had only a very modest V-neck and the gap was covered by the jacket.

This year I have again bought a pair of thoughtfully casual slacks. And again I hope to appear negligently sporty in shirt and trousers only.

It requires no great association of ideas to transform these aromas into the visual delight of a groaning table. Nor much inspiration to transform the groans to me as I lurch away from that table.

Secretly I doubt that I'll be in, or have, the proper shape for a pair of elegant slacks after this ordeal of delight. Lacking the nerve to wear a Roman toga—which all men should wear for Christmas dinner—I think a dressing gown and pyjamas with an extended draw-string will be my postprandial style.

All this, I suppose, may sound very vulgar. It is nothing of the kind. The way I eat at Christmas is merely a very genuine gesture of appreciation to a superlative cook. If the boss of our house is going to slave over a hot stove for the next few days, far be it from me to withhold the tribute which is most sincere. I'll eat myself a yard beyond my waistband before I'll hurt her feelings.

SHORT FAST

Still, I'd like to be able to wear those slacks sometime before next spring. I've thought of fasting for the next couple of weeks in preparation for the day of big intake. If I dropped 10 or a dozen pounds I figure I could shrink the distance around my equator. But I'd also shrink my stomach and wouldn't be able to do justice to the dinner.

So it'll have to be moderation at the feast. I can't skip the turkey, naturally. That's one of the substantial things about Christmas. For the same reason I'll have to take my share of mince pie and Christmas cake.

Maybe I can go a little lightly on the sprouts and conceivably I can pass up the Jap oranges and candy.

But at all events, I'll do without the salted almonds. They're the coup de grace.

Come to think of it, I never have felt uncomfortably full at Christmas until after the salted almonds. Maybe they're the complete cause of my trouble.

I'll avoid them this year, and if that doesn't keep my waistline in, well, it's easy enough to try another experiment at Christmas time next year. Anyhow, the slacks will look newer for the Easter Parade if I don't wear them until April.

Canada Helping U.S. Devise New Disarmament Plan

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — A new international disarmament plan, which might propose modifications on nuclear bomb tests and a ban on long-range guided missiles, is being drawn up by the United States in consultation with its key allies, diplomatic sources said Monday night.

The consultations are being held with Britain, France and Canada. They are expected to lead to an early agreement on the program, which is to be submitted to the United Nations General Assembly next year.

The program will seek to break the long-standing disarmament deadlock with Moscow and in effect will be a reply to the Soviet Union's own proposals submitted by Soviet Premier Bulganin to President Eisenhower last month.

In their present form, the United States proposals were said by informed sources to include:

1. The outlawing of "push-button warfare" by banning the use of long-range guided missiles if a fool-proof system of inspection is accepted by the Soviet Union.

2. An attempt to reach agreement with the Soviet Union on the regulation of the testing of atomic bombs and other nuclear devices.

President Eisenhower has rejected the idea of actual ban on nuclear tests in the present world situation.

But he was said to feel that a useful start might be made towards breaking the disarmament deadlock under a system of "registering" each test in advance through the United Nations.

Boy Chokes Actor to Death During Robbery Attempt

CHICAGO (UP) — A 17-year-old boy admitted beating and choking veteran actor Malcolm Lee Beggs to death in an attempt to ransack his apartment. Beggs, who had been playing the part of a general in the Loop stage play "No Time for Sergeants," was found dead in his blood-spattered room.

Police also found Robert Mitchell, 17, St. Louis, Mo., and Haskell Kellems, 18, Pekin, Ill., in the room. Beggs started his stage career when he was five years old. He had appeared in New York productions of "Arsenic and Old Lace," "Seventh Heaven" and "Mr. Wonderful."

Active effort and extensive research are necessary to deal intelligently with our traffic and parking problems. He has the ability and can give the added time necessary.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

'No-Doze' Not 'Nodoz'

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

Recently in my column entitled, "The Driver Who Goes to Sleep at the Wheel," I discussed the use of pills by truck drivers to help them keep awake. I indicated that some pills use amphetamine or Dexedrine or Benzedrine. I also reported that while some authorities were critical of the use of pills containing such substance, others did not believe they produced bad results. I referred to such pills as "no-doz" pills, a word which I made up, as a sort of descriptive term. I am now informed that Harrison Products, Inc. of California manufactures and sells a mild stimulant to combat fatigue and restore mental alertness under the trade name "NODOZ" and that this product contains none of these above ingredients. In fact, I am informed that its stimulant content is caffeine which, of course, is the same stimulant that is contained in coffee. Of course I did not intend to refer to the product of the Harrison company, particularly since it contains none of the three ingredients to which I referred in my column.

MUSCLE CRAMPS IN THE LEGS

Many persons have asked me to write again on the painful cramps that often make a man jump out of bed at night, to walk up and down. Only walking up and down will cause the muscle spasm to let go.

I know that I can get these cramps very easily by not drinking milk once a day or by drinking too much coffee. Some physicians have told me that they can get the cramps any time they want to, just by taking more than three cups of coffee a day. Many of my patients have gotten relief simply by taking a daily glass of milk. When the cramps are bad, and when, perhaps, the person is allergic to milk or is nauseated by it, if he (or she) will buy a bottle of syrup of glycerinate of calcium and take a tablespoonful at bed-time, he will usually get relief. Many doctors give a dose of quinine at bed-time. I haven't had much luck with this treatment, but apparently it works in some cases.

WHAT'S THE SCORE? BY Denny Boyd

OVERFLOW FROM THE SHRINE BOWL . . .
Water goes wonderfully well with Strait swimmers or whisky drinks but it is a poor mixer for the game of football, except when served up in the trainer's bucket.
The huge dribble that inundated Vancouver last weekend did more than ruin a football game; it changed the entire phonetic aspect of the game. Instead of the normal manly sounds of the crash, whump and crunch of hard bodies on leather padding, the sounds that echoed soggly off Empire Stadium were a wet symphony of plop, sploosh and gurgle.

A few of the Western All-Stars tried hard to be nice about it but they just couldn't make it sound convincing, not when they tried to pin their 35-0 victory over the East on "the breaks."

After Saturday's Shrine game in Vancouver, members of both teams were treated to a civic reception featured by smoked salmon, caviar, broiled scallops and cream cheese fancies.

Frankie Anderson, the magnificently destructive defensive end of the Edmonton Eskimos, clutched the East's Vince Scott by the arm and said with all obvious sincerity, "Honest, Vince, I wouldn't have had it happen like that for the world. Really, we didn't beat you so bad; we just got a couple of breaks early in the game."

"Yeah," said Scott, "you guys got the biggest break when they blew the first whistle."

Jackie Parker chewed on a voluptuous leg of turkey and said, "Now hold on, man. Just 'cause we beat them a bit today, it doesn't mean you can go on saying the West is this and that and the East is such and such. Those boys played real hard but we got the breaks."

The West's coach, Frank "Pop" Ivy, looking back at a season that saw his Eskimos win the Grey Cup for the third straight year and his All-Stars win the Shrine game, stroked his bald pate reflectively and allowed, "You can't hardly improve on a year like that, can you now?"

Ivy said that old-timer Buddy Tinsley, the veteran Winnipeg linesman, had provided much of the West's spark and Ivy's biggest personal kick.

"Of Buddy was leading the defensive team. Every time our offence lost the ball, Buddy'd leap up from the bench, whoopin' and wavin' his arm, and say, 'C'mon, you defence; we'll let them eastern boys have the ball for two plays and then make 'em give it back to us.'"

Eastern players found the weather so cold that members coming onto the field carried their parkas to the huddle and handed them to players leaving the game so they wouldn't get frozen before they reached the bench.

Huge Calvin Jones was very much alive during the game, the Winnipeg guard showing all the qualities that made him last year's cover boy on most American sports publications. Asked if it had been a rough game, Jones sipped a deserved beer, fingered his filleted nose and replied, "It's always rough when you play it tough."

If that was to be Jones last football game, it was a great one.

The last play of the game was so pitiful, it was funny. Eastern quarterback Sam Etcheverry, tired of trying to throw through Anderson, Jones, Gordy Sturtridge and Tinsley, took himself off the hook by pitching out to Tony Curcillo and letting Curcillo do the passing.

On the second to last play of the game, Curcillo was black-jacked for a nine-yard loss.

On the next one, Curcillo was trapped and, with vengeful presence of mind, he threw the ball right back at Sam with tit-for-tat petulance.

Apparently as angry as surprised at getting the accused ball back again, Sam paused briefly, knowing full well that he had to run, as the rules do not permit two forward passes on the same play.

So Sam looked over the line of scrimmage and, in an almost sneaky motion, threw a pass.

His receiver dropped it.

It was just the kind of play you would expect a 35-0 game to end on.

VCC Up to Hacks In Weather Grief

By BILL RAYNER

It was one of those weeks, too, at Victoria Curling Club.

Last Tuesday night during the height of the blizzard that snowed Victoria under, power went off at VCC for a period of two hours during the club draw, shutting off lights, heat, curling and everything but shadowy camaraderie in the locker room.

Then on Sunday the elements got in the last rock once more during the heavy downpour. Basement locker room and lounge suffered considerable flooding but club manager Fred Madden reported everything dried up and reasonably under control by Monday.

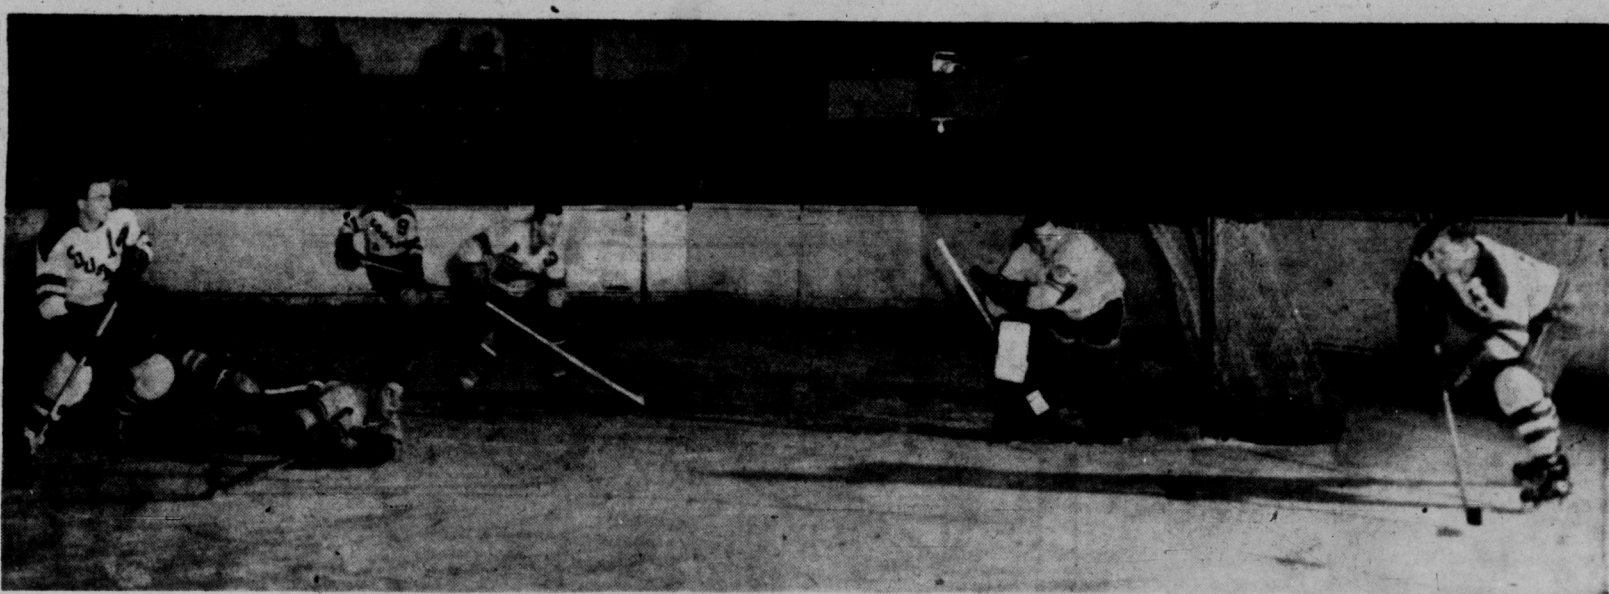

On the bonspiel front, commercial spiel officials, who optimistically set a limit of 96 entries for their annual event, which opens at VCC on Dec. 23, will now settle for a round total of 72 rinks as the deadline nears for registration.
Up to Monday evening a total of 56 rinks have entered the bonspiel. Closing date for entries is 9 p.m. this Sunday. It is hoped that last year's total of 72 rinks will be reached by then.

Victoria Curling Club's own annual 'spiel, set for March 18-23, is already receiving attention from out-of-town quarters.

Larry Marshall, back from the Totem Bonspiel in Vancouver last week, reports that four mainland rinks have signified their intention of entering, while manager Madden, who has braved Sunday's storm to take a visiting rink up to Port Alberni for a friendly game, brought back four Port Alberni entries for the annual shindig.

And still on the bonspiel front, the first senior men's 'spiel to be held Dec. 22-28, has attracted 43 senior members of the club to date. Entries can be made at the office.

In the club draw, Tony Gutowski remains the only undefeated skip, leading A Division with a total of 23 points on 10 wins and a tie. Other division leaders are Gardiner in B Division with 20 points; Sturrock in C Division with 19 points; Goodfellow in D Division with 18 points.

ALL EYES TURN TO COLIN

Eyes of both friend and foe alike focus with undivided attention on Victoria Cougar coach Colin Kilburn, extreme right, as he waits a goalmouth pass from Doug Macauley (14) during the WHL game at

Memorial Arena Monday night against Brandon. While Macauley and teammate Doug Anderson (9); Bob Chrystal, on ice; Vic Lynn (3) and goalie Lucien Dechene of the Regals look on with either antici-

tion or apprehension, Kilburn's shot was stopped by Dechene and Regals went on to win, 3-1. Official eyes, too, were on Kilburn who was thrown out with game misconduct penalty. (Halkett Photo.)

EASTERN TEAM ACCUSED

Gridders Deny Strike Threat

By The Canadian Press

The 1956 East-West All-Star football game, organized under the slogan "Strong legs will run so that weak legs may walk," has been haunted by reports of pre-game squabbles over money.

Almost before the game—proceeds of which went to crippled children's hospitals in Winnipeg and Montreal—was over, rumors began to circulate that players on the eastern team were dissatisfied with financial arrangements.

Hal Pawson, sports editor of the Edmonton Journal, said in his column Monday that eastern players had threatened to strike if they did not receive their demands and played only because they were told if they did not it would mean the end of their football careers in Canada.

The strike threat was denied by two officials in charge of arrangements for the game and by an eastern player.

In Toronto, Harry McBrien, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Rugby Union, said there never was a strike threat. In Winnipeg, Ralph Misener, chairman of the CRU's Shrine committee, said "it's nonsense; just the figment of somebody's imagination."

He said a committee went to officials just before the game and asked that winning players' shares be raised to $400 and expenses each from $350 and expenses and that the losing players' share be $300 and expenses instead of $250 and expenses.

PLAYERS DISAPPOINTED
A second version of the story came from Montreal, where the Alouettes' centre, Tom Hugo, admitted the eastern players were "very disappointed" with the treatment they received in Vancouver, but said the strike angle was "a lot of baloney."

He said a committee had indeed been formed, but "we didn't get to see anyone except a man named McBrien of Toronto, who had arranged to get the players to Vancouver."

Hugo said he and the others only wanted the same treatment as they had been given in Toronto at the first all-star game last year. "Many of the boys paid their own expenses to Vancouver and they felt that these should be reimbursed and that they should be given an advance to take care of such things as dry cleaning and laundry."

They are Gordon Sturtridge, 27; Mel Becket, 27; Ray Synnyk, 23, and Mario DeMarco, all of the Saskatchewan Roughriders, and Calvin Jones, 23, of Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Sturtridge was accompanied by his wife.

The accident recalled another plane crash that was costly to Canadian sport 23 years ago.

On March 31, 1933, a trimotor plane carrying the Winnipeg Tolars, Canadian senior men's basketball champions, home from a series in Tulsa, Okla., crashed at Neodesha, Kan. Two team members, Mike Shea and Joe Dodds, were among the six persons killed. Seven members of the club were injured.

The accident knocked the club out of competition for some time and it never again won the Canadian title.

Football officials here said the loss of the TCA plane had an ironic twist for Saskatchewan Roughriders who had four players aboard. During the regular football season, the club normally avoids travelling by air. Inter-city trips are made by train whenever possible.

Most clubs in the Western Interprovincial Football Union travel regularly by air. Sturtridge, Becket and Jones played for the Western All-Stars in Saturday's East-

CRU OFFICIAL NEARLY CAUGHT MISSING PLANE

TORONTO (CP)—Because he got his job cleaned up ahead of schedule, Harry McBrien of Toronto, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Rugby Union, and his wife Kay were alive today.

McBrien was in Vancouver for the East-West all-star football game Saturday and anxious to return to his business affairs, made reservations on several flights.

He finished up sooner than expected and caught an afternoon flight. Had he been a few hours later he would have left on flight 810, lost over the British Columbia mountains.

Siki to Clash With Roberre

Pinned by the weather last week, professional wrestling goes on display again tonight at the Victoria Ballroom.

Frenchy Roberre will make his Victoria mat debut in the main event of the four-hour card when he tackles dusky Regi Siki in a best-of-three falls, one-hour match.

In the semi-main event, it will be rugged Kurt von Poppenheim against Dick Hrstich.

Argo Hopes Stalled

TORONTO (CP)—Lew Hayman, general manager of Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union, said Monday he talked to three all-Americans while in New York last weekend, but has little hope of signing any of them.

Hayman said he talked with halfback Don Bossler of Miami University, halfback Tom McDonald and centre Gerry Tubbs of the University of Oklahoma, but all said they would wait for offers from the National Football League before deciding.

Woes Pile Still Higher For Beleaguered Cougars

Lose Game to Brandon, Heinrich to Back Injury

Brandon 3, Victoria 1

By DENNY BOYD

The murkiest Monday in Victoria Cougars' present WHL schedule passed into controversial obscurity today but left the following blunt facts.

The Cougars lost to Brandon Regals, 3-1, Monday night in a game they did not deserve to lose on the strength of their driving play.

Already muzzled by an injury to defenceman Nelson Bulloch, which will keep him out of action for at least three more weeks, the Cougars lost still another defenceman when Lionel Heinrich came down with a sprained back, a chronic injury reactivated in Calgary Saturday night. They have only two completely healthy defencemen.

Boston Bruin scout Harold Cotton, who accompanied the club back from their prairie tour, had no words of player reinforcements last night but was scheduled for a meeting with coach Colin Kilburn this morning, during which long distance telephone lines were to him.

Cougars were victimized by some off-color officiating that cost them one goal and angered Kilburn to a point where he drew misconduct and game misconduct penalties, which will take $35 out of his pocket.

Worn to a frazzle by the prairie trip and snarled transportation that saw them arrive back in town only six hours before game time, Cougars kept within range of the Regals for a period and a half on nothing but determination.

Colin Didn't Play Goal, But . . .

With only Bill Davidson and Bill Dobbey answering the defence call, Kilburn played himself to near exhaustion before getting the boot. He took a regular shift on his own line, filled in on a couple of occasions on the second line, took regular turns on defence and worked on the point when Brandon was penalized.

Johnny Bucyk gave Regals a 1-0 lead in the first period when his long shot, a 30-footer from the side, bounced in off Les Colwill's skate.

With two minutes left in the period, Cougars swarmed to the attack; missed an almost certain goal because Bruce Carmichael didn't have his stick on the ice as the puck slid along the Brandon crease, fired four shots in less than 10 seconds and saw the last of these smothered by defenceman Bob Chrystal, who

One Good Ruckus Deserves Another

It was shortly after that play that the fireworks were fused. Don Raleigh made a clearing pass from beside the face-off circle in his own zone. Chrystal, who started from the centre zone, grabbed the puck in a race with Partridge and scored the winning goal, Cougars claiming that the whistle should have sounded for either an off-side or icing call.

Kilburn questioned linesman John Smith vociferously and was given the misconduct penalty.

When that ruckus had died down, an even bigger one started.

Ray Powell and George Ranieri broke out of their own zone, but Vic Lynn got his stick between Powell's skates and tripped the Victoria forward. Referee Scotty Morrison was too far out of position to see the play, as he was back near the Cougar goal watching Cougar goalie Marcel Pelletier and Regal forward Len Haley, anticipating a feud. Morrison didn't see the trip but he heard Kilburn banging his stick protestingly on the penalty box gate and tossed the Cougar coach out of the game. The two penalties carry $35 in fines.

After the ice had been cleared of debris hurled by angry fans, Colwill made it wheat in the bin for the Regals as he scored the clinching goal with five and a half minutes left.

Need Mass Program Says Canadian Coach

Ken Mosdell To Retire From Habs

MONTREAL (CP)—Ken Mosdell, one of the oldest players in the National Hockey League and veteran of more than 13 NHL seasons, has decided to retire temporarily, Frank J. Selke, managing director of the Montreal Canadiens, said today.

Mosdell, 34, broke into the NHL in 1941 with the now-defunct Brooklyn Americans. He was loaned to Chicago Black Hawks this year after playing with Canadiens for 12 seasons.

Selke said he was told by Tommy Ivan, general manager of Chicago, that Mosdell "may consider returning to hockey if he feels in condition after a month or so."

The veteran centre did not dress for Chicago's game Sunday night against Toronto Maple Leafs and was reported to have left for Montreal by car with his wife. He could not be reached for comment.

A native Montrealeer, Mosdell has scored 182 goals in the NHL, 16 in play-off hockey. This season, in 25 games with Chicago, he had two goals and four assists.

His best season was in 1954-55, when he scored 22 goals and had 32 assists to rank 10th among point-getters. He made the first NHL star team in 1953-54 and the second in 1954-55.

Students Thumped By Cordova Bay

Tom Hardy rapped in 23 points to pace Cordova Bay junior men to a 67-37 triumph over Chinese Students in the feature clash on the three-game Victoria and District Basketball Association card at Victoria High School Monday night.

Victoria B's coasted to a 40-31 victory over Cordova Bay in an exhibition girls' game, and St. Louis College dominated play from the opening whistle to thump Cordova Bay, 38-20, in a juvenile boys' encounter.

NEW ORLEANS—Charlie Scott, 164 lb., Philadelphia, knocked out Lorne Burford, 151 lb., Memphis, Tenn. (8).

A Fair Dinkum Horse ---That Was Phar Lap

By OSCAR FRALEY

MELBOURNE (UP)—The magnificent golden chestnut stood there haughtily, ears pricked forward and thoroughbred nostrils flaring aristocratically.

"A fair dinkum (reliable) horse," somebody breathed softly, the words echoing on tip-toe through the hushed hall.

For this was Phar Lap, the greatest race horse ever to come out of Australia.

And even today—almost a quarter of a century since he died in California—crowds gather around a gleaming glass stall in a Melbourne museum to stare in wonder at his symmetrical beauty.

He was a lot of horse, this Phar Lap. A big and racy gelding with the look of those who won't be beaten captured in the glassy eyes which stare unwaveringly down the museum corridor at an aboriginal family tableau.

LIFE-LIKE IMAGE

Only a stuffed horse now, standing eternally bridled as if ready to be led into the paddock. But they did a grand job on him. The veins stand out in his once-flying legs, the mahogany-red tail sweeps almost to the floor and the auburn mane lies carefully combed against the glistening beauty of his silken hide.

One look at him and you can understand the resentment still carried in some Australian hearts because he died mysteriously on his American invasion.

This was the Man o'War from down under, the racing pride of a tremendously sports-minded nation. Back in the early thirties he cleaned up everything in the land under the southern cross. He won the coveted Melbourne Cup, the Victoria Derby and just about everything else he entered. The big horse won close to $25,000, which, in those days, was a considerable bundle of hay.

So they gave him his chance and shipped him to North America to make his bid for international greatness. He won one race and then, you can get a lot of different stories as to what happened. He died of poisoning. Some say it was intentional. Others contend that it wasn't.

Phar Lap was foaled in New Zealand. And an old timer who had made the pilgrimage to his shrine observed:

"Do you know, the Australian newspapers had two headlines ready for him when he made his first American race?"

TIME OUT!

"I guess I'm just not ready for the beginner's class yet!"

Traffic Heavy Behind Flyers In Puck Loop

Port Alberni Flyers still hold a healthy lead in the Suburban Hockey League, but things are getting a bit hectic in the scramble for second place.

Flyers maintained their five-point bulge and stalled Courtenay's drive toward the top spot when they edged the Flyers, 2-1, at Nanaimo Civic Arena Sunday as Bert Yesowick scored the winning tally midway through the final period.

In one of the best games of the season, Flyers took the lead as Grant scored the opening goal late in the second period and saw Barber even the count early in the third session to set the stage for Yesowick's winning goal.

Glaciers, however, stayed in a second-place deadlock with Lake Cowichan as the Bruins were upset, 7-4, by Nanaimo-Ladysmith Combines in Sunday's other game.

Combines, who grabbed a 4-0 lead on their way to the victory over the defending champions moved within a single point of second place with the win.

VANCOUVER (CP)—

Fred Foote of Toronto, coach of Canada's track and field team at the Melbourne Olympics, said Monday night a mass training program will have to be introduced if Canada "is ever to do anything in international competition."

Returning from Australia with the first group of Canada's Olympic athletes, Foote said in an interview:

"We have no more than 2,600 track and field athletes registered in the Amateur Athletic Union here. In the state of Victoria alone, there are 3,000 registered and taking part in a mass training program."

Such a program "is the difference between our two gold medals and the 13 which the Australians won. The Australian program is financed and run exclusively by track clubs, not the government. Our program is similar but on a smaller scale."

"We would have to start building through co-operation with the high schools and by encouraging young athletes to have pride in competing for their country in international competition."

The group of 35 team members included Gil Boa of Windsor, Ont., bronze medalist rifleman, and Toronto's Jackie Macdonald, contestant in the women's shotput, discus and javelin throw.

The group was welcomed by a committee headed by Harry Franklin of Vancouver.

Five Vancouver members of the track team who left Australia on the flight stopped over in Honolulu. They are Terry Tobacco, Doug Clement, Doug Kyle, Alice Whitely, and team manager Bob Osborne.

Also aboard the flight landing in Vancouver were seven members of the German Olympic field hockey team.

McDERMOTT SKIPS COURT ON 'SMOOCHING' CHARGE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—New York Yankee pitcher Mickey McDermott, arrested by police who found him and his wife "smooching" in their parked car, failed to show up in Miami Beach Municipal Court for a hearing Monday. His $25 bond was forfeited.

McDermott was arrested Friday on a charge of disorderly conduct. Police said the baseball player became argumentative and refused to show his identification after they discovered him and his wife parked on a vacant lot.

2 Home-Made TV 'Traps' Aid Ch. 5 Viewers

Two types of inexpensive, home-made "traps" used to cut down interference of Channel 6 with Channel 5 were reported to be working well in some localities over the weekend.

Those phoning in the reports, however, stressed that these "traps" should not be considered a cure-all everywhere.

In some cases the "trap" worked for one receiver whereas it proved ineffective when applied to the set next door or only a street or two away.

In many instances the home-made rigs worked only in areas least affected by Channel 6's antenna site at Epsom Drive, Saanich.

One method is called a "quarter-wave stub." This is approximately 29 inches of antenna lead-in wire that is attached to the two lugs at the back of the set. The lead-ins already there should be left as is.

The second method is called a "half-wave stub." This is a longer piece of antenna lead-in wire that experts say should measure 58.14 inches from where the wire is joined to the set. The insulation of the attached wire is then cut with a razor blade until the bare wire is reached. In this manner a "bridge" is formed by the razor blade.

When a clear picture on Channel 5 is received in this way the wire should be cut off and the two bare ends joined together. This should result in keeping Channel 6's strong signal from interfering with Channel 5.

NO DANGER

As neither method means entering the back of the set or dealing with "live" wires there is no danger of the experimenter being electrocuted.

But those who have tried out these methods warn others that patience and persistence are the keynotes to success. For some the experiment will end in success in a matter of a few minutes while for others the trials and errors will go on for much longer periods.

For some, they point out, the experiments will go on indefinitely.

Theory behind these home-made traps is that CHEK-TV's beam will enter the added wire before entering the set and thus be absorbed before it can interfere with Channel 5's signal.

There is likelihood, however, that these traps will cut down reception quality not only on Channel 5 but on some of the higher channels (such as Channel 11) as well.

Downtown Block in Trail Saved By Combined Fire Fighting Force

TRAIL (CP)—A fire which threatened to engulf a downtown theatre block was brought under control early today by 35 firemen from Trail and adjacent Tadanac some three hours after it broke out.

The fire was still burning in the three-story Strand Theatre building at 9:45 a.m., but firemen said they had it under control.

The theatre is one of the largest in the British Columbia interior.

The blaze for a time threatened some five stores and an equal number of business offices at the front of the building. Four persons, including theatre manager Alec Barclay and his wife, were evacuated from two apartments.

Also saved from damage were a federal government building adjacent to the theatre and St. Andrew's Anglican Church, across a lane.

The roof of the theatre caved in during the fire and the two apartments were gutted.

There were no reports of injuries and no immediate indication of the cause of the fire.

parents a lot of lies, you see. They think I have already made public appearances. I had to make them think I was getting ahead so they would keep sending me money for lessons, and living expenses. Now I feel I would be better off dead."

NO REAL TALENT

The most surprising angle in Janet's case was how she became interested in the piano at all. Questioning brought out these facts: As a child she had taken piano lessons only because her mother had requested her to. Her piano teacher then had given her no encouragement. She had never particularly liked music. At school she remembered once getting a D in music; one teacher had told her she was a little tone deaf.

This case is significant because it shows how some people waste many years of their lives trying to achieve something they are not equipped to do. Janet had no real talent for music.

The psychiatrist in this case helped Janet make a difficult reappraisal of her real talents through self-analysis. Most people have the mistaken notion that self-analysis is self-criticism. Ask the average person to analyze himself and he will name all of his defects. But self-analysis, properly understood, involves self-appreciation as well as self-criticism. It should point out our good qualities as well as our weaknesses.

"God has made each of us a distinct separate individual with ability to do certain things in a way no one else can," the minister explained at a subsequent session. "Don't selfishly cheat both yourself and your fellow men of the true God-intended you," he told her. "Find the field where your talents can come into bloom."

SPECIAL INTEREST

Janet, it came out, did have another special interest. Children. A part-time job was found for her in the children's ward of a hospital. The last we heard of Janet, she had married and now has children of her own. Janet had great difficulty taking a realistic view of her own talents, but once she did, she became an entirely new person.

Once this first step of self-evaluation is completed, the next can begin. Dedicate your talents to God and pray that God will use them in the best way possible. Every person born on this earth can, through faith, prayer, and guidance find a useful even important, niche to fill.

Helen Keller was struck with brain fever at the age of two. At first doctors held little hope that she would live, but she did recover. But from that time on she was both deaf and blind. Who would have thought this child could ever amount to anything? What Helen Keller accomplished with a bare minimum of personal assets is one of the greatest stories of our age. When she celebrated her 77th birthday recently, Miss Keller was tirelessly serving the blind and blind-deaf, travelling over the world, writing and lecturing. She had written a dozen books which have been translated into 50 languages. She is the direct inspiration for 30 schools for the blind, 44 state-supported schools and 48 state programs for the blind.

GOD IS CENTRE

You can get out of life only what you are. As Ernest Holmes stated, "The getting is in the being, and the being always begets the getting; child will be like parent, and men do not gather grapes from cacti. If we want to use the power in our minds, we have to realize it is a spiritual power. We have to realize we are living in a spiritual universe. This means that right now, at the centre of everything, God is enthroned. And it was Browning who said that our task is to 'loose this imprisoned splendor.'"

In other words, God created man in His image to achieve great things. But "great things" for the grammar school arithmetic teacher, who inspires children with an excitement to learn, would not be "great things" for the scientific genius Einstein, who delved into the basic mysteries of the universe. Man must accept his limitations and still not dull his incentive to use what abilities he has in a maximum way.

Ike Skelton, Jr., at 13 was stricken with the most virulent form of polio. But the lad had a strong faith and a stout heart. He pulled through, but with complete paralysis of both arms. This calamity seemed to end for ever Ike's dream of athletic accomplishments.

Ike refused to accept such a verdict. Since running was one of the few sports he could compete in for his school, Wentworth Academy, without use of arms, he decided to become a two-miler. For months he trained conscientiously. In the big race against his school's arch rival, Ike was entered in the two-mile run. He ran his heart out. When he staggered across the finish line, teammates and spectators swept him up on their shoulders, and he got the biggest ovation of the day—in spite of the fact that he had finished last.

A woman who read an account of Ike's recovery wrote a somewhat critical letter to the authors, saying that she had a husband attempting a long and painful recovery from a severe case of polio. "I don't want my husband to read the story about Ike Skelton, Jr.," she said. "It would discourage him to hear that a boy of Ike's courage and patience worked so hard on his running only to be last in the race."

MISSED POINT

The woman, of course, missed the whole point of the story. Ike won a greater victory that day than any other boy competing in the track meet. He was the only boy on the field with a 100 per cent performance—whose ability met his capacity. Everyone recognized it—that's why there was a tremendous ovation for him. Yet, it was soon obvious, of course, that Ike's primary role in life was not to become a runner. And He spoke recently at Christian College on the topic 'The Unseen Evidence.' President Miller told me afterward that they had all kinds of speakers, but none better than Ike."

RHODES SCHOLAR NAMED

(From CP Dispatches)
VANCOUVER—Sholto Heberton, a 21-year-old honor student in economics and international studies at the University of B.C., has been named this province's Rhodes Scholar for 1957.
The scholarship pays for two years of study at Oxford University beginning next October.
Mr. Heberton is a fourth-year arts student at UBC, president of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity and president of the university's United Nations Club. Born in Quessell, he went to school in Penticton.

WOMEN MOLESTED

VANCOUVER—Four women were attacked or threatened by a boy they described as "a young thug, not more than 12," in South Vancouver Monday night. Three of the women were knocked to the ground and the other was threatened with a knife by the boy, who demanded money. He took $1 from one woman but fled from the others when they screamed.

DECISION POSTPONED

NELSON—Magistrate William Evans Monday postponed until Dec. 21 a decision on permanent committal of nine Sons of Freedom Doukhobor children to New Denver dormitory. The children were temporarily placed in the dormitory after they were picked up by RCMP at Glade on charges of failing to attend school.

JAIL ESCAPEE CAUGHT

OSOYOOS—John Motz, 17, of Osoyoos, who escaped early Saturday from the RCMP jail here, was recaptured Sunday just south of Oroville, Wash.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING

KELOWNA — A 19-year-old Vernon youth, William Murray, was in good condition in hospital here today after accidentally shooting himself in the shoulder Saturday night while cleaning a .22-calibre rifle.

800 PHONES KNOCKED OUT

DEEP COVE—Eight hundred residents were without telephone service Monday following a weekend fire in the Woodside exchange building at this community near Vancouver.

The blaze Sunday did no serious damage to the unmanned building, but automatic dialing mechanism was knocked out. B.C. Telephone Co. crews rigged up emergency circuits for the fire department here and other emergency numbers.

MERCY FLIGHT

EDMONTON—An RCAF Dakota from nearby Namao Monday night began a six-hour return flight to Fort St. John, B.C., to bring an injured man to hospital here.

The 105 communications and rescue centre said a mercy-flight request from a Dr. Cormack at Fort St. John did not identify the injured man, reported suffering from a serious arm injury.

INQUEST ADJOURNED

CRANSTON—An inquest into the death of two men drowned in Kootenay Lake Nov. 30 was adjourned Monday for a week.

Party ideas with Libby's

PINEAPPLE OR FRUIT COCKTAIL!

Luscious, Luxury fruits—guaranteed by Libby's!

Enjoy Them Plain or Fancy! Enjoy Them Soon and Often!

It's so easy to prepare endless party surprises with Libby's Fruit Cocktail or tropical Pineapple. As appetizing as they are eye-appealing, try the two suggestions below—and be prepared for compliments. Just make sure you use Libby's for best results, fresher flavor.

Libby's Pineapple Float

Float slices of Libby's golden-yellow pineapple in their own juice. For added color place a few fresh mint leaves in pineapple centres.

Fruit Cocktail Cream Pie

Fill baked pie shell with vanilla pudding—then top with drained Libby's Fruit Cocktail. Chill. When ready to serve top with a mound of sweetened whipped cream. Garnish with a few Fruit Cocktail cherries.

For delicious "last minute" Desserts

Reach for Libby's Fruit Cocktail or Libby's Pineapple and serve just as they come from the can.

Try all four flavor-refreshing varieties of Libby's Pineapple—Slices, Crushed, Chunks, and Juice.

Libby's fruits are matchless! Double your money back if you don't agree!

5 "Quick Tricks for the Holiday" from Libby's

Mary Hale Martin

Gay Appetizer for Everyone

No matter how many guests you have, you can easily refresh them with appetizers, this way: bring in a tray with glasses, a tall pitcher of Libby's Tomato Juice well-chilled, and a big plate of Melba Toast (heat in the oven first, if you use the packaged kind, and have the time!) centred with a mound of Deviled Ham mixed with a little mayonnaise and Libby's Mustard. Young and old alike enjoy Libby's Tomato Juice. And you can drink all you want: only 4 calories per ounce!

Mushroom Creamed Peas

Heat one can condensed mushroom soup till smooth. Drain 2 cans Libby's Peas and add. Heat through. Delightful flavor medley! And so easy! Good for lunch over toast, or as a deluxe vegetable at any meal! Remember, Libby's Peas are guaranteed the most delicious canned peas you ever tasted—DOUBLE your money back if you don't agree!

Festive Vegetable Aspic

Make Tomato Aspic according to the recipe on the big tin of Libby's Tomato Juice. When slightly thickened, fold in chilled, drained Libby's Mixed Vegetables. Pour into green pepper "moulds" which you make simply by cutting the tops off, and scooping out the seeds and membranes. Chill thoroughly and serve on heads of lettuce. Conversation piece! And so easy, since Libby's give you 7 garden vegetables without peeling!

Treasure for Company

With so many people dropping in during the hospitable days to come, a big baked ham in your refrigerator is indispensable. When it's almost cooked give it a simple but delicious glaze: mix Libby's mustard with brown sugar (and red currant jelly is a wonderful addition) and rub it generously on ham which you have scored so more soaks in. Stud with cloves, and finish baking. Libby's zesty Mustard really is great here. And when you're serving this as cold cuts, or in he-man sandwiches, remember more Libby's Mustard!

Meat Loaf Red-Top

Make your favorite meat loaf recipe, with the simple addition of a good dollop of Libby's Catchup. Score the top, and pour more Libby's Catchup into these grooves, criss-cross fashion. Bake as usual. Libby's Catchup really dresses up this dish—gives it a marked flavor boost, too. You'll like Libby's Catchup—it's made from more tomatoes, for richer tomato flavor!

Ald. Smith, Tom Denny Clash Over Trades Licensing Fees

Speeches by 12 city council candidates were brightened on Monday night by a lively question period—lively despite the fact only 35 persons attended the Junior Chamber of Commerce forum.

The man with most questions to ask was city furniture merchant Tom Denny, who challenged Ald. J. Donald Smith's contention that home owners are subsidizing big business in Victoria.

He was the first merchant to hit back on a public platform at Ald. Smith's arguments that business licensing leans on the small dealer and excuses the large dealer with token fees.

He said his business, although only paying licence of $280 to Victoria pays seven such fees in the area and pays property tax of $6,831. Hudson's Bay Company, he stated, pays $38,000 to the city.

NO ISSUE

"Land taxes are not an issue," said Ald. Smith.

He admitted the property tax is "something equivalent" to what is paid by similar-sized businesses in similar-sized cities.

Mr. Denny spoke up for the city manager system, calling on candidate S. Patrick Birley to list examples of savings made for the city by the city manager.

Mr. Birley had an itemized answer.

He said manager C. C. Wyatt saved $64,000 by changing the dates of the city's assessment year, collected $10,000 by calling in delinquent tax payments, doubled meter income by his plan to use commissionaires rather than police for meter patrol, upped land sales by $47,000 and saved $300,000 by instituting a debt reduction fund with initial income of $220,000 from sale of the grain elevator.

Mr. Denny turned back to Ald. Smith, who is now an M.L.A. asking how he was going to do both jobs if elected alderman. Ald. Smith said there is no precedent in his desire to fill two jobs.

SERVE SAME PEOPLE

"Six weeks away from city hall is not a long time. I'll be serving the same people. I would feel derelict in my duty to walk out on the people on the business tax question. If I leave council, it will meet a natural death."

Ald. Robert Macmillan was asked by an unidentified member of the audience to refute Mr. Birley's praises of the city manager system.

"The grain elevator sale of $220,000 was originally recommended by the city manager for $150,000. It was the previous mayor who forced the sale through for $150,000," the alderman replied.

"Delinquent tax payments are handled by the department head concerned who makes the recommendations which Mr. Wyatt puts a rubber stamp on and passes to council."

Another slam at Mr. Wyatt: "When I checked to see why the municipal manager was away (on a recent trip east), I found he had not only spent $500 but the city has overspent and double travelling expense funds (allotted for 1956) and I can see no authority."

ONLY $60

Mayor Scurrah, in the audience, said: "That is untrue. Mrs. Wyatt spent only $60 on the trip."

Then Ald. Macmillan turned on Ald. Smith, who had earlier stated that New Westminster, with half the size and one-fifth the shopping area of Victoria, collected "the same amount in business licences."

"New Westminster collects $100,000 less than Victoria. That is the quality of the statements made here tonight."

There might be a discrepancy of $20,000 in his figures, Mr. Smith admitted, if we want to be technical.

The five-minute speeches of candidates followed the same general pattern as an earlier public forum Friday night. Three candidates who were absent at that meeting were heard for the first time. Ald. Austin Curtis, Ald. Arthur Dowell and former city police chief John A. McLellan.

Ald. Curtis: Two years as alderman, 14 years as a school trustee . . . council progressed this year . . . land sales should continue for capital expansion as interest paid if money borrowed for these projects is greater than would be earned if land sales fund were invested, as Ald. Macmillan recommends.

Ald. Arthur Dowell: Five and a half years on council, advocates disposal of tax-reverted lands, continuing depreciation-maintenance program for roads and sewers, wait for provincial equalization of business licensing, supports city manager system.

John A. McLellan: Police chief 12 years, serves on Chamber of Commerce traffic safety committee, favors immediate start on off-street short-term parking plan, opposes one-way streets to solve roundabout problem, licensing inequalities should be straightened out, supports amalgamation of essential services, more sports in parks, pay-as-you-go financing.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—
Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

ACCUSED WANTS CHANGE— IN SAME COURT TOO OFTEN

A city man who said he had appeared in police court so many times on the same charge the court "could be prejudiced," asked Monday for a change of venue.

Magistrate H. C. Hall turned down the request of Leslie D. Foxgord, accused of operating a junkyard at 1144 Queens without a proper licence.

"It's not the fault of the court that you have been here so many times," Magistrate Hall said.

Foxgord was remanded to next Monday for trial after pleading not guilty.

Atom Power Assures Peace, Says Educator

Discovery of atomic power is one of the greatest arguments for peace in the world today, according to Dr. D. H. Copp, B.A. MD, PhD, head of the physiology department at University of British Columbia.

Speaking at Victoria College Monday night, Dr. Copp said peace is almost assured because world leaders are "scared to death" of the possibilities of atomic warfare.

Dr. Copp was a member of the Canadian delegation at the Geneva conference on atomic power in 1955.

WORLD BODY

The potentials and problems of atomic and hydrogen power will be controlled only through some world organization such as the United Nations, he said.

"In working together for the atomic future we will be better able to live together in the atomic present."

Discoveries of the atomic age will have a tremendous impact on humanity leading to a higher standard of living and greater power potential, Dr. Copp said.

Medical research shows that radioactive iodine is effective in locating brain tumors and diagnosing diseases of the thyroid gland. Another by-product of atomic energy, radioactive phosphorus, has proved "excellent" in controlling leukemia and testing brain tissue for evidence of cancer.

$400,000 Target In Mothers' March

Goal of $400,000 to further the rehabilitation work of Kinsmen Clubs in B.C. has been set for a province-wide "Mother's March" Feb. 16.

Vic Van Isle Kinsmen will sponsor the one-hour campaign in Victoria and district.

Last February 3,000 mothers collected nearly $46,000.

The $400,000 budget will allot $150,000 to continue a Kinsmen polio care campaign; $150,000 to start a new child development and rehabilitation centre; $50, 000 to start a school of rehabilitation to train skilled personnel, and $50,000 for immediate remedial and surgical care for handicapped children whose parents cannot afford treatment.

Flood Damages Hit $359,000

Insurance Firms Expecting Many Household Claims

Flood-hit homes and businesses in Greater Victoria were nearly back to normal today after Sunday's inundation and citizens will pay or claim up to $359,000 for damages.

Water still lay on low-lying land or sloshed through over-taxed drainage ditches in all municipalities as brightening weather began to dry up gardens, fields and streets.

Insurance adjusters estimate claims for damage to homes and property may amount to $260,000.

Municipal engineers say the area was comparatively lucky with regard to flood damage to installations, roads and other services.

Saanich engineer N. W. Life noted damage in his far-flung municipality and reached a figure of $10,000 including labor costs during the emergency.

REVISED TOTAL

Oak Bay engineer A. S. G. Musgrave revised his Monday estimate to include labor costs and extra expense of clearing silt-clogged drains. He figures the flood will cost the municipality about $5,000.

James Garnett, Victoria engineer, said repairs and labor would cost Victoria $9,000, as a preliminary estimate.

In Esquimalt, engineer John Graeme, said damage would be less than $5,000 to municipal property.

Many private property owners will find they can claim water damages from insurance companies, depending on the type of water damage clause written into policies.

One adjuster said between 90 and 95 per cent of insurance holders could claim damages, but a Vancouver spokesman, representing Gorg District Mutual Fire Insurance Co., said he felt this estimate is too high.

Property owners with water escape clauses in policies could claim without trouble if damage was caused by domestic drains backing up.

Some companies will recognize backed-up street drains and consequent home flooding in this category.

Other policies contain flooding clauses which apply to water coming into homes from any outside source.

It was estimated the average claim per flooded home would be between $100 and $200.

This would mean a total $3,600 claim for houses in the badly-hit 1600 block Edgeware.

Clean-up jobs were completed for the most part Monday by owners working 12 hours at a stretch.

Many find they are unable to heat their homes until oil-burning furnaces and heaters, affected by flood waters, are dried out and restored to operation.

Basements which have been flooded may be disinfected by solutions of disinfectant (two tablespoons to a pail of water) or household bleach (two cups-full per pail of water).

ASK THE TIMES

Q. How long has Labor Day been observed in Canada?

A. Oregon was the first state in the U.S. to pass a law making the first Monday in September Labor Day. As early as 1882, 1883 and 1884, the U.S. Knights of Labor had paraded on that day in New York City, and they started a demand for legal recognition of the celebration. Congress on June 28, 1894, passed a bill declaring the day a legal holiday throughout the republic. The Parliament of Canada was not far behind, and put a similar act on the statute books in the same year.

Q. Will you please tell me what date will be Easter Day in 1957?

A. April 21. The last time it fell on that date was in 1935. Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

'IT'S NICE TO BE HERE'

Two Loop-De-Loops Enough So She Fire-Flagged Flyer

Storms, treacherous icy roads and floods did not daunt Miss Leah Shaw, veteran Shaw Springs auto court operator, from coming to Victoria to attend the B.C. Auto Court Convention at the Empress Hotel today.

On her way to Victoria from her home east of Lytton in the Fraser Canyon, her car first skidded on the icy No. 1 Trans-Canada Highway and overturned in a ditch near Tide Creek.

Leaving her car in the ditch, she returned to her home, and headed for Victoria in a truck.

The truck skidded near Seddell and plunged into a ditch.

Undaunted, Miss Shaw lit a bonfire alongside the CPR track. The non-stop Trans-Canada Flyer saw the "light." It stopped and took her to Vancouver.

In Vancouver, the Victoria boat waited a few minutes to give Miss Shaw time to get to the wharf.

"It's good to be here," said she.

'Hoard Water', Sooke Area Told

Flood-Caused Landslide Destroys Water Line; Small Creek Utilized

Flood waters Sunday caused a landslide that destroyed 120 feet of waterline serving Sooke Harbor, and has left the community dependent upon the flow of water from a creek.

Ronald Upward, water commissioner, Greater Victoria Water District, said repair of the line would be a two-week job, since a road must be built to the break, then the line supported so it will withstand another slide.

He advised residents to "hoard" water, since one frosty night could halt the flow of the creek which now keeps the supply tank full.

ONEWAY

A combined crew of loggers and government workers has completed a temporary one-way bridge at Sooke Creek, where the regular bridge was washed out by the flood.

For the second successive year flood waters in Sooke River washed away the grandstand, picnic tables, bleachers, and other installations on Sooke River flats used in connection with All-Sooke Day. Only the platform for the loggers' sports remains.

Only casualty was Thomas Parkinson, 77, who suffered a heart attack at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. J. Porter, East Sooke, Monday morning.

Despite help by Sooke and Colwood RCMP, and neighbors along the way, Dr. Norman Goodwin of Sooke, was unable to reach the stricken man in time to save his life.

The roundabout trip by Sooke Road, broken by washouts and collapsed bridges, took more than an hour.

Private funeral services for Mr. Parkinson will be held in Nanaimo Friday.

At Jordan River two bridges were washed out, to isolate residents on the western shore. A bucket on a cable has been rigged to give access back and forth pending rebuilding of the bridges.

The Saseen's water system was damaged by flood waters, and will be restricted for close to a week.

SUDBURY MAKING 12 KNOTS TOWARD DRIFTING FREIGHTER

A favorable break in the weather today is enabling the Victoria salvage tug Ss. Sudbury to log a steady 12 knots as she heads to the aid of the British freighter Ms. Rowanmore.

The Rowanmore is about 1,200 miles from Cape Flattery, dead in the water due to engine failure.

If present light winds hold, the Sudbury may reach the motorship earlier than the target date of Friday. The tug's master, Capt. Harley Blagborne, is working on a tentative schedule to reach port before Christmas.

Progress of the tow will depend to a great extent on weather conditions.

FLOOD REFUGEES WENT HOME TODAY, most having spent all day Monday cleaning up debris and muck from floors and walls. At left, Mrs. Lewis Rush helps her sister-in-law, Mrs. Pat Smith, 1613 Edgeware, with her children, Margaret, 10; Janice 8½, and Linda, 6, move belongings back to their CMH house after the flood. There had been 10 inches of water on the ground floor. Mrs. Smith estimated $150 damage to property.

Car Bowls Over Three Mail Boxes

Occupants of a car which bowled over three mail boxes before hitting a telephone pole on Ferndale Road escape serious injury Monday.

Saanich police said the car was driven by Mrs. Dora Heim, 1980 Haley Road. Her husband, Jim, was released from Jubilee Hospital after treatment for abrasions.

$879,790 Low Solarium Bid

City contractors Howe and Wilson were low bidders for construction of the new Queen Alexandra Solarium. It was learned today.

Their basic bid of $879,790 was said to be $50,000 to $60,000 less than the lowest bids submitted by four other contractors tendering on the project.

Contract award was expected to be announced tonight by Solarium Building Committee headed by David Angus.

Bids also were submitted by Farmer Construction Ltd., G. H. Wheaton Ltd., Commonwealth Construction and A & B Construction, of Nanaimo. Bids ranged as high as $950,000.

The new solarium, replacing an old children's hospital bearing the same name at Mill Bay, 18 miles from Victoria, is to be built at Gordon Head.

It is understood, if the Howe and Wilson bid is accepted tonight, the firm is ready to begin work immediately.

Tourism Ministry Asked by Parley

A resolution urging Premier W. A. C. Bennett to fulfill his election promise of forming a separate "ministry of tourism and recreation" was passed unanimously today by the Auto Courts and Resorts Association convention at the Empress Hotel.

Noting that the tourist industry is one of British Columbia's major industries, the association asked that the new ministry be set up at the earliest possible date.

Retired 'Mountie' From Sidney Appointed Sergeant-at-Arms

Denzil G. Ashby, retired RCMP staff sergeant of 2180 Marine Drive, Sidney, today was appointed sergeant-at-arms in the B.C. Legislature.

He succeeds Commander E. A. Jamieson, who was relieved of his post last session after giving evidence in a legislative committee probing charges of patronage and waste of public money in construction of the Stewart-Cassiar Road.

The Cabinet today rescinded Commander Jamieson's appointment and confirmed the appointment of Mr. Ashby.

Speaker Thomas Irwin said Mr. Ashby will take over his new duties on Jan. 14.

"I received between 15 and 20 applications for the post, some of them from Victoria," Mr. Irwin said.

Mr. Ashby, 54, is a Justice of the Peace at Los Angeles. He retired from the RCMP last year after 29 years' service. At the time of his retirement he was senior NCO for the Victoria sub-station.

Rites Wednesday For Dora Mott, Church Worker

Dean Brian Whitlow will conduct funeral services for Miss Dora Mott, active church worker at Christ Church Cathedral Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.

Resident of Victoria for 44 years, Miss Mott died at her home, 1024 McClure Street, Monday at the age of 76.

She was a life member of the women's auxiliary to Christ Church Cathedral and has held the positions of Dorcas secretary, girls' secretary and Living Message secretary on the diocesan board.

She was also past president of the afternoon branch of the cathedral's W.A. and a member of Primrose Lodge, Daughters of England.

Born in London, England, Miss Mott worked in local shipyards during the Second World War.

She is survived by a brother and sister in England and a sister Marion in Los Angeles.

QORs May Return Here for Christmas

Families of Second Battalion Queen's Own Rifles, whose fathers joined the QOR First Battalion to serve with UN forces, may be re-united for Christmas in Victoria.

An army announcement that the reinforced First Battalion will return to its home base at Calgary within a few days could mean married men in the Second Battalion draft from Camp Gordon Head will be brought back here at least for Christmas, an army spokesman said.

Final disposition of troops from the Second Battalion likely will not be made until after the new year.

A Camp Gordon Head officer said he feels certain the battalion will get some of its men back, but could not say when to expect them.

HERE DEC. 21ST
Earliest date on which the move from Halifax could start is estimated at Thursday, which would mean Victoria could expect married personnel back here about the 21st, if army authorities permit their return all the way to the coast.

Acting Prime Minister C. D. Howe said the reason the Queen's Own are not going overseas as expected is apparently

THERE'S STILL LOTS OF WATER IN LOW LYING AREAS

Typical of flood waters which will remain lying on bottom lands in Greater Victoria for many weeks is the old Rithet Farm property slough, greatly swollen from its normal size. Other low areas are near Mount Douglas on Blenkinsop.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

I have been asked to tell all I know about how the candidates stand in the up-coming civic election.

Fortunately, I do not know much about how the candidates stand in the up-coming civic election.

But I have it on good authority they all stand four-square, with their shoulders to the wheel, their feet on the ground, their eyes to the future, their noses to the grindstone, and one foot on the ground, edging forward foot by foot to more and greater things.

Which is a fine way to stand, even though it might become a little uncomfortable and lead to various aches and pains.

I have also learned how most of the candidates stand on garbage disposal.

Most of the candidates are against garbage. And in favor of disposal.

The above could become a burning issue, but not during the fire season.

I regret to report hardly any of the candidates have come out in favor of the five-day weekend.

This despite the fact the provincial government employees have already achieved it, from Dec. 22 to Dec. 26, inclusive.

It is a pleasure to note an overwhelming majority of the candidates are taking a strong stand on the matter of sin.

They are against it.

However, it is necessary to point out nearly all the candidates are taking a stand on the Indian problem with reservations.

You will be glad to know you cannot choose between candidates on the twin matters of taxes and expenditures.

All candidates, with one voice, are in favor of lower taxes and higher expenditures.

A point of great interest in the current election campaign is the attitude of the candidates toward the traffic problem.

On this point, all the candidates have the same opinion.

This city needs one-way streets, providing the one-way streets go one-way in the direction the candidates wish to be travelling.

Fortunately, this is all I know about how the candidates stand in the up-coming civic elections.

Except that the candidates stand or fall on the basis of your vote.

And—unfortunately—I know of a few countries where the same can't be said.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Payment of annual Christmas bonuses to city welfare recipients was recommended to city council today by finance committee. The bonuses represent a cost to the city of about $750—20 per cent of the gross cost which is mostly paid by the province. Heads of families receive $5 and single persons $2.

Damage is estimated at $500 in a shed fire at 731 Burnside West on Monday which is believed to have started in a pile of oily rags.

Owner A. E. Wilson said the loss included a quantity of gardening equipment as well as damage to the interior of the shed.

Two youths who attempted to rob a city parking lot operator as he emptied his meters Saturday night were sought by police today.

Jack Phillips, 10 Phillips Place, fought loose from his attackers and saved some $94 he was carrying.

He told police that his raincoat and jacket were torn in the scuffle on the parking lot at Blanshard and Broughton.

Pottery Animals Decorate Bottoms of Children's Cups

By PENNY SAVER

What's at the bottom of the well? That's for the youngsters to find out, for the "well" is their drinking cup of bright, dotted pottery. At the bottom of the cups are little animals, firmly attached, which greet the child as the beverage disappears. On the side of each cup is written the phrase: "What's at the bottom of the well?" Ducks, kittens, fish, frogs and wee honey bears are there to please the children. Each cup costs 49 cents. They're gaily-patterned and have yellow dots here and there to match the yellow edge trim.

A serving tray of black-painted metal is a special party piece patterned with caricature decals in eye-catching colors. Six cocktail recipes are also decalated on the surface of this round tray. It has an all-around "fence", so that serving isn't at all hazardous. The trays also come in pastels, and are priced $1.29.

At Christmas time, everyone tries his hand at a little extra decorating in his home, and candies always play a big part. Little ones, big ones, round or square ones, all colors, raised, or plain are worked into centerpieces and onto tables and mantles. Of course, you're going to need extra candle holders. Small wire coils that fit any size candle come in sets of two, in white or black and cost just 29 cents. Larger sets are 49 cents, and very large ones are 98 cents each. To use with flower arrangements, there are little glass stars that have a base tough big enough to float a few wee blossoms. These glass holders are yours for 15 cents each.

Novel front door decorations are ready-made for you. All you have to do is hang them up. How would a wreath of golden foliage dotted with red cones tipped with white and silver look on your front door? Perhaps you'd like the modern, pink holly wreath with pink Christmas balls on it. Traditional green holly with green baubles or a bright golden

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Today the average age for menopause seems to be between the late forties and the early fifties. However, there are exceptions in both extremes.

While the large majority of women pass through this period with little or no discomfort, some do experience nervous tension and emotional instability. Tension may create irritability and you may find yourself, for no reason, depressed and weepy at times.

Some women experience hot flashes, although this applies to only 20 per cent. As a matter of fact, only two out of every 10 women have symptoms severe enough to require medical help. The others have very mild symptoms or none at all. However, if you are uncomfortable or unhappy go to your doctor and he will be able to relieve you of any distressing symptoms.

The endocrine glands seem to work together. When one becomes less efficient the others take over and make up for it. At menopause the ovaries slow down in their output of estrogen. Usually this is a gradual process and the glands make a gradual adjustment so that you experience no distress. However, to quote from a pamphlet, "Understanding Your Menopause": "Since the endocrine glands are believed to have a reciprocal relationship, the diminishing supply of ovarian estrogen will affect the action of other glands. Their normal equilibrium may be disturbed for a time, requiring some adjustment in the whole body."

So, remember that the chances, percentage-wise, are that you will have no trouble at menopause. The only danger at menopause is the possibility that a woman may attribute unusual symptoms to this time of life and therefore neglect them. You should see your doctor twice a year for a checkup, anyway, from 40 on. This is good preventative medicine. And report any unusual occurrence to him immediately.

Your body is under a slight strain while it adjusts to new conditions. Give yourself a break of an even better health routine than before: plenty of sleep, a bit more rest, fine nutrition, a happy mental attitude, and regular exercise, unless your physician advises otherwise.

A princess-line gown of white velvet in ballerina length was worn by the bride. A lace cap held her shoulder-length veil which was trimmed with matching lace, and she carried a cluster of white roses mounted on a white Bible. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, the groom's gift.

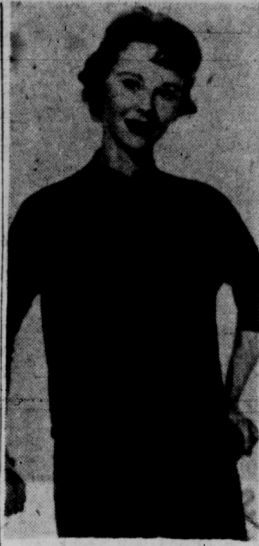

The bride's only attendant, Mrs. D. Halifax wore a red taffeta gown in princess styling with matching accessories and carried a spray bouquet of white carnations and chrysanthemums. FO John Creighton, RCAF station, Sea Island, was best man.

At a reception in Oak Bay Beach Hotel, guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a taffeta print dress of brown with matching accessories and corsage of yellow roses. Mother of the groom wore a navy suit with matching accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Toast to the bride was proposed by Ronald Halifax. The newlyweds cut a three-tier wedding cake decorated with white and pink roses and flanked by pink candles.

The bride's going away dress was a pale beige sheath with white hat, pearls and corsage of white roses. She is a graduate of St. Joseph's Hospital school of nursing.

OVERBLOUSE

Togmaster has designed this versatile, easy-to-wear style in Silknet's wonderful 100% Acrilan jersey. Its smart mandarin collar and adjustable drawstring tie make it a flattering blouse for every age. Its trim lines are in to stay, too, because it's made with Acrilan acrylic fibre. It will go right into the washing machine at the warm-water setting, drip dry, and be fresh and new looking without a bit of pampering.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

A question about a thank-you gift:

My daughter has just landed an excellent job. Responsible for this was an important business executive. Would it be all right if she send him a gift in appreciation, and if so, should it be done now or at Christmas, would it be all right if the present were sent to the home, with the wife's name included, of course?

Louise Davis answers: By no means should your daughter send this man any gift now or at any time. The best gift he could get would be a sincere and thoughtful note of appreciation, thanking him for what he did for her. She must be sure the note isn't personal, but at the same time it should be convincingly sincere.

It would be nice if she would add that she will do everything in her power to try to measure up to his expectations for the new job, realizing that it will be a challenge that she intends to meet. Keep the note on a purely business basis. Type it and send it to the man's office.

Mrs. Welsh Opened Bazaar At Cordova Bay

Wife of the recently appointed rector of St. David's-by-the-Sea, Mrs. J. Welsh, opened the pre-Christmas bazaar, held by the Women's Guild at Cordova Bay Saturday. Mrs. Welsh was introduced by the guild president, Mrs. K. M. Lewis, and presented with a gay Christmas corsage by Mrs. K. Wyper.

A sum of $264 was realized during the afternoon.

The hall presented a festive appearance as stall conveners had decorated with evergreens and Christmas streamers.

Mrs. S. M. Hobbs and Mrs. L. Salmon, sold gifts and novelties. Superfluties were sold by Miss F. O. Lewis and Mrs. J. Kidson and needlework by Mrs. F. Smith and Mrs. R. Renfrew. Mrs. Wyper was in charge of corsages and table decorations. Candy was sold by Mrs. S. W. Tucker and Mrs. J. J. Hutton. Mrs. W. Ronald was in charge of the children's tree. Home cooking was sold by Mrs. H. Stevenson, Mrs. J. Wicheil and Mrs. W. Walker. Mrs. A. Taylor had parcels by post and Mrs. D. McKay, a stall of miscellaneous articles.

The Evening Guild was represented by Mrs. F. Tanner, Mrs. B. Peterson, Mrs. L. Mores, Mrs. S. P. Oakes and Mrs. A. Porter. They had a stall of attractive party decorations. Mrs. J. B. Minchin was in charge of wrapping and checking parcels. Tea was served in the guild rooms from tables with Christmas centrepieces. In charge were Mrs. T. Brown, Mrs. N. Westwood, Mrs. J. Kieran, Mrs. W. McRoberts, Mrs. C. McShane and Mrs. J. Wilmot.

MARRIED IN NADEN CHAPEL

In a quiet ceremony in St. Andrew's Chapel, HMCS Naden, Miss Dorothy Silva-White and Mr. Charles Ferguson were wed recently. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Francis Cunningham, 3060 Harriet Road, and her husband the son of Mrs. Annie Ferguson, Calgary, Alta. The newlyweds are now living at 1264 Gladstone Avenue. (Chevron Photo.)

Pastels Form Setting For Smith-Abern Vows

Six attendants gowned in pastels of pink, blue and orchid were in the entourage of bride, Miss Patricia Phyllis Abern, and groom, James Alexander Smith, last Saturday evening. Flickering pink candles shed a soft glow in Metropolitan United Church, where Dr. F. E. H. James officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Pastel chrysanthemums were placed at the front of the church, and sprigs of holly with chrysanthemums and white ribbon marked guest pews. Soloist Mrs. M. Higgins sang "Because."

Chimes rang out as the bridal party entered, and again as they left following the ceremony. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Abern, 1346 Balmoral Road, was given in marriage by her father, and chose for the ceremony a dress styled with a bodice of Chantilly lace over satin, buttoned down the front, with lily-point sleeves, and Beulah collar trimmed with pearls. The skirt was of net over satin with lace peplum. She wore a net fingertip veil trimmed with lace, and held to a satin coronet. Completing her ensemble, she wore pearl earrings and carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations and heather in colonial style.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Audrey Stinson, sister of the bride, wore a pink taffeta dress and carried a colonial bouquet of blue chrysanthemums. Brides matrons, Mrs. Margaret Cameron and Mrs. Shirley Weismiller, wore blue shot taffeta dresses with matching net bandeaux and colonial bouquets of pink chrysanthemums. Bridesmatron, Mrs. Rosemary Jones wore an orchid taffeta dress with matching

Women in the Employment Fields... What Training Is Offered Them?

Vocational training for women was discussed by experts at meeting of the Local Council of Women on Monday. The panel discussion, final of a series on "Women in Employment," had for its basis a resolution passed by the council at a previous meeting in which a request was made for a grant from the government for a Victoria extension of the vocational school now in operation in Vancouver.

Miss Marian Storey was chairman and the panel included J. H. Dalgleish, director of technical and adult education, Victoria School Board; E. L. Allen, provincial director of apprenticeships, department of labor, Vancouver, and J. S. White, provincial director of technical and vocational education with the department of education, Victoria.

FEW GIRL APPRENTICES

Speaking on apprenticeships, Mr. Allen said "we do not have many girls serving apprenticeships in the province. Most occupations for women stem from training in the school. Since apprenticeship requires two years, and other training so much less time, apprenticeship is not popular with girls."

One of the apprenticeships available is in the hairdressing field, chosen by many especially from outlying districts. Mr. Allen said the department of labor would like to see more women taking advantage of occupations open to young men in the two-to-six-year apprenticeships.

"There is a tremendous demand for skilled personnel in British Columbia," stated Mr. White, who dealt with post-high school training. He pointed out that at the vocational school in Vancouver, commercial courses are very popular. "The government is extending help in cases where a mother, having lost her husband must work to support her children. The tuition is paid during the training period, and an allotment for the family is given."

Training of nurses' aides is another popular course in which the trainees receive four months classroom training at the school, and eight months rotating practical training in hospitals.

Mr. Dalgleish dealt with training at secondary level. He advised that there were commercial courses offered in the high schools, but outside of this, very little vocational training for girls is available in Victoria. "A difficulty is the fact that in secondary school, girls are not yet sure what they want to do," he said. "There is a need for new courses to interest girls." Mr. Dalgleish suggested that this would also be a partial solution to the vast drop-outs in school. "In the case of training at the secondary level, there is a desperate need," he said, "but it is all a matter of cost."

Prior to the panel discussion Mrs. N. Phillips was named chairman of the nominating committee.

District Notes—The regular monthly meeting of the Victoria district executive will be held Thursday in room 201, Scollard Building at 8 p.m.

Scoutmasters, don't forget the Green-Plume meeting on Thursday at headquarters at 8 p.m.

The Cub pow-wow held Saturday afternoon at headquarters, 1084 Johnson Street, was attended by 26 "Sixers" under the leadership of District Cubmaster Phyllis Sheffield, with Akela Jean Shemilt and Rita Oliver assisting. Assistant district commissioner for Cub Scouts, Francis Naish took the "grand howl" and gave the Cub Scouts a talk on the responsibilities of a Sixer at the meetings.

Miss Sheffield spoke to the boys on their duties as Sixers outside of the meetings. A camp-fire song was run by Akela Jean Shemilt. F. Naish told the boys a story, and the event finished with pop and doughnuts.

Esquimal Group—A "going-up" ceremony was held Friday evening when Tim Stewart, Don Fitzpatrick, Art Bolivar and D. Holland went up to the troop and were welcomed by Scoutmaster Walter Pult.

Luxton Troop—A troop good turn was done by the Scouts. They repaired and moved the bus stop at Glen Lake corner; the boys will paint it and put in the window glass.

Gorge Vale Troop shovelled snow off the sidewalks for people who were unable to do it themselves.

NEW ARRIVAL: Red setter, found Victoria West. Name Pal on collar.

READY FOR ADOPTION: A lovely little 10-week-old puppy, black and white, considerably collie. Healthy and lovable.

Four little sisters, less than six weeks old. Will grow up to be little dogs—three-quarters terrier, one-quarter spaniel.

A lovely golden cocker, 11 months, female, is Suzie. Friendly and intelligent.

Sparky's people are moving a long way away... too far to take this soft-eyed, gentle black and white spaniel with them. One year old, female.

Big, sad-eyed, droop-jowled Pongo is as good a Newfoundland as you'll ever meet—except in the unfortunate matter of chickens. Two years old, male.

Boots, a rough-coated terrier, is almost a model for the original shaggy dog. He's one year old, apparently has had an unfortunate experience with young children as he doesn't like them—but he's a good house dog.

Short-haired terrier type, male, three years old. Name's Fatso, but he isn't really. Oh, aye, and here's a bonnie doddle—black and brown Scottie, 3½ years, very patient with children and a good watchdog.

RUSSIAN HEAD HOME BY WAY OF STATES

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—Eighteen athletes of the Russian Olympics team departed for Russia today by way of the United States.

The Soviet athletes were granted permission to travel through the United States on their Olympics credentials. The local authorities said members of many Olympic teams have expressed a desire to visit the United States on their way home, but commercial airlines have been unable to meet the huge demand for seats.

Cities are small in Saudi Arabia and their populations come and go. For it is desert country and most of the people are wandering Bedouins. There is enough rainfall to grow plenty of dates. But large farming operations are impossible. A little grain, fruits and vegetables are grown and camels and goats graze on the skimpy grasses of the highlands. Most of the country's income is from its petroleum supplies.

THE LITTLE KINGDOM OF SAUDI ARABIA

The little kingdom of Saudi Arabia has two capital cities. One is the everyday city of Riyadh where business of government is carried on. It is a desert town of 60,000 population.

The joint capital of Saudi Arabia is Mecca. This is a religious city, sacred to the memory of the prophet Mohammed who was born there. The Moslems who follow his teachings allow no member of any other religious faith to enter the walls of their sacred city. Mecca has a population of 150,000 which makes it the largest city of the land. Once a year its walls are filled with faithful Moslems who make pilgrimages from all over the world.

What is a Philatelist?

The word philatelist is coined from older Greek words. Usually the origin of a word gives us a clue to its meaning. This one is baffling. For those Greek words mean someone who loves tax free things. According to this, we could all be philatelists. For though sensible people pay up with a cheerful face, nobody honestly enjoys those little penny taxes on this and that. Perhaps a philatelist knows how to dodge the tax on these small items. Not at all. He has merely made a hobby of collecting certain items which are tax free by the time he gets them.

You could never guess the hobby from the origin of the word philately. But a philatelist has not always been called a philatelist. The original hobbyists were called timbromaniacs—here we can pounce on a clue. For timbre is French for postage stamp and a mania is a fad or a craze, depending on who is talking. A philatelist collects postage stamps.

The first stamp bore a picture of Queen Victoria and is now a valuable collector's item called the Penny Black. It was issued in England on May 6, 1840. Timbromania broke out almost at once. In 1841, a young lady advertised in the London Times for more used postage stamps. She was, she explained, using them to paper her dressing room. The 16,000 she already had were not enough to finish the job. What a treasure trove for someone to find in 1956!

Some folks made fun of the timbromaniacs. But the fad grew into a fascinating hobby. Collectors became more interested in unusual, rare and beautiful stamps than in bulk. A new name was needed for this new interest in the old fad. The word philately was coined in 1863. Philatelists really do love tax free things. For there is no tax on the little stamp that faithfully delivers a letter to your door. The tax has already been paid!

Some stamp collections are worth fortunes and many famous people are ardent philatelists.

The original hobbyists were called timbromaniacs—here we can pounce on a clue. For timbre is French for postage stamp and a mania is a fad or a craze, depending on who is talking. A philatelist collects postage stamps.

The first stamp bore a picture of Queen Victoria and is now a valuable collector's item called the Penny Black. It was issued in England on May 6, 1840. Timbromania broke out almost at once. In 1841, a young lady advertised in the London Times for more used postage stamps. She was, she explained, using them to paper her dressing room. The 16,000 she already had were not enough to finish the job. What a treasure trove for someone to find in 1956!

Some folks made fun of the timbromaniacs. But the fad grew into a fascinating hobby. Collectors became more interested in unusual, rare and beautiful stamps than in bulk. A new name was needed for this new interest in the old fad. The word philately was coined in 1863. Philatelists really do love tax free things. For there is no tax on the little stamp that faithfully delivers a letter to your door. The tax has already been paid!

Some stamp collections are worth fortunes and many famous people are ardent philatelists.

Almost all stamps are beautiful and interesting. All of them deserve a close look. The valuable ones are the rare ones, the beauties, those with errors and those with unusual post marks. Collectors love it when the government stamp printers make an error. In 1918, the U.S. printed an upside down airplane on a stamp. Those 20 cent stamps are now worth $24 to stamp philatelists. One of those rated as a beauty is a mourning picture of Queen Astrid of Belgium issued in 1935.

The most valuable stamp in the world is called the Penny Magenta. It was issued in British Guiana in 1856. In 1943, the Penny Magenta was valued at $150,000. This stamp is prettier than the cancelled three-cent stamps that deliver Andy's mail every day. But, so far as we know, it is now alone in the world and therefore unique.

Andy sends a Hammond Ambassador World Atlas to Connie Brogan, age 12, of Cape Elizabeth, Maine, for her question:

What is the capital of Saudi Arabia?

The little kingdom of Saudi Arabia has two capital cities. One is the everyday city of Riyadh where business of government is carried on. It is a desert town of 60,000 population.

The joint capital of Saudi Arabia is Mecca. This is a religious city, sacred to the memory of the prophet Mohammed who was born there. The Moslems who follow his teachings allow no member of any other religious faith to enter the walls of their sacred city. Mecca has a population of 150,000 which makes it the largest city of the land. Once a year its walls are filled with faithful Moslems who make pilgrimages from all over the world.

Cities are small in Saudi Arabia and their populations come and go. For it is desert country and most of the people are wandering Bedouins. There is enough rainfall to grow plenty of dates. But large farming operations are impossible. A little grain, fruits and vegetables are grown and camels and goats graze on the skimpy grasses of the highlands. Most of the country's income is from its petroleum supplies.

What is a Philatelist?

The word philatelist is coined from older Greek words. Usually the origin of a word gives us a clue to its meaning. This one is baffling. For those Greek words mean someone who loves tax free things. According to this, we could all be philatelists. For though sensible people pay up with a cheerful face, nobody honestly enjoys those little penny taxes on this and that. Perhaps a philatelist knows how to dodge the tax on these small items. Not at all. He has merely made a hobby of collecting certain items which are tax free by the time he gets them.

You could never guess the hobby from the origin of the word philately. But a philatelist has not always been called a philatelist. ## Disney Presses Dismissal of $415,000 Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Walt Disney, the movie cartoon magnate, Monday asked Superior Court again to dismiss a $415,000 invasion of privacy suit brought against him by actor Kirk Douglas.

Douglas alleges that Disney violated the actor's right of privacy by showing films of Douglas and his family riding on Disney's miniature train. The Douglas suit said that the films, used on a television show, were taken during a social gathering at Disney's home last April 4.

An answer to the suit filed on behalf of Disney today asked that the suit be dismissed and said Douglas had agreed to the filming in order to publicize a Disney movie in which Douglas appeared.

NEW YORK (AP)—The government has filed suit against Dashiell Hammett, mystery writer, to recover more than $111,000 allegedly owed by the author in taxes. The suit covers the years 1943, 1945, 1947 and 1950.

'PALMS MUST GO TO GRAHAM STEED'

Choral Society Hits New Peak In Stirring 'Messiah' Production

BY AUDEY ST.D. JOHNSON
Times Music Editor

Concert-going Victorians had reason for pride Monday night when a group of more than 100 city musicians presented Handel's "Messiah" at the Royal Theatre.

Only two of the four soloists and concert master Clifford Evans were imported for the occasion.

In its overall effectiveness, this was one of the best performances of the great work the Victoria Choral Society has ever given us. To a very great extent, of course, the palms must go to Graham Steed, the society's musical director.

He conducts with vitality and assurance, and by sheer authority and rhythmic impregnability was able to knit chorus and orchestra together on the two or three occasions when unanimity was shaken.

Tempo was excellent, giving the performance the sense of exaltation which the composer doubtless intended it to have. There was more of a feeling of enjoyment and less of striving on the part of the chorus than has been the case formerly.

One notable improvement was in the orchestral accompaniment which has so often been overwhelming, particularly for the soloists.

Monday night the balance of the ensemble was near-perfect. The 26-piece orchestra was drawn from the ranks of the Victoria Symphony which has repeatedly proved its mastery of the art of accompaniment.

Four well-matched soloists handled competently the lovely arias with which this oratorio teems. Margaret Abbott's voice is of fine quality, clear and smooth, and she sings with an easy fluency. This was especially notable in "Rejoice Greatly."

But it remained for Margaret Myles' rich, vibrant contralto with its implication of profound emotion, to move one close to tears in "He Was Despised." Mrs. Myles has the dramatic approach combined with a sincere reverence which makes her the ideal oratorio singer, particularly in "He Was Despised."

COSTS PLENTY TO 'HATE ELVIS'

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—It can cost more to hate Elvis Presley than to love him here. A downtown stand sells "I Hate Elvis" buttons for 15 cents. "I Love Elvis" emblems cost only a dime. The vendor had to cut the price of the "love" buttons because they weren't selling.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 12, 1956
 "The stars impel... They do not compel!"
 What you make of your life is largely up to you."

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—This is an excellent day for you to contact those of power who have different background and position or experience to your own. Let them know what you want. Be open-minded to the recommendations they make. Study newspaper for more data.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Now you can ask experts in their own fields in deepest confidence for the know-how to get what you want. If you are sincere, they will extend it to you. Also good for whatever has to do with deciding joint issues with intimates. Aid the unhappy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Go to the brilliant, logical-minded, swift-acting friend. Let him know your hopes and wishes. Then listen to understand the comments he has to make. If he will pitch in and help, so much the better. Co-operate efforts with all associates.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Now you have a day to be most worldly. You can put across those merchandising ideas, those talented outlets, but you have to get the backing of those officials, executives, authorities who are able to extend specific data.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Now you can get out of your own little rut. You will be able to make the acquaintance at last of newcomers who have special knowledge you need in fields which are vague, in which you have had little experience. Get data from all available sources.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Now you can uncover new methods and systems which will apply to your business or personal dealings with others. Make sure you do use your talent for detail by making notations and then following them. P.M. be romantic.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Now you can get that agreement with an impatient partner who sees your point clearly when you have stated it at last. Stop putting off. Be definite and state your views with clarity and precision, especially in business or personal relations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Plunge into every task awaiting your attention. This particularly has to do with office, files, correspondence, travelling home, furnishings, cleaning, plants, pets, closets, attic, basement, painting, sales, car and allied interests. Work now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—You are happy, if living right astrologically, and see how you can bring your creative ideas to the attention of those vital to their success as well as attachments, youngsters, in civic or park interests, with entertainment, sports, etc.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Make sure you have all those "low-down" things done which aren't much fun but which await your personal attention. Be sure you do them in such a manner that your family approves and to build up your assets. Then this is a good day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Now you are inspired and able to get in touch with those whose co-ordinate effort you need to be successful. Let them know what you want, confer how best to get it. Then pitch in and work together. Good also for newspaper, study, sales matters.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Now you have that day for which you have been waiting when you can concentrate upon making more money and getting your property in better shape. Look into systems that suit your needs. Then put them in effect. Get recordings you like.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN WEDNESDAY...
 Wednesday's child is one of those very aspiring and high-minded youngsters who will lose no time in going after what he or she wants. Be sure you early inculcate with the finest of ideals and principles so that this high-minded youngster will have a fast start toward the success which can be waiting for him or her. Excellent chart for whatever combines independence and pioneering. This child will always look at everything from the mental, intellectual angle. So be equally logical with him or her.

Tax Rate to Hold In North Cowichan

CHEMAINUS—There will be no increase in the general mill rate in North Cowichan unless "something entirely unforeseeable" happens, Coun. A. E. Craig, municipal finance chairman, told a ratepayers' meeting here.

"We should be able to keep the general mill rate at 10.5 mills, the same as last year," he said.

Tax collections to date total 92 per cent, comparing favourably with 96 per cent collected in 12 months last year. The municipality is keeping well within its budget for the year, he said.

Coun. Don Morton told the meeting the municipal fire prevention committee is working well. Commenting on the Che-mainus situation, he said there were only six alarms in the past six months and only one loss by fire, in this case a car.

"I think you people get very good fire protection for your two mill assessment," he said.

MORE ROADS
Coun. Morton said more money should be allocated for road work. "We don't need to be ashamed of what we have accomplished this year, but I do feel we should spend more money on our roads."

A detailed report on the municipal public works program was given by Coun. George Whittaker. He said that most of the proposed program had been completed, and that by the end of December most of the $110,000 allocated for public works would be spent.

Lumber Export Increases 1 Million Feet

CHEMAINUS—Lumber shipments from local ports climbed again last month, with a total of 14,193,510 board feet of lumber loaded aboard 17 ships at Chemainus and Crofton.

This total was over a million feet more than in October.

Bulk of last month's lumber shipments went to South Africa and Australia. A total of 4,838,232 board feet went to South Africa, and 3,279,000 board feet to Australia. Other shipments in lbm. were: United Kingdom, 2,370,532; U.S.A., 2,167,000; Portuguese East Africa, 940,746; Puerto Rico, 598,000. Some 117,725 board feet of logs also were shipped to the U.S.A.

Other shipments last month included 9,240 tons of pulp chips to American markets and 30 tons of pulp to Puerto Rico.

Women Golfers Elect Mrs. Mary Bennie

CHEMAINUS—Mrs. Mary Bennie was elected captain of the ladies' division of Mt. Brenton Golf Club.

Indian Hits Ousting By Refugees

DUNCAN (CP)—A native Indian of the Cowichan Valley, and a member of the IWA, Local 180, has protested the displacement of his people, along with other lumber workers, from jobs to provide jobs for 14,000 refugees from Europe.

John Elliott presented his resolution at the quarterly meeting Sunday and received unanimous support.

It was adopted with the addition that the meeting was in favor of immigration when it was controlled, and when immigrants could be immediately absorbed into the economy of the country.

Rural Trustees Elected To Nanaimo Board

NANAIMO (CP)—The board of Nanaimo School District No. 68 was completed Monday with the election of two trustees from the rural area. They are Mrs. Catherine Coats and Trustee Arthur Day, who was re-elected.

City school trustees elected by acclamation following the close of civic nominations Thursday were Ted Barsby and Sandy McKay, both of whom have served on the school board before.

COWS KICK BUCKETS—DON'T LIKE COLD HANDS

NANAIMO—Dairy cows in the Central Vancouver Island area are feeling the pinch and unhappiness of the recent inclement weather because power failures have forced dairymen to discard their electrically-operated milking machines.

Said one operator: "Hand-milking is almost a lost art, and the cows don't appreciate a cold hand. Yesterday's milking took almost twice as long as usual and we lost a lot of milk from kicked buckets."

CLOUDS STALL AIRLINER HUNT

8,029-FOOT MT. SILVERTIP SHROUDS LOST AIRLINER

Missing TCA North Star airliner is believed to have crashed on 8,029-foot Mount Silvertip, south and west of Hope, B.C. Rugged country today was swathed in cloud, preventing search planes from spotting wreckage. Map shows location of search area 110 miles northeast of Victoria.

Am I Being My Real Self?

(As a special Christmas feature the Times is publishing a serialisation of the new book, "The Art of Real Happiness." Co-author is Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, whose book "The Power of Positive Thinking" was warmly received by Times readers. There will be 12 instalments.)

CHAPTER 2

By Norman Vincent Peale, DD, and Smiley Blanton, MD

"Am I doing what I really ought to be doing? Am I being my real self?" These are the queries of many of us who wonder if we are making the best of our opportunities, or are unhappy about our living conditions, or just generally confused about the complexities of modern life. We all have unfulfilled dreams and yearnings. Each of us feel at times that life has passed us by, and we don't know how to catch up with it.

Taking a realistic survey of one's God-given talents is more difficult than it appears. People think that they know themselves, but they really do not. They are usually ignorant of the complexity of their intellectual and emotional lives.

This was true of a 25-year-old girl whom we will call Janet. She was a most pathetic figure when she seated herself inside our counselling room at the clinic. "I came to your clinic," she told us, "because I am afraid I will kill myself unless someone helps me."

Then, between sobs, Janet told us a story we hear often in one form or another. She had come to New York to make a career for herself as a concert pianist. In a Greenwich Village apartment, she had found a teacher who had worked with her for nearly four years. "She kept encouraging me," Janet said. "Even when I wondered about my ability, she told me that I could become a great pianist if only I would work harder. But every time I asked her if I was ready for an audition, she kept putting me off. Several weeks ago I met a man who is a piano accompanist. I told him of my ambition and asked if I could play for him."

Janet paused again, to control her voice. "I played for him. I thought I did very well. He was nice about it, but he said I was wasting my time, because I just didn't have the ability to be a concert pianist."

"I was furious with him, of course," she continued. "So I went to see another music teacher. She agreed with the accompanist. Then I had it out with my own teacher, who blew up at me, called me names and said she would have nothing more to do with me."

"Now I don't know what to do or where to turn. I can't go home and face my parents and friends. I've told my

EASTERN TORIES BUCK PRO-BRITISH ATTITUDE

By VICTOR J. MACKIE, Times Ottawa Correspondent
OTTAWA—Emanating from Quebec and Ontario a strong provincial rights sentiment is apparent in the discussions under way in Progressive Conservative convention's resolutions and policy committee, and it may be incorporated in the revision of the party's platform to be approved by the national convention later this week.

A reaction against any strong pro-British attitude is also noted among Quebec delegates who want to avoid having the Progressive Conservative Party labelled as the "Union Jack" party in Canadian politics.

WHAT WILL DREW DO?

Quebec Split On Tory Race

OTTAWA (BUP)—Enthusiasm mounted at the Conservative national convention today as more pledged delegates arrived and workers for the three leadership candidates saw they had a stiff fight on their hands.

As the heavy campaigning got under way in hotel rooms and lobbies, it appeared that John Diefenbaker still was the leading candidate but would not win an easy victory. His workers stepped up their activities, spreading "Diefenbaker for Leader" propaganda.

The two other candidates, Donald Fleming of Toronto, and E. Davie Fulton of Kamloops, were showing unexpectedly wide support. But it was difficult to assess their ultimate voting strength, since pledges meant little in the secret balloting which will be held Friday afternoon.

Strike Cripples Budapest; Soviet Tanks Ring City

FROM REUTERS AND UP
Hundreds of Russian tanks locked Budapest in a ring of steel today, as all Hungary lay paralyzed in the grip of one of the most complete strikes in history.

Meanwhile, violent fighting is in progress in the hills surrounding Pecs in southern Hungary. This area contains the country's uranium mines. Several hundred workers armed with rifles and light machine-guns were reported fighting Communist government police, who are backed by light Soviet forces.

In Vienna reports were circulating that Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar has either committed suicide or been liquidated by the Russians. The report came from a Western diplomat who arrived in Vienna today from the Hungarian capital.

Refugees reaching Austria said the Soviet tanks stopped all movement in or out of the capital when the strike started officially at midnight. There

Magnificent Sails Dec. 28

HALIFAX (CP)—The aircraft carrier Magnificent is to leave here Dec. 28 with more troops for Canada's contribution to the United Nations police force in the Middle East, plus some air force personnel.

HUNGARY'S FIGHTING STUDENTS

Canadian Aid Reaches Brave Freedom Fighters

Help from Canada has reached Vienna, where the 40 students to benefit by The Times "Hungary's Fighting Students" fund have shown themselves to be pathetically grateful.

Word came from Miss Rita Baechler, Quaker worker in Vienna in a letter to Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian-Service Committee in Canada. The USC administers the fighting students' fund, to which Victorians now have given $2,918. A house has been found in Vienna for the students—an old inn—and they are clearing out rubbish, cleaning rooms, and trying to secure some furnishings.

"With your first emergency contribution we are able to feed the students and to make the most urgent purchases of different personal needs," Miss Baechler wrote. "We had to buy medical supplies since some of them are ill from overstrain. They are infinitely thankful to you and told me to express their thanks to the Unitarian Service Committee."

There are both men and women on the roster of students who fought the Russians, but one of the most gallant—and one of the 40 students to be helped by the fund—is a boy of only 19.

Little Hope For 62 on TCA North Star

From The Canadian Press

Search for a missing TCA North Star airliner slowed to a virtual standstill today.

Search officials, though officially hopeful, were growing more pessimistic by the hour.

The eastbound airliner with 62 persons aboard vanished Sunday night.

It was returning to Vancouver with one engine dead.

Its position then was reported as over mountainous terrain near Hope, 110 miles northeast of Victoria, by Captain Allan Clark, 35, of Montreal.

Search planes, comprising 17 RCAF and the rest civilian, will concentrate on investigating the sides and peak of 8,029-foot-high Silvertip Mountain, 20 miles southwest of Hope.

Low clouds and falling snow hampered the search early this morning. Clouds were expected to lift later today.

"If this happens, we have 45 aircraft standing by for immediate take-off," said Sqdn. Ldr. G. L. Sheahan, in charge of the RCAF search and rescue.

"We are tracking down every clue and all information that is coming in," said the searchmaster.

"So far, the information indicates strongly the plane is down in the Silvertip Mountain area."

He said at least nine persons had reported seeing "flashes of light" and hearing the drone of motors in the area shortly after 7 p.m. (PST) Sunday.

A ground party will make a check among isolated settlers in the area.

Last radio contact with the stricken liner was at 7:09 p.m. Sunday.

'Could Be Wreckage'

Monday, when 18 planes scoured the area under difficult weather conditions, one RCAF spotter reported seeing something on the side of Silvertip "which could have been wreckage."

"Until we have searched every inch of that mountain it will definitely remain our prime consideration," said the searchmaster.

The whole area covers 1,200 square miles, including the Upper Fraser Valley and the snow-covered peaks surrounding it.

Sqdn. Ldr. Sheahan and other search officials still held hope there could be survivors among the 59 passengers and the three-man crew on the missing plane.

One official said: "If the big North Star crash-landed, its heavy construction could easily have withstood the shock of an emergency landing."

"In that case, there is a very strong possibility that there are survivors," said the official.

"That is the reason also for the urgency in this search, of course."

But if the airliner exploded as may be indicated by reports of flare-ups and huge flashes, "there is little likelihood of life," he added.

Sqdn. Ldr. Sheahan instructed his crews to search both Silvertip Mountain and the nearby Mount Shehm "from top to bottom, if necessary from tree to tree."

"You will search and search and search, all day if necessary," he said. However, he said clouds were lower over the mountains today than on Monday and "in this weather it looks difficult" to sight anything on the mountain.

A TCA spokesman, asked whether there was any

Sooke 'Diviner' Offers To Find Lost Plane

A Sooke resident, K. L. Shepherd, with an "uncanny" ability as a water diviner, and at finding lost people, has asked Mayor Percy Scurrell to arrange for him to assist in finding the downed TCA airliner.

Mayor Scurrell said he received a call from Mr. Shepherd, asserting his abilities and asking the mayor to find him transportation to the search area.

Mayor Scurrell promised to pass the request along to local TCA officials.

Mr. Shepherd was reluctant to describe his ability other than to say, "It is the same idea as water divining." He said he would only give evidence of his ability if transportation arrangements could be made.

Sooke residents questioned said, "He is amazing at finding lost wells and people. It's uncanny." They added, Sooke detachment RCMP was "convinced of this man's ability."

Hungary Walks Out at UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The Hungarian delegation today walked out of the General Assembly in protest against what it called UN interference in Hungary's internal affairs.

The surprise move came as the 79-country assembly debated a U.S.-sponsored move to condemn the Soviet Union for refusing to withdraw its armed forces from Hungary.

ed in the Chateau Laurier Hotel. At the convention headquarters at Lansdowne Park, the resolutions and policy committee went into the second day of private meetings. The organization and publicity committee was also scheduled to meet today.

RELEASED THURSDAY

The draft platform, designed to woo Conservative votes in next year's expected general election, will be made public Thursday, just before the main convention begins debate on it.

The strongest two campaigns under way in the policy-making 163-member committee were understood to be to drop "Progressive" from the party's official title, and write in a vote-catching social security plank calling for higher old age pensions.

Registration of official delegates, numbering 1,472 with votes and 795 alternates, will begin at Lansdowne Park late today. Indications were that close to the maximum attendance would be achieved, although early registration was likely to be slim. It will continue all day tomorrow, before and after the official opening at 2:30 p.m.

It became increasingly evident that the 342 voting delegates representing Quebec province were unlikely to support any one of the three leadership candidates en masse. Fleming appeared to have the strongest support among Quebec delegates, but others were active for Fulton and Diefenbaker.

Leon Balcer of Three Rivers, Que., president of the Conservative Association and French-speaking chairman of the convention, was understood to have not openly committed himself on the leadership issue. He announced last month that he would run for leader, but later withdrew.

Quebec followers of Premier Maurice Duplessis were believed to be ready to swing solidly behind University of Toronto President Sidney Smith, who reportedly had Duplessis' personal blessing, but Smith has declined to run.

DROUIN MAY RUN

Mark Drouin, a Quebec City lawyer and one-time vice-president of the National Conservative Association, said he considered running for leader in the absence of another candidate from Quebec.

Retired leader George Drew, scheduled to address the convention Wednesday has not indicated his preference in a successor, it was understood. He was not expected to make a choice between Fulton and Fleming if he decided to indicate his favorite in his convention farewell address.

hope that some of the 59 passengers and three crew would be found alive, replied dejectedly that the poor flying conditions did not help their chances.

There is still hope, he said, but storms in the mountains make the search operation a "pretty difficult thing."

Authorities emphasized that the first day or so is crucial, since survivors, if there are any, might die of starvation, exposure or lack of medical care if not reached in time.

There was also the chance that a new fall of snow would cover the wreckage and make detection from the air impossible, possibly for weeks or months.

If worst fears are realized, it will be the worst crash in Canadian aviation history.

Fliers of the 18 aircraft which took part in Monday's search reported winds in the mountains that "just about put us on our back," and at times reaching a velocity of 90 miles an hour.

The extreme turbulence over the mountains was buffeting even the biggest planes.

Searchers and airlines' officials alike were mystified by the plane's disappearance without so much as a hint that it was in serious trouble.

A TCA official said that even if two engines had failed, the airliner should have been able to make it back to Vancouver. Failure of three engines was a "mathematical impossibility."

Capt. Art Rankin, western superintendent of TCA flying operations, said the plane was not on fire when it was last heard from.

Icing Theory Advanced

One theory was that the airliner fell out of the air from the crushing weight of ice forming on it in the gale-swept mountains. Another was that it crashed into a mountain peak.

After the radio report at 7:09 p.m., Sunday, nothing was heard from the plane. TCA said no kind of distress signal was received, "not even an indication of stress," though under normal circumstances the crew could have got in touch with Vancouver any time it wanted to.

"What could have happened is beyond explanation at present," a spokesman for the airline said.

Six air force planes continued the search until 11 p.m. Monday when rain, swirling through the mountains, and thick, bumpy clouds in the 2,000 to 3,000-foot levels caused them to return to base.

A four-man government board was appointed Monday to make a preliminary investigation into the plane's disappearance.

Its chairman is D. D. Murphy, district superintendent of air regulations here. Other members are W. R. Lavery, inspector of air regulations at Vancouver; Joe Bertalino, inspector of aircraft here, and W. M. Johnson, inspector of air regulations, Ottawa.

They will report to Transport Minister Marler.

Only Son Missing On TCA Airliner

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vivian Clarke dreamed Sunday night that she and her pilot husband were together on an enchanted flight through star-filled skies, with shimmering snow beneath them on the mountains.

Then she learned that her husband Allan, formerly of Montreal, was missing along with 61 other persons aboard a Trans-Canada Airlines plane.

Mrs. Clarke said Monday she and her husband celebrated their wedding anniversary just before he left on the eastbound flight. The celebration had been delayed a week because he was fogbound in Winnipeg. He gave her a drop necklace in Indian mosaic.

She described how she reacted to the news that her husband was missing:

"I was dreaming that we were both up flying. I used to be stewardess on his flight, you see. And it was a beautiful night. Smooth. Stars. Snow on the mountain... so I thought it was all part of the dream."

She broke off. "I told the two boys at breakfast. I told them Daddy might not be back in time to get the Christmas cards away."

COBALT, Ont. (CP)—A Chinese restaurateur today tearfully awaited news of his son, smuggled out of Communist China last week and now listed among 62 persons aboard the lost Trans-Canada Air Lines plane.

George Woon said he paid a "substantial" amount to a black market organization in the Canton area of China to have his son Ela Woon Yuen Way, 18, smuggled into Hong Kong. The youth flew from Hong Kong to Vancouver during the weekend and there boarded the North Star airliner, now missing in the British Columbia interior.

"He is my only boy," sobbed Mr. Woon. "I have three daughters."

Dynamic Policy NATO's Goal

'Wise Men' Rewrite Report
After Anglo-French Suez Actions

By ALAN HARVEY, Canadian Press Staff Writer
PARIS (CP)—Atlantic Pact ministers today launched an urgent effort to restore Western unity and shape a dynamic joint political policy.

The ministers opened their four-day council meeting against the sombre background of tougher Russian tactics and discord over Suez policy.

In formal session at the Palais de Chaillot and in private talks, the Atlantic partners will attempt wide-ranging reappraisal of the seven-year alliance.

Two main overlapping objectives are:

1. Restore normal friendly

Need for Consultation Stressed

Need for consultation before action by any NATO countries is stressed in the report of the NATO committee of three "wise men"—foreign ministers L. B. Pearson of Canada, Gaetano Martino of Italy and Halvard Lange of Norway.

Pearson is reported to have rewritten political provisions of the "wise men" report after the Anglo-French action in Egypt, inserting more forceful phrases. On the way to today's meeting Pearson called on Dulles at the American Embassy.

Mustn't Endanger Solidarity

Martino, the chairman, said the recent rift between the three western powers showed that no action should be undertaken by a NATO country that might endanger Atlantic solidarity.

"Events have demonstrated that our security is incomplete if our co-operation leaves out of account spheres of action extending beyond the area of our alliance."

Referring to Soviet penetration of the Middle East, he added:

"It seems hardly necessary to draw your attention to the importance of this Soviet move which aims at the control of the Suez Canal and of the oil fields with the intention to undermine not only western defence but also, by depriving us of essential supplies, to weaken western economies."

A major topic of discussion will be a proposed secret policy directive, drafted by the ministers' permanent council in Paris, which if accepted would put increased dependence on the modern weapons of warfare with a consequent reduction in manpower.

Lord Ismay, NATO secretary-general, gave reporters this explanation of the thinking behind such a policy:

"It is doubtful whether any Allied nation can contribute more money towards defence relations between the United States and Britain and France. What one NATO official called the "great reconciliation" already has started with separate meetings of State Secretary Dulles of the U.S. and foreign ministers Selwyn Lloyd of Britain and Christian Pineau of France.

2. Draw up a political directive designed to prevent episodes on the Suez model.

Dulles today delivered a 50-minute address at the council's opening session, calling upon the Atlantic Pact powers to recognize the importance of working through the United Nations and condemning the "use of force as an instrument of national policy."

In the main Dulles avoided any direct recriminations against Britain and France. He paid warm tribute to the two countries for complying promptly and unreservedly with the UN demand for the withdrawal of their troops.

than it is doing now. Costs of equipment are going up by leaps and bounds while other expenses are remaining more or less static.

"It is vital that the alliance should determine the size and pattern of forces which must be maintained to meet the new conditions."

The committee was asked by Victoria Chamber of Commerce to repair the seaplane float in inner harbor.

It was pointed out most planes using the float have business with government departments. It was recommended the provincial government make the repairs to the float.

Ald. Dowell said it might cost "a couple of million dollars". The committee asked city engineer James C. Garnett to explore possibilities.

Short-Term Parking Plan Drawn Up

A businessmen's committee concerned with downtown short-term parking will bring proposals to city council for action, Ald. Arthur Dowell said Monday.

He told a meeting of Victoria public works committee, of which he is chairman, the committee has been formed. But he could not elaborate on its intentions.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said the city works committee should take the lead, should explore formation of a parking authority such as Vancouver's Downtown Parking Commission and arrange a meeting with the businessmen's group.

The public works committee also gave study to the problem of all-day parkers in downtown fringe areas, who plug residential home fronts. A traffic sub-committee will be asked to consider recommending a two-hour limit throughout the affected area.

The committee revived discussion of one civic improvement which has been periodically aired and forgotten—possible construction of a bridge across Rock Bay which would take commercial traffic off Government and Douglas and relieve the Fountain Circle.

Ald. Dowell said it might cost "a couple of million dollars". The committee asked city engineer James C. Garnett to explore possibilities.

$1.3 Billion Aid Extended Britain

Monetary Fund Credits Will Assist
U.K. Ride Out Financial Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—Britain has been extended credits of $1,300,000,000 by the International Monetary Fund to help her ride out a financial storm brought on primarily by the Middle East crisis.

The action was announced Monday night by the 60-country fund created in 1947 to help governments caught in such situations to maintain stable currencies.

Of the credit advanced, $561,740,000 is designed to add to Britain's monetary reserves, which have sunk below the $2,000,000,000 figure regarded by the London government as a minimum for safe financial dealings.

The additional $738,530,000 was made available upon request of the British government at any time within the next 12 months.

Anglican Vicar Unfrocked

CHESTER, Eng. (Reuters)—A Church of England court today unfrocked a vicar who was found alive in Switzerland and living with a woman after allegedly faking death by drowning.

There were two complaints against the clergyman, Rev. Philip Wilson Ross, 52. The first was that in the summer of 1955 he "wilfully abandoned the pastoral care" of his parish at Woodford, Chester, in such a way as to deceive people into believing he was dead.

Second was that from August, 1955, to November 17, 1956, he had "habitually committed adultery."

The vicar did not appear in court but filed an admission of the charges and consented to sentence.

Your surest approach to freedom from tooth decay
is twice-yearly visits to your dentist... proper diet...and regular daily brushings with an advanced dentifrice like new BRISK
fluoride toothpaste

Scientists have known for years that tooth decay was virtually nonexistent in some areas of Canada and the United States. The reason was a natural supply of fluoride in the drinking water. Prompted by this finding, Colgate-Palmolive created Brisk Fluoride Toothpaste. While the dental profession feels that further positive clinical confirmation is needed to establish fluoride's dramatic results when used in a dentifrice, laboratory tests indicate that it offers definite benefits. Brisk Fluoride Toothpaste exclusively combines sodium fluoride with the previously-proven decay-fighter (Sodium N-Lauryl Sarcosinate). Together these features add up to the greatest potential advancement ever offered by a dentifrice—yours only through Brisk Fluoride Toothpaste.

Only Colgate's BRISK has Fluoride/85

Fluoride/85 not only gives you sodium fluoride, but also provides a tested decay acid fighter Sodium N-Lauryl Sarcosinate that starts working instantly... keeps working all day against the formation of harmful decay-causing acids.

Hall Votes and the Future

RESIDENTS OF VICTORIA, Saanich and Oak Bay will vote this week on issues which will decide for some time to come the possibility of closer integration of services under the control of their respective councils.

In the city and Saanich the question is phrased in clear terms. Voters are asked if they wish to continue investigation of the possibilities of a joint city hall and pooling of selected services. In Oak Bay property owners are requested to support a $275,000 money by-law for a new municipal hall.

If the Oak Bay by-law passes with the required majority, it will discourage hopes of early amalgamation. That, in itself, will not prevent unification of certain services. Such unification becomes inevitable in specific fields as municipal evolution continues.

Failure to appreciate this fact and to act accordingly will ultimately relieve the council of control over some lines of activity as force of circumstances leads to the creation of metropolitan boards. Once established these agencies frequently act independently of councils.

In the city and Saanich the public has the chance to instruct its representatives to follow the wise course of giving further study to a joint hall proposal and pooling of selected services.

That seems the rational procedure to follow. The natural growth of this community has little regard to the artificial boundaries of municipalities. More and more the inter-dependence of one entity on another is becoming apparent. To gain the greatest advantages from such developments the old parochial prides of an earlier day must disappear and complementary administrations must look ahead to concerted action on community problems.

The trend of tax rates in recent years should, in itself, indicate the advisability of closer integration. The old bugbear of high city taxes is losing its impressiveness as the rates of the other municipalities draw closer into line with those of Victoria. As improvements proceed in the municipalities the differences will be even further reduced.

The arguments in favor of amalgamation have been repeated continuously over the years in these columns. They should be understood by readers.

It is important, however, to emphasize the point that votes on municipal halls this week will greatly assist or greatly hinder constructive efforts toward unity for the community.

That is the issue which citizens are asked to keep in mind as they mark their ballots on Thursday in the city and Saturday in the municipalities.

There Is No Comparison

WHATEVER MAY BE THE verdict of history on the Anglo-French military intervention in Egypt, the fact cannot be disputed that the two allies have complied with United Nations resolutions in regard both to a cease-fire and the withdrawal of troops. The Egyptian incident therefore ceases to be an alleged "parallel" to which Russia can point when defending its actions in Hungary. For the Soviet Union, along with its puppet regime in Hungary, has refused even to permit United Nations observers to study the Hungarian situation at first hand.

The communist conduct throughout the Hungarian trouble has been in flagrant disregard of the rights of nations under the UN Charter.

Operation Noah

WHILE SCORES OF CITY RESIDENTS continued today to count flood costs in dollars and heartbreak, one feature of the emergency stood out on the credit side. When the flooding occurred, there were willing hands to help those in need. The way in which various groups and individuals volunteered their services and, disregarding personal considerations, went to the assistance of others will be remembered not only by the people who were helped but by the entire city.

Reconciliation Must Be Gradual

MORE THAN ORDINARY SIGNIFICANCE is attached to President Eisenhower's recent appointment of a new commissioner of education.

The appointee is Dr. Lawrence Gridley Derthick, a man born and educated in the South. He is, as well, an educator of competence, held in high esteem by his fellow school administrators and a person closely in touch with sentiment in Tennessee, where he has spent his professional life.

While Dr. Derthick was superintendent of Chattanooga's schools, the city's school board voted for desegregation and then, under pressure

This is the type of response which gives a town grounds for pride in the spirit of its people.

Identical conditions to those on Sunday may never be repeated in a lifetime. Yet it speaks well for the citizens of this community that in an emergency they knew what to do and did it without thought for reward.

Lacking such action the results could have been far more serious—might even have justified some of the almost hysterical reports broadcast from the city.

Of pro-segregationists, reversed itself. Such experience gives the new official first-hand knowledge of present limits in the move to lift the color bar entirely from schools in accordance with the U.S. Supreme Court's rulings.

He is in a position to act with wisdom in the gradual reconciliation of the southern states to the ruling of the court. And the reconciliation cannot be other than gradual because of the traditional and emotional elements involved in the question.

Under him the extremists of both sides should be held in check and the integration concept should evolve rationally.

Books for Central Saanich

CENTRAL SAANICH IS AGAIN concerned over the cost of library service it receives from the bookmobile.

Opinions have been expressed at public meetings that charges are too high and that adequate service could be supplied at much less than the $6,000 a year now required.

The thoughtful people of Central Saanich no doubt have analysed such arguments. They might draw interesting information from the most recent report of the Canadian Library Association which made a study of library possibilities on the basis of population.

That authoritative body found that complete, independent municipal library service was not feasible for centres of less than 25,000 population and that the cost for such would run to approximately $37,500 a year. Central Saanich has a population of roughly 2,400. Conceivably it could create for itself a modified circulating library with limited book supplies for something less than $6,000 a year. How much that would allow for a librarian's salary and for purchase of books is a matter which Central Saanich has probably investigated.

At all events, such a scheme would not enable the municipality to draw on the 115,000 volumes, including expensive technical books, which the present arrangement with the Victoria Public Library provides.

Central Saanich should have no illusions about the results of a policy of "going it alone" in the library field. Nor should residents ignore the fact that they can only have what they pay for. On that basis they seem to be enjoying a favorable arrangement with the public library at bargain rates.

Teeth at Last!

THE OTTAWA SCENE

The Tribune's Kiss of Death

PRIME MINISTER St. Laurent's condemnation of the major powers, in particular Britain and France, during the recent special session of parliament, has brought him high praise from embarrassing sources. Such was the unwanted tribute paid editorially by the Chicago Tribune when it described

Mackie

Mr. St. Laurent's remarks as representing "an encouraging growth of the isolationist spirit." The Tribune, never regarded with much favor among Canadian Liberals, both large "L" and small "l", purloined that the prime minister had added to his stature "as a Canadian nationalist, which is to say patriot." Thoughtful members of the Liberal party were worried after Mr. St. Laurent made that speech, with reason.

Controversy

Agriculture Minister Gardiner can almost always be depended upon to stir up some controversy when he speaks these days. His opening remarks to the federal-provincial agricultural conference aroused criticism among many delegates when he suggested that Canada had at least as high a standard of living among her farm population as could be found anywhere among farmers.

Most delegates muttered that the American farmer enjoyed a higher living standard. Later when they had their chance to speak, provincial ministers and representatives of farm organizations suggested that Mr. Gardiner's contention was open to attack. They argued that the Canadian farmer was not obtaining his fair share of the national income.

First

A "first" was established during the agricultural conference at Ottawa. A joint delegation from the Interprovincial Farm Union Council and the Canadian Congress of Labor, met with representatives of the cabinet to present a joint submission. It was the first time representatives of organized labor had joined with a farmers' organization to interview the Cabinet. They said they were like "old pals" together.

Submission

The joint farm-labor delegation dealt with the problems of agriculture and the farm implement industry. The representatives of organized labor pointed out in a subsequent press conference, that they were well aware that the farm implement industry would be in difficulties so long as the Canadian farmer was in financial difficulties. J. L. Phelps, chairman of the Canadian Farmer-Labor economic council, emphasized for newspapermen the fact that organized labor and the farmers were becoming increasingly aware of the need to work together to solve their problems.

Dispute

During the press conference a representative of an Ontario newspaper suggested it was difficult to reconcile the viewpoints of farmers with the viewpoints of organized labor. Representatives of the Interprovincial Farm Council and the Canadian Labor Congress blandly assured the reporter that the farmer and organized labor's representatives were indeed reconciled and working together.

Such friendliness between organized labor and representatives of western farmers might mean that western farmers would soon find that farm workers were being organized, this correspondent suggested. Mr. Phelps insisted that he personally would have no objection to employing farm workers on his farm who were organized provided the western farmer obtained his fair share of the national income.

Refugees

The speed with which Hungarian refugees are being cleared and sent on their way to Canada, while warranted from a humanitarian point of view, brings up the question of security. Under normal procedure refugees are checked closely to determine if they would have Communist sympathies that might make them bad security risks once they settled in Canada.

With the flow of Hungarian refugees being moved speedily into this country it is possible that the Communist party might seek to plant agents. This is a possibility that is not being overlooked by the government agencies responsible for guarding against subversive operations within Canada.

Antagonism

Walter Tucker, member of parliament for Saskatchewan's Rosthern constituency attended the NATO parliamentary conference in Paris last month. He reported on his return that there was a strong anti-American sentiment present among European delegates to the NATO meeting. The Europeans were of the opinion that the Suez and Israeli difficulties had worsened because of American fumbling and bumbling in its Middle East policies. When the situation flared into a shooting war the Europeans blamed the United States and were blunt in their condemnation of the role being played by the Americans. Mr. Tucker was worried about the effect such anti-American sentiment might have on the strength of NATO.

As Our Readers See It

Thanks for the Push

May I take this opportunity through your paper to say many thanks to a group of Naval Cadets who came to our aid during the storm on Tuesday night. We were stalled on the hill just outside of the dockyard. About six of them came to our assistance, got us on the move then went to the aid of others. If they should read this, I say again thanks fellows for the good deed!

We Weren't There Because...

I can tell you why I and perhaps some other people stayed away from the discussion on "Whether Education Is Expensive."

We are the people who, for some reason or another, are not fortunate enough to have children at present, and perhaps may never have them. We receive no income tax deductions, no family allowance cheques, but we are expected to not only help pay for other people's children to be educated in nice new schools but smile happily while we do it!

If we dare open our mouths about education, schools or anything to do with children there is the inevitable kind person who will ask what we know about the subject as we have no children.

And many of us are certainly not in the fortunate position of the gentleman who stated that his tax bill is the cheapest bill that comes into his house! How many Cadillacs does he own?

Everyone in Canada is not on the gravy-train and "a few extra dollars" added to our taxes every year do mean a lot to us.

So you see it wasn't just "apathy" that kept some of us away from that discussion. We just didn't feel like wasting our time.

"WIDOW."

How Stupid...

In your letter column a question was asked—"How stupid can we get?" Stupidity seems to be progressive at least in this community.

Here are a few examples. First—"the totem in the bush" as one writer aptly described it, is a glaring example. After all the careful and expert handling, it was placed in the hands of bunglers to select a site, but it is not too late to move it to its proper setting, in Thunderbird Park where anybody and everybody may see without walking a mile.

Next is the dizzy tip at the Fountain where all the traffic from main highways is funneled into one bottleneck.

Third is the proposed race track at Beaver Lake where all the drainage from estates and thousands of people would drain into the Lake where bathing and picnicking is becoming increasingly popular, and the Health authorities sit on the side lines, sound asleep. And last but not least is our water supply and the watershed.

Some years ago, shortly after the concrete flow line was completed from Sooke Lake to the reservoir, copper sulphate (Bluestone) was used in an attempt to destroy algae and vegetation in the lake. Over the years tons of this poison was used without appreciable result—only to kill fish, snakes, frogs and other water life.

The dead and dying drifted down to the intake at the dam, where—believe it or not—samples were taken for bacterial examination! Copper sulphate is an acid salt and—most corrosive to iron pipe and to concrete. It also has a tendency to harden water. It has not been used for some years but it goes to show how stupid we can get.

And now they propose to destroy the forest cover. The mayor said a short time ago that the watershed needed cleaning up. If there is anything that needs cleaning up, it is the water board and its advisors. The watershed is not the only place with rotten timber.

For some years the dripping jaws of timber priates have been eager to devour that timber.

Here is what the National Geographic, in a splendid article in the September issue, has to say about watersheds: "You must keep the watersheds in cover, whatever is best suited to individual soil, climate and degree of slope is the best cover as a rule. For most steep watersheds, in this country, the prime cover is forest. How does a forest protect a watershed? Dropped leaves, needles, dead limbs and plants, even the fallen bodies of trees help form top soil. This precious material, the trees bind with their roots so that neither wind nor water can dislodge it."

Now, how stupid can we get?

Garbage

I am a puzzled taxpayer and would like to voice a little protest to the confused muddle of our garbage disposal controversy.

1. We have the brickyard disposal project, which was given a sound thrashing by the people of that district.

2. There was the $50,000 for a new disposal wharf, so we could still have the bottles, tin cans, grapefruit and orange skins floating in on shore and decorating our coast line.

3. The Garbage Pulverizer plan that would cost the city nothing and provide free fertilizer for local parks, also saving the city a large amount of money per year.

4. A very costly plan to bury garbage at Thetis Lake Park, in a swamp, the equipment costing $78,000 with a yearly outlay of another $18,000 for upkeep, poor taxpayer.

Of the four above systems I would think No. 3 seems to be the sanest most healthy and the most saving to the taxpayers' pocket. I don't know if this plan was devised by the Health Department, the Engineer's Department or the Council, but I would think before the last mentioned No. 4 project is considered, our council should enlighten us more on the No. 3 project.

Another thing that is objectionable to No. 4 project is that I and any other citizen whether taxpayer or not, wouldn't relish picnicking on a swamp that has been filled with garbage, as the gases of the decomposing trash would penetrate the soil cover, and there are many places along our water fronts where the ground has been undisturbed for centuries and would be more preferable to everyone.

Where are the voices of our McMillans and the other vocal members of our progressive Council? Are they leaving this subject to a one man dictation project?

I would like to see other taxpayers voice their opinions on this subject through the medium of your valuable paper column.

J. R. SCOTT.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

Where War Might Start

A SERIOUS study of Soviet Premier Bulganin's November 20th letter to President Eisenhower, and of a possible American response to it, is now going on at the highest levels of government.

The study could conceivably lead to an absolutely basic change in American policy and indeed in the whole world situation.

When the Bulganin letter was received, the first instinct in the White House and the State Department was to dismiss it out of hand as propaganda designed to divert attention from the Hungarian bloodbath then still in progress. The letter was certainly full of the usual propaganda. But the letter also contained what seemed to be a serious proposal for a mutual 500-mile withdrawal of all armed forces from a demilitarized zone in central Europe.

This zone, Bulganin proposed, was to be subject to both ground and air inspection by both sides, in accordance with the President's "open skies" proposal.

A 500-mile withdrawal would mean pulling American forces right out of Germany, and there is no place for them elsewhere in Western Europe. But it would also mean pulling the Red Army right out of East Germany, and indeed out of most of Poland. There is not a single expert on the German situation who doubts for a moment that the East German Communist government would almost instantly cease to exist if the Red Army were withdrawn.

Significant Proposal

It was the President himself, after a hurried briefing, who caught the significance of the Bulganin proposal, and ordered that it should not be waved aside as propaganda, and that a high level study of it should be made.

The significance of this Presidential decision is underlined by the fact that there is a growing body of responsible opinion that a third world war is inevitable unless there is some basic change in the German situation.

When the Hungarian rebellion was at its height, East Germany very nearly went the way of Hungary—far more nearly than is generally recognized here.

An East German rebellion was probably only averted because the West German government (with the full knowledge and approval of the American government) used all its power and influence to avert it.

The danger was greatest when thousands of Germans in West Berlin demonstrated against the Soviet bloodbath in Hungary, and then made for the Brandenburg Gate to cross into Communist East Berlin.

On orders from the Adenauer government, the West Berlin police used very tough measures indeed to prevent the crossing. The whole West German secret service apparatus was also used to hold down the seething ferment in East Germany.

Thus the explosion was averted—but quite possibly only for the time being, according to competent judges. Winter is not a good time for rebellions, but a Hungary-style uprising in East Germany in the spring is not to be ruled out. And if one considers the possible consequences, it is easy to see why the West German and American governments (shades of "liberation") are almost as anxious as the Kremlin to avoid an explosion.

Close Contact

Germany is the only place in the world where the armed forces of the two main antagonists are in close contact. There is no international border between the two Germanies, as between Hungary and Austria. There is only an artificial line, even now regularly crossed by Germans in both directions.

In such circumstances, there would be no way on earth to isolate the explosion, as in Hungary. West Germans—and probably units of the heavily armed West German police—would flood across the line to help their compatriots. The two Germanies would meld together, and somehow, somewhere—most probably in Berlin—the fatal first shots of the Third World War would be exchanged between the American and Soviet forces.

There are responsible officials who believe — or perhaps hope is a better word — that this nightmare prospect is now as vivid to the Kremlin as to the American government, and that the Kremlin may really be searching for a way out. There are other equally responsible officials who contend that the Soviets will never, under any circumstances, withdraw the Red Army from East Germany, just because they know that the Communist Pankov government could not survive without it. But in view of the terrible dangers inherent in an East German explosion, the President is surely right in asking for a good hard look at the Kremlin's real intentions.

Doubtful Waistband Triumph

ABOUT this time two years ago I bought myself a rather special pair of slacks. I thought they'd give me a casually elegant look during the Christmas-New Year "dropping-in" period. My sports jacket was a little frayed at the cuffs, but I had an almost new golden-yellow gabardine sports shirt that I could don with an easy insouciance instead of a coat.

The cut of the slacks was important because I had planned to wear them without suspenders. I'm past the stage where I take an inordinate pride in braces with big "Police" buckles on them.

My hope was that I'd have that debonair ex-athlete look, but not too ex. It was a good hope. But by the day Christmas dinner had come and gone I looked more like the football than the football player. The elegant slacks developed a V-neck. The waistband just wouldn't meet. Last year I overcame the difficulty by sticking to draped trousers and a double-breasted jacket. The drapes usually hang from suspenders. When I use a belt, they're caught fetchingly at the waist, as the women's page phrases it, with a ruffle at the top. After Christmas dinner they had only a very modest V-neck and the gap was covered by the jacket.

This year I have again bought a pair of thoughtfully casual slacks. And again I hope to appear negligently sporty in shirt and trousers only.

MISGIVINGS

Once again, also, I have my misgivings. They spring from those joyous scents of mince and Christmas cake that rise these days from the kitchen. They'll be joined in less than a couple of weeks by the good oniony aroma of turkey stuffing and they'll reach intoxicating heights as the bird is being basted, the mince pies warming, the rum going into the hard sauce and almonds roasting gently before butter and salt are added to them.

It requires no great association of ideas, to transform these aromas into the visual delight of a groaning table. Nor much inspiration to transform the groans to me as I lurch away from that table.

Secretly I doubt that I'll be in, or have, the proper shape for a pair of elegant slacks after this ordeal of delight. Lacking the nerve to wear a Roman toga—which all men should wear for Christmas dinner—I think a dressing gown and pyjamas with an extended draw-string will be my postprandial style.

All this, I suppose, may sound very vulgar. It is nothing of the kind. The way I eat at Christmas is merely a very genuine gesture of appreciation to a superlative cook. If the boss of our house is going to slave over a hot stove for the next few days, far be it from me to withhold the tribute which is most sincere. I'll eat myself a yard beyond my waistband before I'll hurt her feelings.

SHORT FACT

Still, I'd like to be able to wear those slacks sometime before next spring. I've thought of fasting for the next couple of weeks in preparation for the day of big intake. If I dropped 10 or a dozen pounds I figure I could shrink the distance around my equator. But I'd also shrink my stomach and wouldn't be able to do justice to the dinner.

So it'll have to be moderation at the feast. I can't skip the turkey, naturally. That's one of the substantial things about Christmas. For the same reason I'll have to take my share of mince pie and Christmas cake.

Maybe I can go a little lightly on the sprouts and conceivably I can pass up the Jap oranges and candy.

But at all events, I'll do without the salted almonds. They're the coup de grace. Come to think of it, I never have felt uncomfortably full at Christmas until after the salted almonds. Maybe they're the complete cause of my trouble.

I'll avoid them this year, and if that doesn't keep my waistline in, well, it's easy enough to try another experiment at Christmas time next year. Anyhow, the slacks will look newer for the Easter Parade if I don't wear them until April.

YOUR HEALTH

'No-Doze' Not 'Nodoz'

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

Recently in my column entitled, "The Driver Who Goes to Sleep at the Wheel," I discussed the use of pills by truck drivers to help them keep awake. I indicated that some pills use amphetamine or Dexedrine or Benzedrine. I also reported that while some authorities were critical of the use of pills containing such substance, others did not believe they produced bad results. I referred to such pills as "no-doze" pills, a word which I made up, as I wrote the column, as a sort of descriptive term. I am now informed that Harrison Products, Inc., of California manufactures and sells a mild stimulant to combat fatigue and restore mental alertness under the trade name

Dr. Alvarez

"NODOZ," and that this product contains none of these above ingredients. In fact, I am informed that its stimulant content is caffeine which, of course, is the same stimulant that is contained in coffee. Of course I did not intend to refer to the product of the Harrison company, particularly since it contains none of the three ingredients to which I referred in my column.

MUSCLE CRAMPS IN THE LEGS

Many persons have asked me to write again on the painful cramps that often make a man jump out of bed at night, to walk up and down. Only walking up and down will cause the muscle spasm to let go.

I know that I can get these cramps very easily by not drinking milk once a day or by drinking too much coffee. Some physicians have told me that they can get the cramps any time they want to, just by taking more than three cups of coffee a day. Many of my patients have gotten relief simply by taking a daily glass of milk. When the cramps are bad, and when, perhaps, the person is allergic to milk or is nauseated by it, if he (or she) will buy a bottle of syrup of glycyrrhizic acid and take a table-spoonful at bed-time, he will usually get relief. Many doctors give a dose of quinine at bed-time. I haven't had much luck with this treatment, but apparently it works in some cases.

Canada Helping U.S. Devise New Disarmament Plan

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—A new international 'disarmament' plan, which might propose modified controls on nuclear bomb tests and a ban on long-range guided missiles, is being drawn up by the United States in consultation with its key allies, diplomatic sources said Monday night.

United Nations' General Assembly next year.

The program will seek to break the long-standing disarmament deadlock with Moscow and in effect will be a reply to the Soviet Union's own proposals submitted by Soviet Premier Bulganin to President Eisenhower last month.

In their present form, the United States proposals were said by informed sources to include:

CONTROLS AND BARRIER

1. The outlawing of "push-button warfare" by banning the use of long-range guided missiles if a fool-proof system of inspection is accepted by the Soviet Union.

2. An attempt to reach agreement with the Soviet Union on the regulation of the testing of atomic bombs and other nuclear devices.

President Eisenhower has rejected the idea of actual ban on nuclear tests in the present world situation.

But he was said to feel that a useful start might be made towards breaking the disarmament deadlock under a system of "registering" each test in advance through the United Nations.

Boy Chokes Actor to Death During Robbery Attempt

CHICAGO (UP)—A 17-year-old boy admitted beating and choking veteran actor Malcolm Lee Beggs to death in an attempt to ransack his apartment. Beggs, who had been playing the part of a general in the Loop stage play "No Time for Sergeants," was found dead in his blood-spattered room.

Police also found Robert Mitchell, 17, St. Louis, Mo., and Haskell Kellems, 18, Pekin, Ind., in the room.

Beggs started his stage career when he was five years old. He had appeared in New York productions of "Arsenic and Old Lace," "Seventh Heaven" and "Mr. Wonderful."

Active effort and extensive research are necessary to deal intelligently with our traffic and parking problems. He has the ability and can give the added time necessary.

Mrs. Brethour Rites Wednesday ---Was Resident Here 74 Years

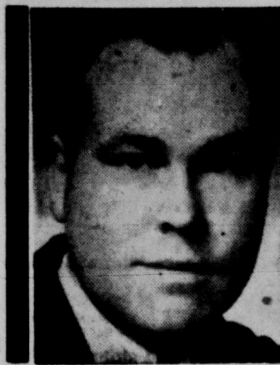

Funeral services will be held Wednesday for Mrs. Jessie Brethour, long-time resident of Victoria and Sidney, who died here Sunday in her 99th year.

Born in Ross-shire, Scotland, Mrs. Brethour came here in 1882 before the Canadian Pacific was completed. She traveled across the United States to San Francisco and then by boat to Victoria to visit a relative on Salt Spring Island.

Later she married Wesley Brethour, son of a pioneer Sidney family, and they farmed in the district until about 1909 before moving to Victoria. Mr. Brethour died in 1917. Well known in this district as handweaving instructor, Mrs. Rev. Douglas Carr will officiate at funeral services in McCall Bros. Funeral Home on Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. Interment will be at Royal Oak.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Middleweight Joey Giambra of Buffalo, N.Y., scoring heavily in the middle rounds, won a unanimous 16-round decision Monday night over the veteran Rocky Castellani of Cleveland.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Fred Campbell, at home, 1238 Palmer Road; a son, W. Alex Brethour, Victoria; nine grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren. Rev. Douglas Carr will officiate at funeral services in McCall Bros. Funeral Home on Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. Interment will be at Royal Oak.

WHAT'S THE SCORE? BY Denny Boyd

OVERFLOW FROM THE SHRINE BOWL . . .
Water goes wonderfully well with Strait swimmers or whisky drinks but it is a poor mixer for the game of football, except when served up in the trainer's bucket.

The huge dribble that inundated Vancouver last weekend did more than ruin a football game; it changed the entire phonetic aspect of the game. Instead of the normal mainly sounds of the crash, whump and crunch of hard bodies on leather padding, the sounds that echoed soggy off Empire Stadium were a wet symphony of plop, sploosh and gurgle.

A few of the Western All-Stars tried hard to be nice about it but they just couldn't make it sound convincing, not when they tried to pin their 35-0 victory over the East on "the breaks."

After Saturday's Shrine game in Vancouver, members of both teams were treated to a civic reception featured by smoked salmon, caviar, broiled scallops and cream cheese fancies.

Frankie Anderson, the magnificently destructive defensive end of the Edmonton Eskimos, clutched the East's Vince Scott by the arm and said with all obvious sincerity, "Honest, Vince, I wouldn't have had it happen like that for the world. Really, we didn't beat you so bad; we just got a couple of breaks early in the game."

"Yeah," said Scott, "you guys got the biggest break when they blew the first whistle."

Jackie Parker chewed on a voluptuous leg of turkey and said, "Now hold on, man. Just 'cause we beat them a bit today, it doesn't mean you can go on saying the West is this and that and the East is such and such. Those boys played real hard but we got the breaks."

The West's coach, Frank "Pop" Ivy, looking back at a season that saw his Eskimos win the Grey Cup for the third straight year and his All-Stars win the Shrine game, stroked his bald pate reflectively and allowed, "You can't hardly improve on a year like that, can you now?"

Ivy said that old-timer Buddy Tinsley, the veteran Winnipeg linesman, had provided much of the West's spark and Ivy's biggest personal kick.

"Of' Buddy was leading the defensive team. Every time our offence lost the ball, Buddy'd leap up from the bench, whoopin' and wavin' his arm and say, 'C'mon, you defence; we'll let them eastern boys have the ball for two plays and then make 'em give it back to us.'"

Eastern players found the weather so cold that members coming onto the field carried their parkas to the huddle and handed them to players leaving the game so they wouldn't get frozen before they reached the bench.

Huge Calvin Jones was very much alive during the game, the Winnipeg guard showing all the qualities that made him last year's cover boy on most American sports publications. Asked if it had been a rough game, Jones slipped a deserved beer, fingered his filled nose and replied, "It's always rough when you play it tough."

If that was to be Jones last football game, it was a great one.

The last play of the game was so pitiful, it was funny. Eastern quarterback Sam Etcheverry, tired of trying to throw through Anderson, Jones, Gordy Sturtridge and Tinsley, took himself off the hook by pitching out to Tony Curcillo and letting Curcillo do the passing.

On the second to last play of the game, Curcillo was black-jacked for a nine-yard loss.

On the next one, Curcillo was trapped and, with vengeful presence of mind, he threw the ball right back at Sam with tit-for-tat petulance.

Apparently as angry as surprised at getting the accursed ball back again, Sam paused briefly, knowing full well that he had to run, as the rules do not permit two forward passes on the same play.

So Sam looked over the line of scrimmage and, in an almost sneaky motion, threw a pass.

His receiver dropped it.

It was just the kind of play you would expect a 35-0 game to end on.

VCC Up to Hacks In Weather Grief

By BILL RAYNER

It was one of those weeks, too, at Victoria Curling Club.

Last Tuesday night during the height of the blizzard that snowed Victoria under, power went off at VCC for a period of two hours during the club draw, shutting off lights, heat, curling and everything but shadowy camaraderie in the locker room.

Then on Sunday the elements got in the last rock once more during the heavy downpour. Basement locker room and lounge suffered considerable flooding but club manager Fred Madden reported everything dried up and reasonably under control by Monday.

On the bonspiel front, commercial spiel officials, who optimistically set a limit of 96 entries for their annual event, which opens at VCC on Dec. 23, will now settle for a round total of 72 rinks as the deadline nears for registration.

Up to Monday evening a total of 56 rinks have entered the bonspiel. Closing date for entries is 9 p.m. this Sunday. It is hoped that last year's total of 72 rinks will be reached by then.

Victoria Curling Club's own annual 'spiel, set for March 18-23, is already receiving attention from out-of-town quarters. Larry Marshall, back from the Totem Bonspiel in Vancouver last week, reports that four mainland rinks have signified their intention of entering, while manager Madden, who braved Sunday's storm to take a visiting rink up to Port Alberni for a friendly game, brought back four Port Alberni entries for the annual shindig.

And still on the bonspiel front, the first senior men's 'spiel, to be held Dec. 22-23, has attracted 43 senior members of the club to date. Entries can be made at the office.

In the club draw, Tony Gutowski remains the only undefeated skip, leading A Division with a total of 23 points on 10 wins and a tie. Other division leaders are Gardner in B Division with 20 points; Sturrock in C Division with 19 points; Goodfellow in D Division with 18 points.

Air Crash Strikes at Roughies

WINNIPEG (CP)—Disappearance of a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane with 62 aboard in southern British Columbia Sunday night may have struck a heavy blow at western Canadian football. Five passengers were leading players; one was accompanied by his wife.

They are Gordon Sturtridge, 27, Mel Beckett, 27; Ray Synnyk, 23, and Mario DeMarco, all of the Saskatchewan Roughriders, and Calvin Jones, 23, of Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Sturtridge was accompanied by his wife.

The accident recalled another plane crash that was costly to Canadian sport 23 years ago.

Eyes of both friend and foe alike focus with undivided attention on Victoria Cougar coach Colin Kilburn, extreme right, as he waits a goalmouth pass from Doug Macauley (14) during the WHL game at

Memorial Arena Monday night against Brandon. While Macauley and teammate Doug Anderson (9); Bob Chrystal, on ice; Vic Lynn (3) and goalie Lucien Dechene of the Regals look on with either antici-

EASTERN TEAM ACCUSED

Gridders Deny Strike Threat

By The Canadian Press

The 1966 East-West All-Star football game, organized under the slogan "Strong legs will run so that weak legs may walk," has been haunted by reports of pre-game squabbles over money.

Almost before the game—proceeds of which went to crippled children's hospitals in Winnipeg and Montreal—was over, rumors began to circulate that players on the eastern team were dissatisfied with financial arrangements.

Hal Pawson, sports editor of the Edmonton Journal, said in his column Monday that eastern players had threatened to strike if they did not receive their demands and played only because they were told if they did not it would mean the end of their football careers in Canada.

DENY STRIKE THREAT

The strike threat was denied by two officials in charge of arrangements for the game and by an eastern player.

In Toronto, Harry McBrien, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Rugby Union, said there never was a strike threat. In Winnipeg, Ralph Misener, chairman of the CRU's Shrine committee, said "it's nonsense; just the figment of somebody's imagination."

He said a committee went to officials just before the game and asked that winning players' shares be raised to $400 and expenses each from $350 and expenses of $250 and expenses instead of $250 and expenses.

PLAYERS DISAPPOINTED

A second version of the story came from Montreal, where the Alouettes' centre, Tom Hugo, admitted the eastern players were "very disappointed" with the treatment they received in Vancouver, but said the strike angle was "a lot of baloney."

He said a committee had indeed been formed, but "we didn't get to see anyone except a man named McBrien of Toronto, who had arranged to get the players to Vancouver."

Hugo said he and the others only wanted the same treatment as they had been given in Toronto at the first all-star game last year. "Many of the boys paid their own expenses to Vancouver and they felt that these should be reimbursed and that they should be given an advance to take care of such things as dry cleaning and laundry."

Air Crash Strikes at Roughies

senior men's basketball champions, home from a series in Tulsa, Okla., crashed at Neodosh, Kan. Two team members, Mike Shea and Joe Dodds, were among the six persons killed. Seven members of the club were injured.

The accident knocked the club out of competition for some time and it never again won the Canadian title. Football officials here said the loss of the TCA plane had an ironic twist for Saskatchewan Roughriders who had four players aboard. During the regular football season, the club normally avoids travelling by air. Inter-city trips are made by train whenever possible.

Most clubs in the Western Interprovincial Football Union travel regularly by air. Sturtridge, Beckett and Jones played for the Western All-Stars in Saturday's East-

CRU OFFICIAL NEARLY CAUGHT MISSING PLANE

TORONTO (CP)—Because he got his job cleaned up ahead of schedule, Harry McBrien of Toronto, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Rugby Union, and his wife Kay were alive today.

McBrien was in Vancouver for the East-West all-star football game Saturday and anxious to return to his business affairs, made reservations on several flights.

He finished up sooner than expected and caught an afternoon flight. Had he been a few hours later he would have left on flight 810, lost over the British Columbia mountains.

Siki to Clash With Roberre

Pinned by the weather last week, professional wrestling goes on display again tonight at the Victoria Ballroom. Frenchy Roberre will make his Victoria mat debut in the main event of the four-bout card when he tackles dusky Regi Siki in a best-of-three falls, one-hour match. In the semi-main event, it will be rugged Kurt von Poppenheim against Dick Hrstich.

Buddy Knox and Bill Fletcher will match holds in a special event and Victoria grapplers Mike Belton and Pat Sherman will open the card at 8:30.

Argo Hopes Stalled

TORONTO (CP)—Lew Hayman, general manager of Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union, said Monday he talked to three all-Americans while in New York last weekend, but has little hope of signing any of them.

Hayman said he talked with halfback Don Bossler of Miami University, halfback Tom McDonald and centre Gerry Tubbs of the University of Oklahoma, but all said they would wait for offers from the National Football League before deciding.

Woes Pile Still Higher For Beleaguered Cougars

Lose Game to Brandon, Heinrich to Back Injury

Brandon 3, Victoria 1

By DENNY BOYD

The murkiest Monday in Victoria Cougars' present WHL schedule passed into controversial obscurity today but left the following blunt facts.

The Cougars lost to Brandon Regals, 3-1, Monday night in a game they did not deserve to lose on the strength of their driving play.

Already muzzled by an injury to defenceman Nelson Bulloch, which will keep him out of action for at least three more weeks, the Cougars lost still another defenceman when Lionel Heinrich came down with a sprained back, a chronic injury reactivated in Calgary Saturday night. They have only two completely healthy defencemen.

Boston Bruin scout Harold Cotton, who accompanied the club back from their prairie tour, had no words of player reinforcement last night but was scheduled for a meeting with coach Colin Kilburn this morning, during which long distance telephone lines were to hum.

Cougars were victimized by some off-color officiating that cost them one goal and angered Kilburn to a point where he drew misconduct and game misconduct penalties, which will take $35 out of his pocket.

Worn to a frazzle by the prairie trip and snarled transportation that saw them arrive back in town only six hours before game time, Cougars kept within range of the Regals for a period and a half on nothing but determination.

Colin Didn't Play Goal, But . . .

With only Bill Davidson and Bill Dohbyn answering the defence call, Kilburn played himself to near exhaustion before getting the boot. He took a regular shift on his own line, filled in on a couple occasions on the second line, took regular turns on defence and worked on the point when Brandon was penalized.

Johnny Bucyk gave Regals a 1-0 lead in the first period when his long shot, a 30-footer from the side, bounced in off Les Colwill's skate.

With two minutes left in the period, Cougars swarmed to the attack; missed an almost certain goal because Bruce Carmichael didn't have his stick on the ice as the puck slid along the Brandon crease, fired four shots in less than 10 seconds and saw the last of these smothered by defenceman Bob Chrystal, who

One Good Ruckus Deserves Another

It was shortly after that play that the fireworks were fused. Don Raleigh made a clearing pass from beside the face-off circle in his own zone. Chrystal, who started from the centre zone, grabbed the puck in a race with Partridge and scored the winning goal. Cougars claiming that the whistle should have sounded for either an off-side or icing call.

Kilburn questioned linesman John Smith vociferously and was given the misconduct penalty.

When that ruckus had died down, an even bigger one started.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

I have been asked to tell all I know about how the candidates stand in the up-coming civic election. Fortunately, I do not know much about how the candidates stand in the up-coming civic election. But I have it on good authority they all stand four-square, with their shoulders to the wheel, their feet on the ground, their eyes to the future, their noses to the grindstone, and one foot on the ground, edging forward foot by foot to more and greater things.

Which is a fine way to stand, even though it might become a little uncomfortable and lead to various aches and pains.

I have also learned how most of the candidates stand on garbage disposal. Most of the candidates are against garbage. And in favor of disposal.

The above could become a burning issue, but not during the fire season.

I regret to report hardly any of the candidates have come out in favor of the five-day weekend.

This despite the fact the provincial government employees have already achieved it, from Dec. 22 to Dec. 26, inclusive.

It is a pleasure to note an overwhelming majority of the candidates are taking a strong stand on the matter of sin. They are against it.

However, it is necessary to point out nearly all the candidates are taking a stand on the Indian problem with reservations.

You will be glad to know you cannot choose between candidates on the twin matters of taxes and expenditures. All candidates, with one voice, are in favor of lower taxes and higher expenditures.

A point of great interest in the current election campaign is the attitude of the candidates toward the traffic problem.

On this point, all the candidates have the same opinion. This city needs one-way streets, providing the one-way streets go one-way in the direction the candidates wish to be travelling.

Fortunately, this is all I know about how the candidates stand in the up-coming civic elections.

Except that the candidates stand or fall on the basis of your vote.

And—unfortunately—I know of a few countries where the same can't be said.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Payment of annual Christmas bonuses to city welfare recipients was recommended to city council today by finance committee. The bonuses represent a cost to the city of about $750—20 per cent of the gross cost which is mostly paid by the province. Heads of families receive $5 and single persons $2.

Damage is estimated at $500 in a shed fire at 731 Burnside West on Monday which is believed to have started in a pile of oily rags. Owner A. E. Wilson said the loss included a quantity of gardening equipment as well as damage to the interior of the shed.

Two youths who attempted to rob a city parking lot operator as he emptied his meters Saturday night were sought by police today. Jack Phillips, 10 Phillip Place, fought loose from his attackers and saved some $94 he was carrying. He told police that his raincoat and jacket were torn in the scuffle on the parking lot at Blanshard and Broughton.

Dr. R. E. Forester, scientist at Nanaimo Biology Station, will speak on "Development in Our Knowledge of the North Pacific Ocean" at a meeting of the Victoria Natural History Society at the Provincial Library at 8 tonight.

Sunday's storm caused a 24-hour delay in drydocking the Norwegian freighter Ss. Oluf Maersk when a generator supplying power to the dock pumps was flooded.

The ship was to have entered dock at 8 a.m. Monday, went in at the same time this morning after the generator was repaired.

Yarrows Ltd. is carrying out a routine scrape-and-paint on the ship. King Bros. Ltd. is Victoria agent.

B.C. Retired Civil Servants' Association will meet at 1303 Broad Street Friday at 2.30 p.m. Guest speaker Dr. Olga Jardine will give her impressions of New Zealand.

This postman really gets a kick out of his work.

Post Office officials reported today one of their employees was jolted by an electric shock when he attempted to clear the mail from a box at Belmont and Denman Saturday night.

The hydrographic survey vessel CGS William J. Stewart is in Victoria Machinery Depot for annual overhaul and minor repairs. Work is being done at the Bay Street plant.

The post office today is back to its pre-Christmas rush after a weekend slowdown blamed on the weather.

All wickets were busy to closing time, 6 p.m. Postmaster Robert Reid urged again for persons sending Christmas cards, letters or parcels to get them moving as quickly as possible.

General meeting of Greater Victoria Nursery School, of parents co-operative group, will be held at 8 tonight at the school, 2164 Oak Bay Avenue. Entertainment program will feature a drawing and professional marionette show.

Theft of a $135 camera from a car was reported to police today by Alex Johnston, 2612 Asquith. Mr. Johnston said the 35 mm. Kodak camera was taken from his car while it was parked beside a tool shed at Beacon Hill Park.

Strong-backed thieves carted away 600 pounds of brass and copper fittings from Greens Foundry at 515 Pembroke over the weekend after forcing the front door.

In another weekend break-in thieves smashed two cigarette machines at the Princess Mary restaurant and escaped with a small amount of change.

Car Bowls Over Three Mail Boxes

Occupants of a car which bowled over three mail box stands, before hitting a telephone pole on Ferndale Road escape serious injury Monday. Saanich police said the car was driven by Mrs. Dora Heim, 1980 Haley Road. Her husband, Jim, was released from Jubilee Hospital after treatment for abrasions.

$878,790 Low Solarium Bid

City contractors Howe and Wilson were low bidders for construction of the new Queen Alexandra Solarium, it was learned today.

Their basic bid of $878,790 was said to be $50,000 to $60,000 less than the lowest bids submitted by four other contractors tendering on the project.

Contract award was expected to be announced tonight by Solarium Building Committee headed by David Angus.

Bids also were submitted by Farmer Construction Ltd., G. H. Wheaton Ltd., Commonwealth Construction and A & B Construction, of Nanaimo. Bids ranged as high as $950,000.

The new solarium, replacing an old children's hospital bearing the same name at Mill Bay, 18 miles from Victoria, is to be built at Gordon Head.

It is understood, if the Howe and Wilson bid is accepted tonight, the firm is ready to begin work immediately.

Tourism Ministry Asked by Parley

A resolution urging Premier W. A. C. Bennett to fulfill his election promise of forming a separate "ministry of tourism and recreation" was passed unanimously today by the Auto Courts and Resorts Association convention at the Empress Hotel.

Noting that the tourist industry is one of British Columbia's major industries, the association asked that the new ministry be set up at the earliest possible date.

Rites Wednesday For Dora Mott, Church Worker

Dean Brian Whitlow will conduct funeral services for Miss Dora Mott, active church worker, at Christ Church Cathedral Wednesday at 1.30 p.m.

Resident of Victoria for 44 years, Miss Mott died at her home, 1024 McClure Street, Monday at the age of 76.

She was a life member of the women's auxiliary to Christ Church Cathedral and has held the positions of Dorcas secretary, girls' secretary and Living Message secretary on the diocesan board.

She was also past president of the afternoon branch of the cathedral's WA and a member of Primrose Lodge, Daughters of England.

Born in London, England, Miss Mott worked in local shipyards during the Second World War.

She is survived by a brother and sister in England and a sister Marion in Los Angeles. Chaplin's Funeral Chapel is in charge of funeral arrangements.

QORs May Return Here for Christmas

Families of Second Battalion Queen's Own Rifles, whose fathers joined the QOR First Battalion to serve with UN forces, may be reunited for Christmas in Victoria.

An army announcement that the reinforced First Battalion will return to its home base at Calgary within a few days could mean married men in the Second Battalion draft from Camp Gordon Head will be brought back here at least for Christmas, an army spokesman said.

Final disposition of troops from the Second Battalion likely will not be made until after the new year.

A Camp Gordon Head officer said he feels certain the battalion will forget some of its men back, but could not say when to expect them.

HERE DEC. 21ST

Earliest date on which the move from Halifax could start is estimated at Thursday, which would mean Victoria could expect married personnel back here about the 21st, if army authorities permit their return all the way to the coast.

Acting Prime Minister C. D. Howe said the reason the Queen's Own are not going overseas as expected is apparently

'IT'S NICE TO BE HERE'

Two Loop-De-Loops Enough So She Fire-Flagged Flyer

Storms, treacherous icy roads and floods did not daunt Miss Leah Shaw, veteran Shaw Springs auto court operator, from coming to Victoria to attend the B.C. Auto Court Convention at the Empress Hotel today.

On her way to Victoria from her home east of Lytton in the Fraser Canyon, her car first skidded on the icy No. 1 Trans-Canada Highway and overturned in a ditch near Tide Creek.

Leaving her car in the ditch, she returned to her home, and headed for Victoria in a truck.

The truck skidded near Seddell and plunged into a ditch.

Undaunted, Miss Shaw lit a bonfire alongside the CPR track. The non-stop Trans-Canada Flyer saw the "light." It stopped and took her to Vancouver.

In Vancouver, the Victoria boat waited a few minutes to give Miss Shaw time to get to the wharf.

"It's nice to be here," said she.

'Hoard Water', Sooke Area Told Flood-Caused Landslide Destroys Water Line; Small Creek Utilized

Flood waters Sunday caused a landslide that destroyed 120 feet of waterline serving Sooke Harbor, and has left the community dependent upon the flow of water from a creek.

Naval Ship Movements

Ontario leaves San Francisco today, returns Esquimalt Friday p.m.

James Bay on exercises returns Dec. 15.

Crescent and Ste. Therese on exercises in local waters today.

Ronald Upward, water commissioner, Greater Victoria Water District, said repair of the line would be a two-week job, since a road must be built to the break, then the line supported so it will withstand another slide.

He advised residents to "hoard" water, since one frosty night could halt the flow of the creek which now keeps the supply tank full.

ONEWAY

A combined crew of loggers and government workers has completed a temporary one-way bridge at Stoney Creek, where the regular bridge was washed out by the flood.

For the second successive year flood waters in Sooke River washed away the grandstand, picnic tables, bleachers, and other installations on Sooke River flats used in connection with All-Sooke Day. Only the platform for the loggers' sports remains.

Only casualty was Thomas Parkinson 77, who suffered a heart attack at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. J. Porter, East Sooke, Monday morning.

Despite help by Sooke and Colwood RCMP, and neighbors along the way, Dr. Norman Goodwin of Sooke, was unable to reach the stricken man in time to save his life. The roundabout trip by Sooke Road, broken by washouts and collapsed bridges, took more than an hour.

Private funeral services for Mr. Parkinson will be held in Nanaimo Friday.

At Jordan River two bridges were washed out, to isolate residents on the western shore. A bucket on a cable has been rigged to give access back and forth pending rebuilding of the bridges.

The Saseenos water system was damaged by flood waters, and will be restricted for close to a week.

WEDNESDAY MEETINGS

Esquimalt Golden Age Club: Community hall, 2 p.m.

Engineering Institute of Canada, VI branch: Pacific Club, 8 p.m. Annual meeting and election of officers.

SUDBURY MAKING 12 KNOTS TOWARD DRIFTING FREIGHTER

A favorable break in the weather today is enabling the Victoria salvage tug Ss. Sudbury to log a steady 12 knots as she heads to the aid of the British freighter Ms. Rowanmore.

The Rowanmore is about 1,200 miles from Cape Flattery, dead in the water due to engine failure.

If present light winds hold, the Sudbury may reach the motorship earlier than the target date of Friday. The tug's master, Capt. Harley Blagborne, is working on a tentative schedule to reach port before Christmas.

Progress of the tow will depend to a great extent on weather conditions.

Insurance Firms Expecting Many Household Claims

Flood-hit homes and businesses in Greater Victoria were nearly back to normal today after Sunday's inundation and citizens will pay or claim up to $359,000 for damages.

Water still lay on low-lying land or sloshed through over-taxed drainage ditches in all municipalities as brightening weather began to dry up gardens, fields and streets.

Insurance adjusters estimate claims for damage to homes and property may amount to $260,000.

Municipal engineers say the area was comparatively lucky with regard to flood damage to installations, roads and other services.

Saanich engineer N. W. Life toted up damage in his far-flung municipality and reached a figure of $10,000 including labor costs during the emergency.

REVISED TOTAL

Oak Bay engineer A. S. G. Musgrave revised his Monday estimate to include labor costs and extra expense of clearing silt-clogged drains. He figures the flood will cost the municipality about $5,000.

James Garnett, Victoria engineer, said repairs and labor would cost Victoria $9,000, as a preliminary estimate.

In Esquimalt, engineer John Graeme, said damage would be less than $5,000 to municipal property.

Many private property owners will find they can claim water damages from insurance companies, depending on the type of water damage clause written into policies.

One adjuster said between 90 and 95 per cent of insurance holders could claim damages, but a Vancouver spokesman, representing Gore District Mutual Fire Insurance Co., said he felt this estimate is too high.

Property owners with water escape clauses in policies could claim without trouble if damage was caused by domestic drains backing up.

Some companies will recognize backed-up street drains and consequent home flooding in this category.

Other policies contain flooding clauses which apply to water coming into homes from any outside source.

It was estimated the average claim per flooded home would be between $100 and $200.

This would mean a total $3,600 claim for houses in the badly-hit 1600 block Edgeware.

Clean-up jobs were completed for the most part Monday by owners working 12 hours at a stretch.

Many find they are unable to heat their homes until oil-burning furnaces and heaters, affected by flood waters, are dried out and restored to operation.

Basements which have been flooded may be disinfected by solutions of disinfectant (two tablespoons to a pall of water) or household bleach (two cups-full per pall of water).

ASK THE TIMES

Q. How long has Labor Day been observed in Canada? H.L.T.

A. Oregon was the first state in the U.S. to pass a law making the first Monday in September Labor Day. As early as 1882, 1883 and 1884, the U.S. Knights of Labor had paraded on that day in New York City, and they started a demand for legal recognition of the celebration. Congress on June 28, 1894, passed a bill declaring the day a legal holiday throughout the republic. The Parliament of Canada was not far behind, and put a similar act on the statute books in the same year.

Q. Will you please tell me what date will be Easter Day in 1957?

A. April 21. The last time it fell on that date was in 1935. Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Pottery Animals Decorate Bottoms of Children's Cups

By PENNY SAVER

What's at the bottom of the well? That's for the youngsters to find out, for the "well" is their drinking cup of bright, dotted pottery. At the bottom of the cups are little animals, firmly attached, which greet the child as the beverage disappears. On the side of each cup is written the phrase: "What's at the bottom of the well?" Ducks, kittens, fish, frogs and wee honey bees are there to please the children. Each cup costs 49 cents. They're gaily-patterned and have yellow dots here and there to match the yellow edge trim.

A serving tray of black-painted metal is a special party piece patterned with caricature decals in eye-catching colors. Six cocktail recipes are also decalated on the surface of this round tray. It has an all-around "fence", so that serving isn't at all hazardous. The trays also come in pastels, and are priced $1.29.

At Christmas time, everyone tries his hand at a little decorating in his home, and candles always play a big part. Little ones, big ones, round or square ones, all colors, mixed, or plain are worked into centre-pieces and onto tables and mantles. Of course, you're going to need extra candle holders. Small wire coils that fit any size candle come in sets of two, in white or black and cost just 29 cents. Larger sets are 49 cents, and very large ones are 98 cents each. To use with flower arrangements, there are little glass stars that have a base tough big enough to float a few wee blossoms. These glass holders are yours for 15 cents each.

Novel front door decorations are ready-made for you. All you have to do is hang them up. How would a wreath of golden foliage dotted with red cones tipped with white and silver look on your front door? Perhaps you'd like the modern, pink holly wreath with pink Christmas balls on it. Traditional green holly with green baubles or a bright golden

Couple Wed In St. John's

Canon George Biddle heard the vows of Joanna Doreen Lum and FO John Remington Emery in St. John's Anglican Church last Saturday. The bride, daughter of Mrs. George Lum, Fort Steele, B.C., and the late Mr. Lum, was given in marriage by her brother, John Lum. FO Emery is son of Mr. and Mrs. James Emery, 28 Hibberston Crescent, Victoria.

A princess-line gown of white velvet in ballerina length was worn by the bride. A lace cap held her shoulder-length veil which was trimmed with matching lace, and she carried a cluster of white roses mounted on a white Bible. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, the groom's gift.

The bride's only attendant, Mrs. D. Halifax wore a red taffeta gown in princess styling with matching accessories and carried a spray bouquet of white carnations and chrysanthemums. FO John Creighton, RCAF station, Sea Island, was best man.

At a reception in Oak Bay Beach Hotel, guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a taffeta print dress of brown with matching accessories and corsage of yellow roses. Mother of the groom wore a navy suit with matching accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Toast to the bride was proposed by Ronald Halifax. The newlyweds cut a three-tier wedding cake decorated with white and pink roses and flanked by pink candles.

The bride's going away dress was a pale beige sheath with white hat, pearls and corsage of white roses. She is a graduate of St. Joseph's Hospital school of nursing.

Mr. and Mrs. Emery will live at Courtenay when they return from their Seattle honeymoon.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Today the average age for menopause seems to be between the late forties and the early fifties. However, there are exceptions in both extremes.

While the large majority of women pass through this period with little or no discomfort, some do experience nervous tension and emotional instability. Tension may create irritability and you may find yourself, for no reason, depressed and weepy at times.

Some women experience hot flushes, although this applies to only 20 per cent. As a matter of fact, only two out of every 10 women have symptoms severe enough to require medical help. The others have very mild symptoms or none at all. However, if you are uncomfortable or unhappy go to your doctor and he will be able to relieve you of any distressing symptoms.

The endocrine glands seem to work together. When one becomes less efficient the others take over and make up for it. At menopause the ovaries slow down in their output of estrogen. Usually this is a gradual process and the glands make a gradual adjustment so that you experience no distress. However, to quote from a pamphlet, "Understanding Your Menopause": "Since the endocrine glands are believed to have a reciprocal relationship, the diminishing supply of ovarian estrogen will affect the action of other glands. Their normal equilibrium may be disturbed for a time, requiring some adjustment in the whole body."

So, remember that the chances, percentage-wise, are that you will have no trouble at menopause. The only danger at menopause is the possibility that a woman may attribute unusual symptoms to this time of life and therefore neglect them. You should see your doctor twice a year for a checkup, anyway, from 40 on. This is good preventative medicine. And report any unusual occurrence to him immediately.

Your body is under a slight strain while it adjusts to new conditions. Give yourself a break of an even better health routine than before; plenty of sleep, a bit more rest, fine nutrition, a happy mental attitude, and regular exercise, unless your physician advises otherwise.

It would be nice if she would add that she will do everything in her power to try to measure up to his expectations for the new job, realizing that it will be a challenge that she intends to meet. Keep the note on a purely business basis. Type it and send it to the man's office.

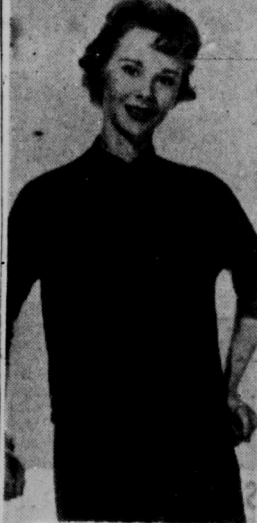

Half pound Canadian cheddar cheese grated, 1/2 pound soft butter, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard. Cream the cheese and butter together. Blend in flour and mustard. Shape into one-inch balls. Roll in finely chopped nuts or crushed cornflakes; garnish with peanuts or almonds. Place on cookie sheet 1 inch apart and chill several hours. Bake in a hot oven (400 deg. F.) about 10 minutes. Do not brown. Serve hot or cold. Makes 2 dozen.

OVERBLOUSE

Togmaster has designed this versatile, easy-to-wear style in Silknet's wonderful 100% Acrilan jersey. Its smart mandarin collar and adjustable drawstring tie make it a flattering blouse for every age. Its trim lines are in to stay, too, because it's made with Acrilan acrylic fibre. It will go right into the washing machine at the warm-water setting, drip dry, and be fresh and new looking without a bit of pampering.

On Etiquette

A question about a thank-you gift:

My daughter has just landed an excellent job. Responsible for this was an important business executive. Would it be all right if she send him a gift in appreciation, and if so, should it be done now or at Christmas, would it be all right if the present were sent to the home, with the wife's name included, of course?

Louise Davis answers:

By no means should your daughter send this man any gift now or at any time. The best gift he could get would be a sincere and thoughtful note of appreciation, thanking him for what he did for her. She must be sure the note isn't too gushy or too personal, but at the same time it should be convincingly sincere.

It would be nice if she would add that she will do everything in her power to try to measure up to his expectations for the new job, realizing that it will be a challenge that she intends to meet. Keep the note on a purely business basis. Type it and send it to the man's office.

Mrs. Welsh Opened Bazaar At Cordova Bay

Wife of the recently appointed rector of St. David's-by-the-Sea, Mrs. J. Welsh, opened the pre-Christmas bazaar, held by the Women's Guild at Cordova Bay Saturday. Mrs. Welsh was introduced by the guild president, Mrs. K. M. Lewis, and presented with a gay Christmas corsage by Mrs. K. Wyper.

A sum of $264 was realized during the afternoon.

The hall presented a festive appearance as stall conveners had decorated with evergreens and Christmas streamers.

Mrs. S. M. Hobbs and Mrs. L. Salmon sold gifts and novelties. Superfluties were sold by Miss F. O. Lewis and Mrs. J. Kiddon and needlework by Mrs. F. Smith and Mrs. R. Renfrew. Mrs. Wyper was in charge of corsages and table decorations. Candy was sold by Mrs. S. W. Tucker and Mrs. J. J. Hutton. Mrs. W. Ronald was in charge of the children's tree. Home cooking was sold by Mrs. H. Stevenson, Mrs. J. Wittchell and Mrs. W. Walker. Mrs. A. Taylor had parcels by post and Mrs. D. McKay, a stall of miscellaneous articles.

The Evening Guild was represented by Mrs. F. Tanner, Mrs. B. Peterson, Mrs. L. Mores, Mrs. S. P. Oakes and Mrs. A. Porter. They had a stall of attractive party decorations. Mrs. J. B. Minchin was in charge of wrapping and checking parcels. Tea was served in the guild rooms from tables with Christmas centrepieces. In charge were Mrs. T. Brown, Mrs. N. Westwood, Mrs. J. Kieran, Mrs. W. McRoberts, Mrs. C. McShane and Mrs. J. Wilmut.

Disney Presses Dismissal of $415,000 Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Walt Disney, the movie cartoon magnate, Monday asked Superior Court again to dismiss a $415,000 invasion of privacy suit brought against him by actor Kirk Douglas.

Douglas alleges that Disney violated the actor's right of privacy by showing films of Douglas and his family riding on Disney's miniature train. The Douglas suit said that the films, used on a television show, were taken during a social gathering at Disney's home last April 4.

An answer to the suit filed on behalf of Disney today asked that the suit be dismissed and said Douglas had agreed to the filming in order to publicize a Disney movie in which Douglas appeared.

NEW YORK (AP) — The government has filed suit against Dashiell Hammett, mystery writer, to recover more than $111,000 allegedly owed by the author in taxes. The suit covers the years 1943, 1945, 1947 and 1950.

'PALMS MUST GO TO GRAHAM STEED'

Choral Society Hits New Peak In Stirring 'Messiah' Production

BY AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON
Times Music Editor

Concert-going Victorians had reason for pride Monday night when a group of more than 100 city musicians presented Handel's "Messiah" at the Royal Theatre.

Only two of the four soloists and concert master Clifford Evans were imported for the occasion.

In its overall effectiveness, this was one of the best performances of the great work the Victoria Choral Society has ever given us. To a very great extent, of course, the palms must go to Graham Steed, the society's musical director.

He conducts with vitality and assurance, and by sheer authority was able to knit chorus and orchestra together on the two or three occasions when unanimity was shaken.

Tempo was excellent, giving the performance the sense of exaltation which the composer doubtless intended it to have. There was more of a feeling of enjoyment and less of striving on the part of the chorus than has been the case formerly.

One notable improvement was in the orchestral accompaniment which has so often been overwhelming, particularly for the soloists.

Monday night the balance of the ensemble was near-perfect. The 26-piece orchestra was drawn from the ranks of the Victoria Symphony which has repeatedly proved its mastery of the art of accompaniment.

Four well-matched soloists handled competently the lovely arias with which this oratorio teems. Margaret Abbott's voice is of fine quality, clear and smooth, and she sings with easy fluency. This was especially notable in "Rejoice Greatly."

But it remained for Margaret Myles' rich, vibrant contralto with its implication of profound emotion, to move one close to tears in "He Was Despised." Mrs. Myles has the dramatic approach combined with a sincere reverence which makes her the ideal oratorio singer, particularly for so moving a work as the "Messiah."

8,029-FOOT MT. SILVERTIP SHROUDS LOST AIRLINER

Missing TCA North Star airliner is believed to have crashed on 8,029-foot Mount Silvertip, south and west of Hope, B.C. Rugged country today was swathed in cloud, preventing planes from spotting wreckage.

THE ART OF REAL HAPPINESS

Am I Being My Real Self?

(As a special Christmas feature the Times is publishing a serialization of the new book, "The Art of Real Happiness." Co-author is Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, whose book "The Power of Positive Thinking" was warmly received by Times readers. There will be 12 installments.)

CHAPTER 2

By Norman Vincent Peale, DD, and Smiley Blanton, MD

"Am I doing what I really ought to be doing? Am I being my real self?" These are the queries of many of us who wonder if we are making the best of our opportunities, or are unhappy about our living conditions, or just generally confused about the complexities of modern life. We all have unfulfilled dreams and yearnings. Each of us feels at times that life has passed us by, and we don't know how to catch up with it.

Taking a realistic survey of one's God-given talents is more difficult than it appears. People think that they know themselves, but they really do not. They are usually ignorant of the complexity of their intellectual and emotional lives.

This was true of a 25-year-old girl whom we will call Janet. She was a most pathetic figure when she seated herself inside our counselling room at the clinic.

"I came to your clinic," she told us, "because I am afraid I will kill myself unless someone helps me."

Then, between sobs, Janet told us a story we hear often in one form or another. She had come to New York to make a career for herself as a concert pianist. In a Greenwich Village apartment, she had found a teacher who had worked with her for nearly four years. "She kept encouraging me," Janet said. "Even when I wondered about my ability, she told me that I could become a great pianist if only I would work harder. But every time I asked her if I was ready for an audition, she kept putting me off. Several weeks ago I met a man who is a piano accompanist. I told him of my ambition and asked if I could play for him."

Janet paused again, to control her voice. "I played for him. I thought I did very well. He was nice about it, but he said I was wasting my time, because I just didn't have the ability to be a concert pianist."

"I was furious with him, of course," she continued. "So I went to see another music teacher. She agreed with the accompanist. Then I had it out with my own teacher, who blew up at me, called me names and said she would have nothing more to do with me."

"Now I don't know what to do or where to turn. I can't go home and face my parents and friends. I've told you—"

Kidnapped
Officer Killed

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP)—The Egyptian underground informed Allied military authorities tonight that a young British lieutenant kidnapped at gunpoint this morning has been killed.

The lieutenant, who arrested seven Egyptian commandos in a raid Monday night, was seized on the street by a strong-arm band.

The kidnapped officer was identified as Lieut. Anthony Gerald Moorhouse, 21, of the West Yorkshire Regiment.

The kidnapping came as Egyptian informants charged that the extremist Moslem Brotherhood, outlawed by the Egyptian government two years ago, was planning to embarrass President Nasser by harassing the British-French withdrawal from this Suez Canal port.

Egyptian sources said Nasser intends to rush 2,000 Egyptian police here as soon as the British and French pull out in order to deal with the Brotherhood.

Sooke 'Diviner' Offers To Find Lost Plane

A Sooke resident, K. L. Shepherd, with an "uncanny" ability as a water diviner, has asked Mayor Percy Scurrah to arrange for him to assist in finding the downed TCA airliner.

Mayor Scurrah said he received a call from Mr. Shepherd, asserting his abilities and asking the mayor to find him transportation to the search area. Mayor Scurrah promised to pass the request along to local TCA officials.

Mr. Shepherd was reluctant to describe his ability other than to say, "It is the same idea as water divining." He said he would only give evidence of his ability if transportation arrangements could be made.

Romanian Athletes Not Going Home

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Several Romanians were reported today to have joined Hungarian Olympic athletes in refusing to return to their Communist homelands. Romanian officials, who neither denied nor confirmed the report, said no one would be prevented from remaining in Australia when the team leaves Thursday night.

Tories Receive Conscription Motion

OTTAWA (CP)—A call for compulsory military training in Canada is before the resolutions committee of the Progressive Conservative convention here. A resolution from the Edmonton East Conservative Association urges a system of national military training but specifies it should be elastic enough that it won't disrupt too greatly the economic life of the country or the personal lives of individuals.

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal judge postponed Monday until next spring the trial of racketeer Johnny Dio and three others accused in the acid-blinding of labor writer Victor Riesel.

UN to Pay Full Cost of Clearing Suez

CAIRO (Reuters)—The United Nations will pay the entire cost of clearing the blocked Suez Canal, the United Nations expert in charge of the project said today.

EASTERN TORIES BUCK
PRO-BRITISH ATTITUDE

By VICTOR J. MACKIE, Times Ottawa Correspondent
OTTAWA—Emanating from Quebec and Ontario a strong provincial rights sentiment is apparent in the discussions under way in Progressive Conservative convention's resolutions and policy committee, and it may be incorporated in the revision of the party's platform to be approved by the national convention later this week.

A reaction against any strong pro-British attitude is also noted among Quebec delegates who want to avoid having the Progressive Conservative Party labelled as the "Union Jack" party in Canadian politics.

WHAT WILL DREW DO?

Quebec Split
On Tory Race

OTTAWA (BUP)—Enthusiasm mounted at the Conservative national convention today as more unpledged delegates arrived and workers for the three leadership candidates saw they had a stiff fight on their hands.

As the heavy campaigning got under way in hotel rooms and lobbies, it appeared that John Diefenbaker still was the leading candidate but would not win an easy victory. His workers stepped up their activities, spreading "Diefenbaker for Leader" propaganda.

The two other candidates, Donald Fleming of Toronto, and E. Davie Fulton of Kamloops, were showing unexpectedly wide support. But it was difficult to assess their ultimate voting strength, since pledges meant little in the secret balloting which will be held Friday afternoon.

Clouds Block
Search Planes

From The Canadian Press

Heavy clouds closed in on the mountain search area this afternoon and search planes for the second time had to suspend the hunt for the missing TCA airliner which disappeared Sunday night with 62 persons aboard on the B.C. mainland.

There were 11 planes in the air and another 43 standing by when the order was given by RCAF search and rescue to discontinue the search for today.

Search officials said they still hold out some hope for the survival of those aboard.

The eastbound North Star airliner, piloted by Capt. Allan Clark, 35, of Montreal, vanished Sunday night on its return to Vancouver with one engine dead after reporting its position over the mountainous Fraser Canyon area, 110 miles northeast of Victoria.

Low clouds and snowshowers forced a halt to the search earlier today but with clearing weather up to 45 planes were expected to be in the air eventually.

Sqdn. Ldr. G. L. Sheahan, searchmaster, said planes when the search is resumed will concentrate on the sides and peak of 8,029-foot-high Silvertip Mountain, about 20 miles southwest of Hope, B.C.

He said at least nine persons had reported seeing "flashes of light" and hearing the drone of motors in the area shortly after 7 p.m. (PST) Sunday.

A ground party will make a check among isolated settlers in the area.

Last radio contact with the stricken liner was at 7:09 p.m. Sunday.

'Could Be Wreckage'

Monday, when 18 planes scoured the area under difficult weather conditions, one RCAF spotter reported seeing something on the side of Silvertip "which could have been wreckage."

"Until we have searched every inch of that mountain it will definitely remain our prime consideration," said the searchmaster.

The whole area covers 1,200 square miles, including the Upper Fraser Valley and the snow-covered peaks surrounding it.

Sqdn. Ldr. Sheahan and other search officials still held hope there could be survivors among the 59 passengers and the three-man crew on the missing plane.

One official said:

"If the big North Star crash-landed, its heavy construction could easily have withstood the shock of an emergency landing."

"In that case, there is a very strong possibility that there are survivors," said the official.

"That is the reason also for the urgency in this search, of course."

But if the airliner exploded as may be indicated by reports of flare-ups and huge flashes, "there is little likelihood of life," he added.

Sqdn. Ldr. Sheahan instructed his crews to search both Silvertip Mountain and the nearby Mount Shehm "from top to bottom, if necessary from tree to tree."

"You will search and search and search, all day if necessary," he said. However, he said clouds were lower over the mountains today than on Monday and "in this weather it looks difficult" to sight anything on the mountain.

A TCA spokesman, asked whether there was any

ed in the Chateau Laurier Hotel. At the convention headquarters at Lansdowne Park, the resolutions and policy committee went into the second day of private meetings. The organization and publicity committee was also scheduled to meet today.

RELEASED THURSDAY

The draft platform, designed to woo Conservative votes in next year's expected general election, will be made public Thursday, just before the main convention begins debate on it. The strongest two campaigns under way in the policy-making 163-member committee were understood to be to drop "Progressive" from the party's official title, and write in a vote-catching social security plank calling for higher old age pensions. Registration of official delegates, numbering 1,472 with votes and 795 alternates, will begin at Lansdowne Park late today. Indications were that close to the maximum attendance would be achieved, although early registration was likely to be slim. It will continue all day tomorrow, before and after the official opening at 2:30 p.m.

It became increasingly evident that the 342 voting delegates representing Quebec province were unlikely to support any one of the three leadership candidates en masse. Fleming appeared to have the strongest support among Quebec delegates, but others were active for Fulton and Diefenbaker.

Leon Balcer of Three Rivers, Que., president of the Conservative Association and French-speaking chairman of the convention, was understood to have not openly committed himself on the leadership issue. He announced last month that he would run for leader, but later withdrew.

Quebec followers of Premier Maurice Duplessis were believed to be ready to swing solidly behind University of Toronto President Sidney Smith, who reportedly had Duplessis' personal blessing, but Smith has declined to run.

DROUIN MAY RUN

Mark Drouin, a Quebec City lawyer and one-time vice-president of the National Conservative Association, said he considered running for leader in the absence of another candidate from Quebec.

Retired leader George Drew, scheduled to address the convention Wednesday has not indicated his preference in a successor, it was understood. He was not expected to make a choice between Fulton and Fleming if he decided to indicate his favorite in his convention farewell address.

hope that some of the 59 passengers and three crew would be found alive, replied dejectedly that the poor flying conditions did not help their chances.

There is still hope, he said, but storms in the mountains make the search operation a "pretty difficult thing." Authorities emphasized that the first day or so is crucial, since survivors, if there are any, might die of starvation, exposure or lack of medical care if not reached in time.

There was also the chance that a new fall of snow would cover the wreckage and make detection from the air impossible, possibly for weeks or months.

If worst fears are realized, it will be the worst crash in Canadian aviation history. Flies of the 18 aircraft which took part in Monday's search reported winds in the mountains that "just about put us on our back," and at times reaching a velocity of 90 miles an hour.

The extreme turbulence over the mountains was buffeting even the biggest planes.

Searchers and airlines' officials alike were mystified by the plane's disappearance without so much as a hint that it was in serious trouble.

A TCA official said that even if two engines had failed, the airliner should have been able to make it back to Vancouver. Failure of three engines was a "mathematical impossibility."

Capt. Art Rankin, western superintendent of TCA flying operations, said the plane was not on fire when it was last heard from.

Icing Theory Advanced

One theory was that the airliner fell out of the air from the crushing weight of ice forming on it in the gale-swept mountains. Another was that it crashed into a mountain peak.

After the radio report at 7:09 p.m., Sunday, nothing was heard from the plane. TCA said no kind of distress signal was received, "not even an indication of stress," though under normal circumstances the crew could have got in touch with Vancouver any time it wanted to.

"What could have happened is beyond explanation at present," a spokesman for the airline said.

Six air force planes continued the search until 11 p.m. Monday when rain, swirling through the mountains, and thick, bumpy clouds in the 2,000 to 3,000-foot levels caused them to return to base.

A four-man government board was appointed Monday to make a preliminary investigation into the plane's disappearance.

Its chairman is D. D. Murphy, district superintendent of air regulations here. Other members are W. R. Lavery, inspector of air regulations at Vancouver; Joe Bertalino, inspector of aircraft here, and W. M. Johnson, inspector of air regulations, Ottawa.

They will report to Transport Minister Marler.

Only Son Missing On TCA Airliner

COBALT, Ont. (CP)—A Chinese restaurateur today tearfully awaited news of his son, smuggled out of Communist China last week and now listed among 62 persons aboard the lost Trans-Canada Air Lines plane.

George Woon said he paid a "substantial" amount to a black market organization in the Canton area of China to have his son Ela Woon Yuen Way, 18, smuggled into Hong Kong. The youth flew from Hong Kong to Vancouver during the weekend and there boarded the North Star airliner, now missing in the British Columbia interior.

"He is my only boy," sobbed Mr. Woon. "I have three daughters."

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vivian Clarke dreamed Sunday night that she and her pilot husband were together on an enchanted flight through star-filled skies, with shimmering snow beneath them on the mountains.

Then she learned that her husband Allan, formerly of Montreal, was missing along with 61 other persons aboard a Trans-Canada Airlines plane. Mrs. Clarke said Monday she and her husband celebrated their wedding anniversary just before he left on the eastbound flight. The celebration had been delayed a week because he was fogbound in Winnipeg. He gave her a drop necklace in Indian mosaic.

She described how she reacted to the news that her husband was missing: "I was dreaming that we were both up flying. I used to be stewardess on his flight, you see. And it was a beautiful night. Smooth. Stars. Snow on the mountain... so I thought it was all part of the dream."

She broke off. "I told the two boys at breakfast. I told them Daddy might not be back in time to get the Christmas cards away."

Other shipments last month included 9,240 tons of pulp chips to American markets and 50 tons of pulp to Puerto Rico.

HUNGARY'S FIGHTING STUDENTS

Canadian Aid Reaches Brave Freedom Fighters

Help from Canada has reached Vienna, where the 40 students to benefit by the Times "Hungary's Fighting Students" fund have shown themselves to be pathetically grateful.

Word came from Miss Rita Baechler, Quaker worker in Vienna in a letter to Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee in Canada. The USC administers the fighting students' fund, to which Victorians now have given $2,918.

"With your first emergency contribution we are able to feed the students and to make the most urgent purchases of different personal needs," Miss Baechler wrote. "We had to buy medical supplies since some of them are ill from over-strain. They are infinitely thankful to you and told me to express their thanks to the Unitarian Service Committee."

There are both men and women on the roster of students who fought the Russians, but one of the most gallant—and one of the 40 students to be helped by the fund—is a boy of only 19.

He had been working in the coal mines at Tabanya, and had dreamed of becoming a technical engineer—an obvious impossibility. However, on Nov. 4 he and 500 other young miners joined the Budapest fighting, and he fought Russian tanks with "Molotov cocktails" for two days. (These are gasoline bombs first used by the Russians against German tanks in the Second World War.)

He fought at Wiener-Uten, then spent a week at his home town. Finally he evaded deportation by slipping across the border into Austria by night and, with his life already turned upside down, is going to pursue his dream of becoming an engineer.
